[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The senate munitions inquiry, which is endeavoring to show collusion in the awarding of shipbuilding contracts, today revolved about the White House and the navy department as a witness with a blood pressure of 250 gave his testimony.

The witness was A. P. Homer, Washington marine architect and lobbyist for shipbuilders, who was head of the marine division of the finance committee at the Democratic national committee during President Roosevelt's campaign. He said he obtained this appointment from Louis McHenry Howe, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary.

Knew Before Congress.

The senate committee, headed by Gerald P. Nye [Rad., N. D.], established the fact that the shipbuilding interests knew about the public works program before it was submitted to congress in 1933 and Homer said he conceived the idea of a PWA naval construction program. The witness testified that he had solicited the big shipbuilders for contributions to Mr. Roosevelt's campaign, but that they failed to respond.

Other developments during the day related to conferences with naval authorities at which alleged agreements on bidding and the division of work were entered into and the supposed influence exerted by Mrs. Mary Eben of the White House secretariat.

"Who Is Mary Eben?"

Senator Nye read a letter from W. M. Rice of Gielow, Inc., New York marine engineers, to Homer, as follows:

"Who is Mary Eben? She has some magic charm for business done with the administration, providing your bonding and insurance business is given to her husband, Mr. Eben. It has been suggested to me by several people that she is in a position to hurry up consideration of the navy patrol boats and possibly to make suggestions as to who should be the central drawing office."

Mrs. Eben is secretary to Mrs. Malvina Scheider, who is secretary to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Homer testified that he did not reply by letter to Rice, but merely telephoned him that he had never heard of Mrs. Eben.

Reluctant to Testify.

Homer testified with obvious reluctance and excused himself at one time to go to the water cooler and take some pills. When Senator Bennett Clark [Dem., Mo.] made some deprecating remarks about his memory the witness replied: "If you had a blood pressure of 250 your memory would slip, too."

Clark on one occasion moved that Homer be cited for contempt when he flatly refused to answer a question, but on being admonished by Senator Nye he conferred with his counsel for five minutes and then answered.

The evidence adduced through Homer referred frequently to Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples, "the President's best friend in the navy," who is now head of the procurement division of the treasury department and is slated to be the active administrator of the 4 billion dollar works fund.

Reads of Program.

Homer testified that early in 1933, prior to Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration, he read in a newspaper that the administration was planning a huge public works program.

"For that reason," he said, "I drew up a plan of incorporating the navy program as part of the unemployment relief act, which would put men to work promptly all over the United States. It was not discussed with any of the shipbuilders, with the exception of Mr. W. S. Newell, president of the Bath Iron works, Bath, Me."

Homer said he endeavored to get Newell to come down to Washington, bringing with him figures obtained from the American Council of Shipbuilders, with which a plan could be devised.

Letter Is Quoted.

Senator Clark, at this point, read into the record a letter from Homer to Newell, datcd April 1, 1933, three weeks after the inauguration. The letter said:

"Now that the story [public works program] has broken on the first page of the Herald-Tribune, you per-

BULL INJURES 2 PERSONS, KILLS 1 DOG IN ATLANTA

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 15.—(AP)—An enraged bull today rampaged through Atlanta and fell mortally wounded only after two persons had been badly hurt, a valuable police dog killed, and scores of shoppers frightened.

For more than an hour the beast dashed through the streets. Motorcycle officers finally felled him.

The bull, a huge red one, escaped from a farmer's truck on Peachtree street. He lowered his head in defiance when he saw a police dog. His horns ripped the dog's stomach and he died immediately. The dog's master attempted to subdue the animal, but was gored on the chest and arm.

A few minutes later the fugitive crashed through a plate glass in a store on West Peachtree street. Unhurt, he tore through trafic in the downtown business area. At "Five Points," in the heart of the city, the bull turned down Decatur street toward police headquarters, scattering pedestrians to the protection of stores and doorways. One man was gored in the back.

The bull was headed toward Georgia's state capitol, knocking down fence after fence and billboards when Lieut. Reggie McLean, head of the Atlanta trafic squad, challenged him and called upon a motorcycle officer to "stand by with pistol raised."

The bull charged. Both officers fired and the bull fell with two bullets in his head.

POLICEMAN GETS SCIENCE LESSON, BUT HE'S PUZZLED

T. F. Donahue, 5064 North Lincoln street, a junior sanitary engineer in the city's water safety control division, started out on the shore ice near the Lake Shore Athletic club yesterday afternoon.

On the pier, a short distance away, was a policeman.

"What are you going to do on the ice?" asked the policeman of Engineer Donahue.

"I'm collecting soot," replied Donahue with dignity. "We want to analyze it."

"There's no sense in that," said the policeman. "It's made out of coal." Then he added, coaxingly: "You better come on in and not get yourself drowned for nothing."

Recognizing that the policeman did not understand he was a scientist and suspected him of being a little flighty, Donahue started to the pier to explain his status. Just then the ice broke. The engineer pulled himself back on the solid ice and went away to get dried out. The policeman is still unenlightened.

Offer $3,800 to Bruno Jury in Vaudeville

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J. Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The Hauptmann trial jurors, subjects of editorials throughout the nation in which they have been praised for their courage and sense of justice, today were eagerly studying a contract offered them by a New York theatrical agent which, if accepted, will furnish the crowning spectacle to the most exploited murder case in modern history.

For the contract provides that the jurors appear on the vaudeville stage during a twelve week tour of the country. Charles Walton, the foreman, has been offered $500 a week and the other eleven have been offered $300 weekly each in the contract, a total of $3,800 weekly for the twelve.

Temptation Is Strong.

That is big money to these village folk and the temptation is great. The four women jurors especially are eager to accept, it was reported. Walton and some of the other men jurors are said to be reluctant to appear in a sketch which could only make New Jersey and Hunterdon county the laughing spectacle of the world, but acceptance of the contract would give Walton $6,000 and the others $3,600 apiece, and there is a human reluctance to refuse such an offer despite the public ridicule it would entail.

Sheriff John H. Curtiss revealed the terms of the contract today. He informed the jurors of the offer for the first time yesterday after they had voted, the previous night, to send Bruno Richard Hauptmann to the electric chair for the kidnaping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr.

Jurors Organize Club.

The fact that the jurors are seriously thinking about accepting the contract was revealed in a canvass of them today. They united unanimously in a refusal to discuss their deliberations. Finally Mrs. Vera Snyder, the 291 pound blacksmith's wife, confessed that the jurors had formed a club to be known as the "Hauptmann Trial Jurors' club," elected Mrs. May Breisford president and pledged themselves not to talk pending a decision on the vaudeville contract.

Hauptmann remained in his cell here today and probably will not be taken to the death house in the state prison at Trenton until tomorrow morning, Sheriff Curtiss said. At Trenton, it was reported, a large crowd had gathered at the prison entrance to get a glimpse of the prisoner.

The sheriff declared that Hauptmann would be transferred the 20 miles to Trenton in a closed car, handcuffed to the sheriff and a deputy.

Hauptmann was in good health, his guards revealed. His appetite has not failed him and he ate heartily today. He spent some time reading his mail, which consisted largely of notes from cranks and religious fanatics offering advice of various natures.

The prisoner received a cablegram in German signed "Your trusting mother" from his mother, Mrs. Pauline Hauptmann, in Kamenz, Germany. The message read: "I believe everything will be all right."

$250 SEATS TO SEE KING OF ENGLAND OFFERED FOR SALE

[Copyright, 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Commercializing of the king's silver jubilee next May has already begun almost three months ahead of the event.

An advertisment will appear on the front page of the London Times tomorrow offering seats at Ludgate hill —"The best place to see the arrival of their majesties at St. Paul's."

"Only 20 excellent front row seats are left at 50 pounds [about $250] each," the advertiser asserts. "Others at 10 and 20 pounds."

Opportunities for money making will be great, since the king and queen will ride through four miles of streets on their accession day and later make four separate drives through various parts of London.

SOLD HIM A GUN, CLUB MURDER WIDOW ADMITS

Her Father and Two Others Quizzed.

The man who purchased from Mrs. Helen Straub a pistol of the same type that was used to murder her husband, Louis K. Straub, in the Saddle and Cycle club early Feb. 3 is in custody at the state's attorney's office.

That was admitted early today by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, following an all night questioning of Mrs. Straub, her father, Harry Springer; Mrs. Ellen [Billie] Edlin, close friend of the widow, and other witnesses in the case.

The man who bought the gun, representatives of the state's attorney's office said, is Peter Breckie, 51 years old, of 1309 Lawrence avenue. According to Mrs. Straub, she has been a close friend of his for the last nine years, their friendship dating back to days before she married Straub.

Gun Bought from Father.

Although Mrs. Straub freely confessed to owning and selling the weapon, she continued, after hours of questioning, to deny knowledge of the murder. According to her story, she bought the gun from her father last Oct. 31 for $10. She sold it to the other man—she did not mention his name at first—for $20, she admitted.

About a week ago, she said, this man came to her and said:

"Just keep shut up and everything will be all right. I'll explain all this to you later, but now—shut up!"

Although Mr. Dougherty did not say as much, it was indicated that authorities believe the mysterious murder of Straub has practically reached its solution. The prosecutor, after the all night session, declared that other witnesses—perhaps all that have figured in the case so far, and perhaps others—will be called in again for further questioning.

In addition to Mrs. Straub, her father, and Mrs. Edlin, the prosecutor also had in custody last night Kenneth Colling, the cab driver who took a "mystery woman" to the club shortly before the murder of the night bartender in the clubhouse at Sheridan road and Foster avenue, and an elderly woman whose name was not revealed.

Police Supply Information.

The reopening of the case, which had been dormant for nearly a week, came on information furnished by Lieut. Axel Jensen of the Summerdale police.

He told Capt. Martin O'Malley that he had learned from a woman whose name was not revealed the identity of a man who was supposed to have sold the pistol to Mrs. Straub. This information was turned over to the state's attorney's office and Springer was taken into custody at his home.

Mrs. Straub, Mrs. Edlin, and the unidentified woman were taken at Mrs. Straub's apartment, 901 Argyle street, after police had failed to find Mrs. Edlin at 3750 Pine Grove avenue, her former address.

With the greatest secrecy the prisoners were taken to the Oak Park Arms hotel, 408 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park. Not even the Summerdale police, who furnished the information leading to the arrests, were told where the prisoners were.

Questioned by Four in Hotel.

At the hotel they were questioned by Capt. Gilbert, Mr. Dougherty, Assistant State's Attorney Morris Meyers, and Policeman John Steffen.

Shortly before 3 o'clock this morning the investigators gave out a brief statement, telling some of the things they had learned during the course of the quiz. Mrs. Straub and Mrs. Edlin were then taken to the state's attorney's office for further questioning.

Just when and how Breckie was seized was not revealed, but he, apparently, had been at the state's attorney's office throughout the night and early hours of the morning.

In the meantime Colling was taken into custody at his cab stand, Grace street and Broadway. He was held at the Summerdale station, then was removed to the Marquette station for questioning, on orders of Assistant State's Attorney Dougherty.

At Party on Fatal Night.

Immediately after the slaying of Straub his widow declared that she had been at a card party with Mrs. Edlin and other women friends at 2342 Geneva terrace the entire evening of Feb. 2.

Leaving there, she said, she went to her own apartment, but when her husband had not appeared by 3 a. m. she went to the club. There she and an

Two young women were taken into custody last night for questioning in connection with the deaths Sunday of William Pyper and David Layton, who were apparently the victims of overdoses of "knockout drops" administered in drinks they purchased in downtown cafés.

The girls are Winifred Caldwell, 23 years old, and Irene North, 21 years old, both of 6220 Woodlawn avenue. They have been employed for some weeks as hostesses in the Crown café at 503 North Clark street.

They were taken to the Chicago avenue station after police recalled that they had been arrested Jan. 30 in the Bismarck hotel as they left the room of an elderly man who had been put soundly to sleep with "knockout drops." He was revived by physicians, but declined to prosecute the girls. In spite of this they were both fined by Judge Edward S. Scheffler of the Women's court and then placed on probation.

Admits Being in Café.

Misses Caldwell and North denied that they had anything to do with the death of Pyper, 49 year old accountant who became ill while in the Subway café at 509 North Wabash avenue, and died soon after he was taken to the Henrotin hospital. The girls admitted, however, that they had been in the café several times and that it was there they had met the elderly resident of the Bismarck hotel.

"We were not in the Subway from Jan. 30 until Sunday night," said Miss North. "We never gave anybody any 'knockout drops,' and we did not rob the old fellow in the hotel. On our last visit to the Subway two of our boy friends were with us. We were not there early Sunday morning. We worked from Saturday evening till 6 on Sunday in the Crown café."

Two Held for "Showup."

Capt. Andrew Barry of the Chicago avenue station, in charge of the Pyper investigation, said he would learn if this alibi is true. He added that the two girls would be held in jail to be viewed by witnesses who had seen Layton with two women in the Morrison hotel bar early Sunday, a few hours before his body was found in a doorway at 624 South Sangamon street.

It has been established that Layton, who was 55 years old and resided at 5352 Kenmore avenue, and Pyper, whose home was at 6248 South Kedzie avenue, had been robbed. An examination by Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, coroner's chemist, disclosed the presence of chloral hydrate, a favorite form of the "knockout drops," in the body of each.

John Patterson, owner of the Subway; his bartender, Earl Stafford, and other employés were questioned by Capt. Barry. They said they had not seen any women with Pyper before he became ill, and Stafford was positive Misses North and Caldwell were not present at the time of Pyper's death.

Tells of Other Cases.

According to Capt. Barry there have been numerous reports recently of persons who said their drinks had been drugged so that drinking companions could rob them. This form of larceny, he said, formerly was employed only in the back rooms of tough saloons, but now seems to be spreading, with the operators working in the busiest and brightest drinking places.

"I have ordered the arrest for questioning of four other young women, all of whom have been accused of handling victims in this manner," the captain declared.

Oliver C. Hamilton, 29 years old, 6108 Glenwood avenue, voluntarily informed the police yesterday that he had been drugged while drinking in the Green Lantern café at 670 North Clark street. When he revived he was alone in his car several miles from the café and had been robbed of his money, watch, and overcoat, he said.

LABATT KIDNAP SUSPECT FIGHTS THE KING'S MEN

Never in Canada, Says Kentuckian.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Covington, Ky., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—His Britannic majesty encountered considerable difficulty today in getting the enthroned citizens of Covington, Ky., to release one Kingdon Peter Murray, alias Pete Murray, alias K. P. Dayton, to the tender mercies of the Canadian court in the little matter of the kidnaping of John S. Labatt, London, Ont., brewer, for $25,000 ransom on last Aug. 14.

The said Canadian court, having quietly, efficiently, and quickly sent one Covington citizen, David Meisner, to prison for fifteen years last week for his part in the same kidnaping, the Covington-Newport underworld of gamblers and gangsters, where this plot seems to have been hatched, has decided to resist the extradition of the Hon. Pete Murray to the utmost.

Cross-Examines Detectives.

Meisner waived this important barrier of extradition and took along a couple of Covington's rotund city detectives to act as alibi witnesses for him and get him out of this jam, but the Canadian system of justice would not listen to them and insisted on cross-examining them to such purpose that they came running home at night, with the testimony of one half finished and the testimony of the other not given at all. They have been telling of the terrors of the Canadian "kangaroo courts" ever since, and citizens have sympathized with them.

Not so with Pete Murray, ex-bootlegger, gambler, "clothes salesman," and ex-convict, who appeared today before the Hon. Edward W. Pflueger, United States commissioner at Covington, to show cause why he should not be sent to the cold north to join Meisner in prison. James R. McGarry, one of the town's most belligerent lawyers, was there to defend him, "out of charity," he said. The king's counsel and all the king's men could not get by the extradition barriers today, but they may do so at the resumption of the hearing tomorrow.

The American angles of this kidnaping story have received very little attention to date. They are hidden in the sordid history of the Newport-Covington littoral, across the river from Cincinnati, where Latonia race track, open gambling, and many amenities of a "liberal" and politically run community draw gamblers and crooks, rich and poor, from many parts of the country, a country where George Remus operated in the halcyon days of prohibition, where the citizens shut their eyes to many things.

First Kidnaping Prosecution There.

Canada has reached down here through the United States department of justice to draw two out of the crooked streets and back rooms, and a third of the gang, one Albert Pegram, is sought. This is the first kidnaping Canada has prosecuted and intends to make an example of it.

On the scene of battle today appeared Norman F. Newton, crown attorney for Middlesex county, Ont., a polite but bitterly determined gentleman who referred to his opponent as "learned counsel," but did not mean it. He was supported by C. R. McGuire, attorney general of Toronto, and Inspector A. B. Boyd of the criminal investigation department.

These were all that were in sight, but Covington had an unpleasant revelation of a member of the Northwest Mounted police appearing in the city's haunts as a newspaper reporter recently, with the aftermath of the Meisner slaughter.

Hearing Entirely Informal.

Mac Swinford, United States district attorney from Lexington, and N. B. Klein of the department of justice office in Cincinnati, who caused the arrest of Murray a month ago on a Canadian warant, were there for the prosecution, as were James J. Higgins and John Drees, two more city detectives who took care to keep out of the way of flying missils.

The hearing was entirely informal, Commissioner Pflueger at times leaving the bench and walking down to argue with the lawyers or ask their advice about this treaty of 1842 between Great Britain and the United States, which was being invoked here.

The commissioner had made a recent study of the treaty and had a firm opinion that all that was necessary to do to extradite the defendant was to make out a clear prima facie case against him and then let him put up his defense in Canada. The defense is simply that Murray was never in Canada and had nothing to do with the kidnaping. He, too, has an alibi, and one that may stick longer than that of Meisner.

Threats of Habeas Corpus.

The crown authorities took this same view, but in the face of the pleading and arguments of McGarry the commissioner did not have the heart to send Murray away without a hearing and so he let him put on a defense. The case came to practical trial in Covington, which was just what the Canadian people did not want. The outcome is in doubt, with threats of habeas corpus action looming in the background.

The deposition of John S. Labatt was the chief evidence against Murray presented today. This stated that the kidnap victim had a summer home near Lake Huron beach and on the morning of Aug. 14, at 9:15 a. m., he was driving out there alone. He noticed a motor car following him. He slowed up and let it pass. He noticed three men in it.

Labatt saw the car stop and two men get out apparently to examine something in the rear of the car. He stopped. The car went on, but a few minutes later came driving toward him at high speed. He noticed the same three men. Two of them came to the door of his car as he stopped to avoid collision.

In Kidnapers' Lair 46 Hours.

They each had a revolver and one of them [Meisner] said, "Stick 'em up quick. This is a kidnap." Meisner then produced a pad and said, "Write what I say." The other man approached the car and he saw him for four or five minutes before he was blindfolded and taken away to a cottage on Lake Muskoga, where he was kept for 46 hours.

The important part of this from Murray's standpoint, was that his picture was attached to the deposition and Labatt swore that this was the third man in the kidnap gang. The commissioner regarded the picture slowly and said it was a "perfect image of the accused."

The accused, a rat-faced, dapper little man, would not be hard to recognize.

Then followed the deposition from Hugh F. Labatt, a brother, who told of receiving a telephone call at 12:35 p. m., on the 14th, instructing him where to find his brother's car and a note under the seat, and how this was carried out, the ransom paid, and his brother released at the Royal York hotel in Toronto on the 17th.

This did not connect Murray, but three laborers who were eating lunch by the side of a road in London that day told of a dapper little man in a dark suit and sport clothes who came up to them and asked the way to the Labatt brewery. They identified the picture of Murray as the man who had approached them.

Much time had been wasted by the commissioner putting on witnesses to prove the strict legality of all these proceedings, and to show his own authority to act in the absence of the judge in Florida. Much more time was consumed in arguments as to whether any defense was permissible here.

The dignified crown counsel refused to have anything to do with a defense at this end. They referred to the long legal battle over the extradition of Martin Insull in Canada as a fight over whether an extraditable offense had been committed. Here, it was admitted, though denied by the defense, that kidnaping, a robbery with a gun, a second charge filed against Murray, were punishable under the Kentucky laws as well. Murray was finally put on the stand.

Testifies at His Own Peril.

The court warned him severely that he testified at his own peril. He said he never had heard of Labatt and never had been in Canada. As to Aug. 14 last he had specific memory. He was in Covington. He had gone to take a couple of pairs of sport trousers to the cleaners that morning and had also gone to the barber shop. He also had put in two phone calls about a bond matter for a friend.

Under examination of the court he admitted that he had been convicted of illegal distilling in Cincinnati in 1925 and fined $100, and that in 1921 he had served a term in the Frankfort penitentiary for obtaining money under false pretenses.

Attorney Bert King, a Covington lawyer of political standing, took the witness stand and swore that he saw Murray and his wife, Vera, in his office at least three times the week of Aug. 13 last, the kidnap week. They had retained him in a civil suit, he said.

Takes Trousers to Cleaners.

Mrs. William Bruegge of Newport testified that Murray came into her cleaning shop with his trousers on the morning in question, and produced office records of the transaction in trousers pressing to prove it.

Other witnesses were at hand to aid Murray when court was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

CRIPPLED BRITISH PLANE CRASHES IN SICILY; 9 KILLED

MESSINA, Sicily, Feb. 15.—(AP)—One of four British seaplanes traveling from London to the naval base at Singapore came to grief today on a Sicilian hillside, burning almost beyond recognition with the nine persons aboard it. So completely was it destroyed that not until an official investigation late tonight was it correctly identified as the Ace of Diamonds, having been previously reported to be the Singapore.

Commander Lang of the Singapore-bound squadron hastened here by train from Naples, whence the plane had started today, to take charge of the wreckage and the bodies of eight officers and men and one civilian.

Farmers said the plane passed through cloud banks and emerged almost in the face of the summit of San Filippo mountain. The pilot swerved the ship, but the right wing touched the jutting rock, they said. The plane wabbled on for about four miles while the pilot evidently sought some place to land.

After passing the village of San Filippo, the ship nosed down suddenly and burst into flames as it crashed. Flight Lieutenant Henry Longfield Beatty was in charge of the craft.

The Ace of Diamonds, together with three other British seaplanes, reached Naples two weeks ago and remained there because of engine trouble in two of the planes, awaiting replacement parts. Late today two of the group started toward Malta.

GERMANY READY TO USE AIR FORCE TO PREVENT WAR

Hitler Outlines Policies to Nazi Leaders.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—All leading Nazi party officials were called together in Berlin tonight for an extraordinary conference at which Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler outlined his present internal and foreign policy. A cordon of guards surrounded the former house of peers and parliament where the Nazi dictator addressed his lieutenants. They were instructed to report to him on developments in their different districts.

The assemblage was given the text of Hitler's reply to Anglo-French proposals for an inclusive European security agreement.

Nazi leaders believe the communication will arouse great enthusiasm because "it clearly shows that Germany is again addressing others as an equal and indicate that her right to possess an air fleet has been conceded by the other nations."

Demands Parley with England.

In the note Germany demands separate negotiations with Great Britain before considering the possibility of attending a general conference on limitation of armaments and an air convention. Berlin diplomats see in this demand an effort to drive a wedge between France and England. The Germans deny the allegation, pointing to a line in Hitler's statement which explains that they desire to negotiate first with England because she is the "guarantor of the Locarno pact."

The British embassy was asked if Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, or Capt. Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, planned to visit Berlin.

"It seems a logical possibility that after conferences are held in Rome, Paris, and London, there should be one in Berlin, but no date has been set, nor have plans been made."

Hitler, in his reply, declared Germany was ready in principle to use her air forces to preserve the peace of western Europe. He said the air pact might be one step toward the solution of other problems. He also promised to examine the question of how to avoid the danger of an armaments race.

Ignores Security Pacts.

The note, which was delivered to the British and French ambassadors yesterday, made no direct mention of the proposed eastern security and Danubian pacts.

Hitler's note also was vague concerning Germany's intention as to her return to the league of nations and as to disarmament.

A foreign office spokesman exclaimed:

"In these matters our reply follows the tenor of the Anglo-French proposal. The German viewpoint on the eastern pact was announced Sept. 8, 1934, when a critical analysis was given out. We have asked for further mention on the Danubian proposal in Rome and Paris, but have not yet received an answer. By the friendly tone of our note we hope to keep the negotiations proceeding."

Text of Note in Part.

Following is the partial text of Hitler's reply to the Anglo-French proposals designed to reinforce peace:

"The German government welcomes the spirit of trustful discussion between the individual governments. The reich will thoroughly examine the whole document submitted by England and France concerning the European questions contained in it.

"A concern for the security of the German reich in its geographically exposed situation in the heart of Europe, as well as the desire for peace, will influence this examination and Germany will give especial attention to the question of with what means the danger of an armaments race can be avoided.

"This danger has arisen from the abondonment by the heavily armed states of disarmament as prescribed by treaties.

"The German government welcomes the proposition to increase security against sudden attacks from the air by a convention to be made as soon as possible which shall provide for the immediate employment of the air forces of the signatories in favor of the victim of an unprovoked air attack.

"The German government is ready in principle to employ its air forces as a means of deterring disturbances of the peace."

STEP FORWARD—BRITAIN

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Germany's reply to the Franco-British declaration of Feb. 3 is considered by the British government as a step toward the maintenance of peace. Reichsfuehrer Hitler's note was issued for publication tonight.

The document is regarded as less critical in spirit than might have been expected. British statesmen feel it opens the way for negotiations leading further toward strengthening the chances for peace. It is admitted the negotiations will be long.

Aside from the project for an air pact, the most immediate and most important interest to Great Britain is Germany's invitation to the British government to enter into direct talks with the Nazi government to clarify the general situation.

Germany's acceptance of the plan for an air alliance is welcomed. The British believe it helps to satisfy the French demand for security.

Issues Evaded, French Claim.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Authoritative French quarters said tonight Germany's reply to the Franco-British communique on European security evades most of the issues although "it leaves the door open" for further negotiations.

Disappointment expressed at the lack of a definite answer on the questions of the Rome accords, the eastern security pact, and the return of Germany to the league of nations, was tempered by a feeling that the answer at least gives the nations involved an opportunity further to discuss the situation.

An accord, it was said, "looks a long way off and needs a lot of time."

BOY FINDS A $10 BILL AND 42 STEP UP TO CLAIM IT

WILLIAM GERITY JR.

William Gerity Jr., 13 years old, 1718 Hyde Park avenue, Waukegan, picked up a $10 bill several days ago. It was lying on the sidewalk in Grand avenue, Waukegan. He put an advertisment in a Waukegan paper. Forty-two claimants to the honor of having lost a $10 bill appeared. The money was handed over to John Reynolds of Wadsworth, who described the wallet in which the boy found it, and William was given a reward.

U. S. AND CUBA UNITE IN MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR VICTIMS OF MAINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 15.—Hundreds of Americans and Cubans "remembered the Maine" today, the 37th anniversary of the sinking of that famous United States warship in Havana bay.

Ceremonies attended by a small group of Spanish-American war veterans; by Jefferson Caffery, United States ambassador; by other American officials, and by members of American and Cuban patriotic organizations, were held at the monument erected on Malecon drive in memory of the 260 sailors and marines who lost their lives in the tragedy.

The Cuban government observed the anniversary by sending picked detachments of the republic's armed forces to the monument. Officials placed wreaths at the base of the monument after speaking a few words of praise for the fallen heroes.

U. S. FIGHTS FOR WORLD PACT ON CONTROL OF ARMS

People for Speedy Action, American Envoy Warns.

GENEVA, Feb. 15.—(AP)—A warning that the world's peoples want something done quickly to control the arms trafic was voiced today as the United States gave evidence it will fight for an effective convention to that end.

After telling representatives of the powers that the American project "is founded on the conviction of people everywhere that something must be done," Hugh Wilson, United States delegate to the world disarmament conference, began private conversations with delegates of other nations.

Will Stick to Essentials.

Wilson indicated he was willing to modify the American draft in some respects if it is found overladen with details. He is determined, however, to preserve its essentials, among which supervision of the manufacture and trade of arms is paramount.

With the exception of England and Italy, the nations represented here expressed support of the American plan.

Russia will sign no convention for the control of arms to which Japan does not adhere, the soviet delegate said. The projected convention must be approved by all the principal powers, the soviet representative said, "but particularly by all neighbors of Russia."

The soviet spokesman approved the United States proposals as a basis for the arms control plan, but said he desired to see them strengthened especially by close supervision of the materials used in chemical warfare. Also, he said, raw materials employed in war industries must be harnessed and embargoes arranged against nations which engage in war.

Chides the Dissenters.

Wilson diplomatically chided the dissenters, saying the United States had merely grouped ideas for the guidance of deliberations on disarmament which it had general support.

The conference was adjourned until Tuesday when it will hear the first reading of the American draft. Meanwhile delegations will prepare amendments for submissions.

HOLD MAN FRIEND OF MRS. STRAUB IN CLUB MURDER

Sold Him Gun, Widow Tells Police.

employé of the place found the body. Straub had been shot seven times.

Mrs. Edlin, when questioned, maintained ignorance of the affairs surrounding the slaying, and police were unable to establish that she had been at the Saddle and Cycle club grounds. She then disappeared.

Meanwhile Colling admitted having taken a "mystery woman" to the club in his cab about 1:30 a. m. Sunday, Feb. 3, the approximate hour of the murder. A new search was launched for Mrs. Edlin, while Mrs. Straub was kept in custody pending further investigation.

The "mystery woman," Colling told police, was extremely agitated when she hurried from the club grounds and asked to be driven "somewhere to get a drink." The driver took her to Barker's pharmacy, 1100 Argyle street, where she dismissed him. Clerks in the store remembered selling a woman whisky at about that hour, but when Mrs. Edlin finally surrendered neither the clerks nor Colling could identify her and both she and Mrs. Straub were released. Colling added that the woman was not Mrs. Straub.

Mrs. Straub told police she was the beneficiary of a $10,000 insurance policy on her husband's life. This policy, she said, contains a double indemnity clause, making the payment $20,000 in the event of a violent death.

Payable in Instalments.

It is not payable in a lump sum, she declared, but in monthly instalments over a term of years.

Also, Mrs. Straub said, there is a small policy covering compensation indemnity. She could not recall the amount of this, but said it was only a few hundred dollars.

During the course of the investigation, immediately following the slaying, police directed their attention toward a study of the relationships between Mrs. Straub, Mrs. Edlin, and others of a small group of women, some of whom had been present at the card party.

The attachment of Mrs. Straub for Mrs. Edlin—which was admitted by Mrs. Straub but denied by Mrs. Edlin—came in for particular scrutiny.

Mrs. Straub had admitted her great affection for the other woman, and told of giving her expensive presents.

Rival Janitors' Union Sues Hughes for State Charter

Suit to compel Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes to issue a charter of incorporation for the United American Janitors' union was filed in the Sangamon county Circuit court in Springfield yesterday, Attorney Milton Adelman announced. Adelman explained that the new group is intended to combat the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, American Federation of Labor affiliate, which he charges is conducted in an autocratic and unbusinesslike manner.

JURY FINDS HICKS GUILTY IN KILLING OF DAIRY DRIVER

After deliberating little more than an hour, a jury in the Criminal court of Judge John C. Lewe last night found Robert Hicks guilty of the murder of Samuel Cornfield, 31 years old, and fixed his punishment at twenty years in the penitentiary. A motion for a new trial was made and will be argued on March 1.

There were no witnesses to the killing of Cornfield, a milk wagon driver, which took place during a holdup on May 7, 1934. However, Charles Lybarger, a paroled convict from Pontiac reformatory, testified that Hicks had boasted to him: "I could kill a dozen more and get away with it like I got away with this one."

WINNERS PICKED IN STATE COLLEGE ORATORY BATTLE

Clifford Scott of Illinois State Normal and Miss Maryfern Martin, Illinois Wesleyan university, won first places in the men's and women's divisions of the Illinois intercollegiate oratorical contest at Wheaton college last night. Howard Tucker, Wheaton college, captured second place among the men and James Scott of Holdenville, Okla., representing Eureka college, was awarded third.

Second place in the women's division went to Miss Elna Ryan, Monmouth college, and third place to Miss Alice Anderson, representing Augustana college.

BRUNO IN PLEA FOR FUNDS TO PRESS APPEAL

He Protests Innocence in Statement from Cell.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Carrying on his publicity campaign in an attempt to raise funds for an appeal, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, sentenced to death for the murder of the Lindbergh baby, today issued a signed statement in which he again protested his innocence.

"This is a pretty selfish statement from the defense point of view," remarked Defense Lawyer C. Lloyd Fisher as he handed out copies of the statement, "and you may not want to use it.

"Frankly, we hope it will inspire persons who believe that Hauptmann should not die to send contributions. I've doctored up Hauptmann's English a little."

Text of Statement.

The statement follows:

"I feel that a grave miscarriage of justice occurred in connection with my conviction upon the charge of kidnaping and murdering the baby of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

"Before God I swear I had nothing whatever to do with the kidnaping and the murder of this child and that I know nothing whatever in connection with the crime. I also swear that I know nothing in connection with the ransom money other than as I told it on the witness stand at Flemington.

"I sincerely believe that the great admiration the American people have for the bereaved father, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, swayed their judgment against me, and I believe it likewise swayed the judgment of the jury which heard my case.

Cites Fact He's Father.

"I, being the father of a baby boy now almost the age of the colonel's child at the time of its death, feel very sorry for the colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh for their loss and sympathize with them, and it seems inconceivable to me that any person could believe that a man devoted to his wife and child as I am could possibly commit such a violent crime.

"I am absolutely innocent, and if it be my lot to be obliged to pay the penalty as prescribed by the court, I shall go to my death protesting to the world my absolute innocence of this crime. My life has nothing in it that would justify a thought that I could commit this crime of violence.

Refers to War Service.

"I believe the evidence disclosed that anything that indicated a record of crime in my life occurred immediately after my release from the hell of war and that even then there was nothing in the records indicating any violence on my part.

"That record indicated only such things as hundreds of soldiers of all nationalities did upon release from war, little petty things, the stealing of bread or a piece of clothing, or some similar petty crime. Since I have been in America—1924—the public will remember my record has been absolutely spotless. At no time have I been in any trouble of any kind. Is it possible, then, that people can believe that I could commit this most violent of crimes?

Confidence in Attorneys.

"I still have confidence in my attorneys and believe that they can take some steps which will result in the correction of this grave miscarriage of justice. I know that my attorneys were faced with a very difficult task in preparing and submitting my defense to the court. I take this occasion to express my thanks to them.

"I believe that with the assistance of people who must believe in my innocence—help that can be submitted by them by way of a defense fund, which my attorneys must have if they are to successfully carry out my appeal—my conviction can be overcome and the records of this crime kept open so that the true kidnaper and murderer may yet be apprehended and dealt with as justice may require. I ask only justice and the help of the public only to the end that justice may be attained."

About $70 Received.

About $70 was received in the day's mail, Attorney Fisher said, from persons contributing to the appeal. The sum was deposited in the Flemington National Bank and Trust company, where the "Bruno Hauptmann defense fund" has been set up. Hauptmann today authorized Fisher to act as executor of the fund.

Meanwhile the lawyer, who appeared to be the only one of the defense attorneys still interested in the prisoner, made preparations to petition Judge Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided at the trial, for an order which would put the expense of the appeal upon the state. He has asked to appear before the judge at Trenton next Monday.

"The petition," he said, "sets up that Hauptmann is a pauper and is absolutely penniless. The statute provides that the judge, if he is satisfied with the facts stated, may order the state to pay for the appeal in the case of a man sentenced to death. It is absolutely discretionary with the judge and I do not believe there can be any appeal from his judgment. The petition of course has nothing to do with the merits of the appeal.

Petition Is First Step.

"The big jump is over if that petition is granted. Then we will prepare our brief and arguments."

Attorney Fisher said the issuance of a writ of error automatically stayed the execution, now set for the week beginning March 18. The court of errors and appeals to which the appeal would be made meets the third Tuesday in May and a decision probably would not be returned for several weeks, he estimated.

NEW YORK GERMANS RAISING FUNDS TO ASSIST HAUPTMANN

New York, Feb. 15. — [Special.] — New York City's "Little Germany" rallied today to the financial aid of its condemned countryman, Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

In the beer halls and restaurants of Yorkville, the German-American area which centers in 86th street on the upper east side, a campaign for contributions to Hauptmann's appeal fund blossomed forth.

Improvised signs — "Contribute to the Hauptmann Defense Fund" and the like—appeared on the walls, and cardboard boxes with slits in the top emerged from nowhere to lure the nickels, dimes, and quarters of sympathetic German-Americans.

German language newspapers carried the plea that contributions be sent in the form of money orders to the Bruno Richard Hauptmann defense fund, in care of the Flemington National Bank and Trust company at Flemington.

5 TIPSY DRIVERS FINED AND SENT TO BRIDEWELL

Judge Cecil C. Smith in the Automobile court yesterday sentenced five men to the Bridewell and fined them $100 each on charges of driving while intoxicated. Richard Taylor, 39 years old, 6011 South Halsted street, a chauffeur; Joseph Dolesi, 29 years old, 4211 North Winchester avenue; Kenneth Hodgson, 28 years old, 5246 Winthrop avenue, and Everett Willingham, 36 years old, 4831 Hirsch street, were sentenced to ten day terms in addition to the fines. Harry Wilson, 27 years old, 6032 Kenwood avenue, was sentenced to five day and fined. Willingham, who denied that he was intoxicated, was granted a hearing Feb. 25.

Highland Park to Vote on Banning Liquor Sale

Traditionally dry Highland Park will vote at the general election April 16, on the question of whether alcoholic beverages shall be prohibited. That was assured yesterday when the necessary petition was filed with City Clerk V. C. Musser. Highland Park was dry by charter from 1869 until the repeal of national prohibition since which time the sale of beer has been permitted.

Corra Harris Invites All for Rest.

Cartersville, Ga., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Two mountain girls, under provisions of a will filed today, will keep "open house" for the friends of Corra Harris, distinguished southern writer.

Providing for these girls—Bettie and Trannie Raines—was the one luxury she allowed herself, the author wrote in her last will and testament. She described them as having given "literally years of their time during their long service to me." Trannie is named head of the house, the will explaining that Bettie "has a profession."

Friends Invited to Rest.

In naming the girls as caretakers of "In the Valley," a beautiful log cabin built by the Cherokee Indian, Pine Log, Mrs. Harris directed that her trustee set aside the place as an "open house" and an invitation to her friends to visit "this place, not to honor me, but that they may rest here as my guests."

The two girls are to receive the net income from the farms, and in the event of the marriage or death of the girls, "or should they no longer desire to remain 'In the Valley' the park and all its contents are to be offered to the Daughters of the American Revolution to be used as a memorial."

Nephews Share Estate.

In her last document the author of "A Circuit Rider's Wife" wrote with drama, pathos, and even light, whimsical touches.

The bulk of the estate was not estimated. It was left to be divided equally among her three nephews, John D., William A., and Frederick M. Harris.

"As a token of my gratitude and admiration of her valor, wit, and loyalty as a woman," Mrs. Harris left to Adelaide W. Neal, associate editor of the Post, two ancient volumes of Ossian's poetry.

Two French Flyers Hop for Buenos Aires to Set Record

Subversive Moves Urged in Propaganda.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Propaganda and revolutionary activities of accredited agents of foreign nations and European subversive movements were revealed today in the report of a special house committee which has been investigating un-American activities for more than a year.

The sharply worded report traced the bulk of the spread of propaganda to soviet Russia and Nazi Germany. The 15,000 word report also involved in its implications Fascist Italy and Mexico.

The report concluded with the submission of a six point legislative program designed to stamp out un-American activity. Representative Charles Kramer [Dem., Cal.] announced he will urge adoption of the program and ask that the committee be continued before the house Monday.

Russia Violates Pledge.

The committee charged that soviet Russia has violated its pledge against harboring groups which advocate the overthrow of this government. It reported that tons of Nazi propaganda have been smuggled into this country.

It reported further that it had authenticated charges of Maj. Gen. Smedley D. Butler that he had been offered command of a Fascist army march on Washington to set up a dictatorship.

In referring to communist activities the committee recalled that another house group had made a thorough study of this phase of un-American activities. It pointed out, however, that it was found the American communist party is affiliated with and takes orders from the Third Internationale at Moscow.

Army, Navy Circularized.

The committee found the soviet section, known as the Young Communist International, is particularly active in this country. Recently, the committee said, inflammatory literature has been circulated in the army and the navy.

The committee recalled that when this country recognized Russia that country gave a pledge not to spread its doctrins here. A month later, the report states, the communist international at Moscow advocated bringing about by force changes in the American government.

The committee charged that Nazis have used every pressure "to consolidate persons of German birth in this country into one group subject to dictatorship from abroad." The committee complimented 20 million Americans of German descent for resisting these efforts.

Detroit Consul Named.

The committee reported finding little Fascist activity in this country. There was evidence to justify an investigation, however, into alleged Fascist activity of an Italian vice consul at Detroit, the committee said.

The committee revealed it had reported to the state department evidence that a Mexican consul at San Bernardino, Cal., had attempted to interfere with religious practices and freedom of American citizens.

The committee also reported on activities of certain American groups purporting to be active against un-Americanism. Many, the committee reported, are breeding places of racial and religious intolerance, and financial statements show them to be petty rackets.

In this connection the committee named the American Vigilante Intelligence Federation of Chicago, founded by Harry A. Jung of Chicago. The committee found that Jung "had published and circulated great masses of literature tending to incite racial and religious intolerance." It reported that Jung received contributions from many nationally known organizations and purposes who had no knowledge "of the purposes for which the money was used."

INJURED BY AUTO AS SHE LEAPS TO SAVE GRANDSON, 7

Woman Risks Life in Front of Truck.

Attempting at the risk of her life to save her 7 year old grandson from being crushed beneath a truck, Mrs. Bertha O'Brien, 51 years old, 3139 Arthington street, was seriously injured. She and the boy, Joseph George, 3136 Arthington street, were about to cross Flournoy street at Kedzie avenue. The boy stepped directly into the path of the truck. Mrs. O'Brien sprang forward and pushed the boy almost clear, receiving the full force of the vehicle herself. The boy received a glancing blow, but was only slightly hurt.

Mayor Witnesses Accident.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, coming upon an automobile accident at Ashland avenue and Washington boulevard, while on his way home from a safety meeting, took charge of the case, ordering the arrest of two men and driving an injured woman to a doctor's office. The woman is Mrs. Molly Glaser, 3315 West End avenue.

The car in which she and her husband, Ben, were riding was struck and overturned by the machine of John Percwych, 29 years old, of South Haven, Mich. Percwych was charged with reckless driving and his companion, John Bucharik, 1638 West 18th place, with disorderly conduct.

Killed by Truck.

Florence Devine, 9 years old, 1872 North Hoyne avenue, was fatally injured last night when she was struck at Western and Wabansia avenues by a truck driven by Leo Stephens, 2720 Warren boulevard. She died in St. Elizabeth's hospital. Witnesses told the police the girl stepped from behind a surface car into the path of the truck, which is owned by the American Carloading corporation, 4956 South Kedzie avenue. The vehicle bore a 1935 Michigan license.

Otto Haecker, 50 years old, 2101 North Kilpatrick avenue, was fatally injured when he was struck by a northbound automobile as he was crossing Cicero avenue at Armitage avenue. Robert J. Kane, 45 years old, 2447 North Hamlin avenue, was held for the inquest.

Wyne Scruggs, 59 years old, 2600 South State street, died in the county hospital yesterday of injuries incurred Wednesday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Ernest Shang, 229 West 22d street.

The three deaths brought to 106 the Cook county motor toll for 1935. Up to 4 p. m. yesterday the number of auto deaths in the city limits was 85 and the number of injured 1,761.

DOUG SAILS WITH LADY ASHLEY; IN WRATHFUL MOOD

Angry Because His Cruise Plans Were Found Out.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Douglas Fairbanks Sr. tonight was cooling his ire in the salty breezes of the English channel as he and Sylvia, Lady Ashley, sailed today for the Virgin Islands and the start of a world yacht cruise.

Apparently angry because his carefully laid plans to escape undetected were upset, Fairbanks was the leading player in tempestuous scenes—the station platform where they boarded the boat train as his stage—rivaling any of his screen performances.

The actor seemingly was in fighting mood. Three times he threatened violence, twice offering to punch the noses of any one approaching and once proposing to swing for the jaw.

Dodges Behind Pillars.

With typical Fairbanks agility, he pranced around the station, dodging behind pillars and stands in an effort to keep far enough from his titled friend to prevent their being photographed together.

The golden haired former London chorus girl, whose titled husband's divorce suit recently named Fairbanks as co-respondent, was much less perturbed than Doug. She gave evidence, however, that she has had training in keeping her distance from Fairbanks in public places.

In fact, when she left her house just across the street from the private residence where the actor has been staying, she led her pursuers a merry chase around London's west end, driving some 10 blocks before she stopped to pick up Fairbanks.

Policeman Shows Mild Interest.

A red haired policeman whom the indignant Doug summoned to his aid at the railroad station, showed only mild interest. He had to inquire of three persons before he found out who the famous film player was. After that he sauntered slowly down the platform some distance back of Doug.

The frail Lady Ashley, who left her hotel this morning with 17 pieces of luggage and a plump black dachshund on a leash, wore a pink, tight fitting hat, an ermine shoulder wrap, and a brown suit. She smiled faintly under her slightly up-tilted nose as she patiently and calmly declined to talk about their trip, which is expected to last six months.

The movie player, whose divorce from Mary Pickford does not become final until 1936, has picked an itinerary that will take them to some romantic spots.

Arriving at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, the two will board Jesse Livermore's motor yacht Caroline for Hawaii, the south seas—"down Tahiti way," as Doug said—and the orient.

Vessel Loses Rudder in Ice; Towed to Boston by Cutter

Boston, Mass., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The steamer Tuscan of the Merchants and Miners Transportation was being towed to Boston tonight by the coast guard cutter Cayuga after she had her rudder ripped off during an attempt to force her way through drifting field ice in lower Buzzard's bay last night. The Tuscan, carrying freight and a crew of thirty-five men, left Boston for Philadelphia yesterday, passed through the Cape Cod canal at 11:15 last night, and ran into trouble with fog, wind, rain and ice.

MINNIE'S GHOSTS ARE $1 A DOZEN AND GUARANTEED

BY BARBARA ADAMS.

For $1 any one can be admitted to Minnie Reichart Pedersen's Saturday night "materialization" seances in her home at 746 Belmont avenue and virtually be guaranteed the sight of a ghost. The ghosts which emerge from the black curtains behind which Minnie retires to summon the spirits to brief life in the flesh, assume the fleshly form of Minnie herself. But the duped customers apparently don't mind.

A TRIBUNE reporter, investigating mental healers, quack psychoanalysts and psychologists, seers, clairvoyants and psychics, recently visited one of Minnie's seances. The reporter's mother, who actually had weighed scarcely 100 pounds when alive, appeared in the flesh, weighing 200 pounds—just as Minnie does.

Minnie's Ghosts Whisper.

Minnie's ghost whispered, so it was not possible to detect her voice. But her hips and ample bosom were unmistakable, even though draped in floating robes.

Mrs. Pedersen is a "psychic," according to her cards, which also bear the legends, "trumpet materialization" and "message bearer." She also gives "readings by appointment—phone Graceland 1685."

She advertises her "Golden Thought Spiritualist society" and her Saturday night materializations, and other group meetings, in an afternoon newspaper. Twenty persons were in the audience the night the reporter attended. Her husband, whom she once alluded to as "Dr." Pedersen but quickly corrected herself and called "Mr.," told of evenings when 40 persons were in the circle.

Spirits Have a Stooge.

The meeting was advertised for 8 o'clock but it was after 9 o'clock when Mrs. Pedersen, dressed in shining black satin, her reddish hair curled, came down the stairs from the floor above and entered the room. Meanwhile the drab, modestly dressed customers had assembled. These included one exception—a large, well dressed man with a New York accent who revealed himself as the evening progressed as a "stooge" for Mrs. Pedersen.

Each customer was given a little slip of paper and a pencil and told he could write down the name of any spirit he wanted to see during the evening, and any questions he wanted answered by the medium. Instructions to each were to sign his full name at the end of the questions.

Tampers with Slips.

After every one present had placed his slip of paper on the little pile on a near by table, the large, fleshy man was seen to approach it. He stood with his back to the crowd, apparently to add his much penciled slip to the pile. He was observed juggling with the slips, however, before his back hid his hands from the vision of the reporter.

What apparently took place was that Mr. Simpson, as he introduced himself, had by sleight of hand methods replaced the slips which were on the table with others. Then, taking with him the slips which that night's audience had filled out, he proceeded upstairs.

He did this in spite of the fact that a few minutes earlier he had been pretending to be a newcomer to Minnie's gatherings, although most familiar with "the work" as one who "had conducted research into spiritualism for 20 years."

Uses Memory Tricks.

It was more than 30 minutes after he had gone upstairs that Mrs. Pedersen came down the stairs and entered the room. She had had ample time to acquaint herself with those names she did not know, and to remember enough of their questions to suffice. She used the mental trick employed by psychologists in remembering names through association of ideas.

Her husband put powder puffs on her closed eyes and bound them with a blindfold. She sat before a table, fingered penciled slips and supposedly received "vibrations" which told all. She spoke in a throaty voice. Her manner was one of ease.

She is a clever actress. She first uttered a few little squeaks, which heralded the approach of her parley with her spirit guide, Nina. Nina grew most monotonous before the evening was over, but her old customers liked her. She is a little girl spirit and Minnie's baby talk when she is being "Nina" is thought to be cute.

Nina Has a Little Joke.

"Nina tells me she has a message for Nancy," the medium said. "Her last name is—Nina says 'rhymes with hills.' Could it be Mills? It is? Isn't Nina a little joker? She certainly likes her little joke. The answer to your first question is 'Yes. He does love you, but money conditions aren't just right now.' Nina says that mother says 'Joe is a good boy. Just give him time.'"

A young woman friend of the reporter had written on her slip, "where is Tim?" To this the medium answered that he was "west of here and you will see him in the spring." It happened that Tim was a dog who died a year ago.

A thin, poorly clothed man was seated near the reporter. He had explained to her that if he had not found out about spiritualism and known what the voices he heard and the shoulder tappings he felt really meant he "would have had to go to the psychopathic hospital." He now received a vague message that "conditions were going to change." He appeared happy.

Rests Up for Spirits.

After the questions the medium departed to rest before the materialization performance. Meanwhile a corner of the room partially hidden by black curtains hung from a wire was observed. A small oblong rug was over the center of the floor, probably concealing a chest which held the white robes and other paraphernalia later brought into use. A chair was placed on the rug.

Before Mrs. Pedersen returned Papa Pedersen collected $1 fees from every one. One poorly dressed woman insisted on giving an extra dollar, "for Nina," she said. Mr. Pedersen accepted it without explaining how it would be transmuted into spirit money for Nina to use in the spirit world. On a table was a combination artificial flower box and bank for Nina, inviting further contributions.

One elderly man with handlebar mustaches, a clean blue shirt, threadbare suit and square toed shoes appeared surprised that a dollar was expected of him. He dug into his trouser pockets and after much searching produced the required amount in small change.

Mr. Simpson's Theory.

The reporter and her friend stepped out on the porch while waiting for Minnie to bring on the spirits. Mr. Simpson followed and outlined his theories. Speaking in his glib, professional way, he said:

"Everything is electricity. Noise, light, you and I, the spirits, the house here, the earth, everything—just different manifestations of electricity. It all travels in waves. Lift up your voice in song and send out a plea for some particular spirit, and it will travel here on your song.

"Everything's reincarnation," he said later, continuing his gibberish, inside the circle room. "How can a spirit come to life again, some persons ask. It is through electricity. It enters the womb of woman in a wave of light, and the bloodstream of man."

Can See—but Musn't Touch.

Mrs. Pedersen at last returned and seated herself on the chair in what is called her "cabinet." She made a little speech about how "you mustn't touch the spirit when it appears, or the curtains." In private meetings they allowed persons to do this, "but in a public meeting some one might grab the spirit, and that would be a shock to the medium."

Meanwhile Mr. Pedersen had turned out the main lights and switched on a tiny red bulb high up in a corner of the room, near the ceiling, on a rear wall. It was impossible to see the face of the person sitting next one.

The man who thought he had had a narrow escape from the Psychopathic hospital was sitting next to the reporter's friend. He warned her severely that if she "wasn't in the same mood that a person should be in at church" she should leave at once.

Nina, the Little—Fraud!

The Lord's Prayer was repeated, and many hymns and old songs sung. Mr. Simpson was in fine voice for "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean." At last the baby talk of Nina was heard from the cabinet, greeted by "O, isn't she darling" and "Listen at the little dear" from the women and Mr. Simpson. Finally Nina said the spirits were crowded in the cabinet.

The curtains parted, and the head and shoulders and bosom of Minnie appeared, swathed in white. She coyly darted in and out from the curtains she manipulated. Mr. Pedersen stood by and called to certain persons in turn. He said that Nina told him to whom the spirits were beckoning.

A man and his wife and small son, apparently old friends at the circle meetings, were wanted first. They spoke familiarly to their spirit daughter.

A Flapper Ghost.

The young mother said, chattily, "You're getting to be a regular flapper," to the spirit. The spirit "dematerialized" while the audience watched in awe. This is done by the simple device of drawing the curtains almost together while Minnie sinks down upon her knees.

Many ghosts came, Grandma Johnston, Marjorie, the reporter's mother, an unnamed ghost for the reporter's friend, and one for Mrs. Crumbacker. They came on endlessly. But all of them had Minnie's generous figure. The reporter tried to get close enough to her mother to embrace her, but Mr. Pedersen held her back and rebuked her abruptly for getting too close to the spirit. The spirit withdrew and had to be coaxed back.

Nina Likes Mae West.

In between the spirit appearances the saccharine baby talk of Nina was heard. She told all about the spirit world. Mr. Simpson wanted to know if he would go there some time.

"Yes," said Nina, "come up and see me some time." Amid appreciative giggles, she continued: "I know Mae West, folks, even if she is on the earth plane, and she's really a good woman, and reads goodly books. Now, here comes another spirit who wants out, folks."

One middle aged woman whose husband appeared skeptical shed tears and said to the "spirit" of her daughter: "You're a little clearer than you were last time. Your face is much clearer."

O'DONOVAN MAGIC AND COOL WATER REVIVE ATTORNEY

Quack Trial Judge Gets First Hand Data.

While earning a meager income lecturing before clubs and entertaining at ex-service men's "stags," the versatile Capt. James P. O'Donovan, soldier of fortune and self-styled authority on hypnosis and mesmerism, was effecting miraculous cures for charity.

This was the testimony yesterday of defense witnesses in the trial of O'Donovan before Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland on charges of practicing medicine without a state license. Witnesses described the efficacy of the captain's hynotic powers as a "pick-me-up" after a night of drinking and as a cure for an incurable head infection.

But what should have been even more impressive to the court was an actual demonstration of Capt. O'Donovan's "powers," made possible by very friendly fates. As the day's session was brought to a close, Defense Attorney Eugene Bernstein dramatically collapsed.

The Eye—the Touch!

In a flash the hypnotic O'Donovan eye was upon him and the magnetic O'Donovan fingers were tapping his forehead. As the "patient" lingered in a half faint, Assistant State's Attorney William P. Kearney handed him a glass of water, and he stood up, a new man.

The cures of O'Donovan were described by Mrs. Ella M. White of Springfield, Ill., whose son, Joseph H. White, was formerly business manager for the mental healer during his lecture tours. On direct examination she appeared as a character witness, telling of the social poise and charm of the defendant. Asked if O'Donovan had made any advances towards her, Mrs. White giggled, blushed, and replied:

"Not that I am aware of."

Treatments—of Kisses!

A woman investigator for the state department of registration and education had testified that a part of O'Donovan's hypnotic treatment included kisses and nose rubbing.

Mrs. White said she had suffered for several years with an infection of the membranes in her head and that physicians had pronounced her uncurable. Five times in one week she was hypnotized by O'Donovan, she said, and she is now "a well woman." But she had not thought of paying O'Donovan, Mrs. White insisted.

William R. Smith, 5748 North Maplewood avenue, told of the recovery of an 8 year old niece, who, before being treated by O'Donovan could neither walk nor talk, he said. Now she can speak, recite simple prose, and dress herself, White testified.

Witness Gives Testimonial.

"Capt. O'Donovan told me of his work and asked that he be permitted to see the child," White said. "He saw her and worked over her with his hands for two hours. He treated her a number of times after that, massaging her spine and manipulating her throat. He suggested words while she was under hypnosis and she could repeat them afterward."

For this O'Donovan received no fee, the witness said.

Character witnesses who testified included R. P. O'Reilly, who told of the "hang over" cure; Edward F. McGinnis, former county commander of the American Legion; Charles B. Falkenberg, an attorney and Legionnaire; Mrs. Joseph H. White, and John [Jack] Jones, former operator of the Dill Pickle club on the near north side. O'Donovan was a regular lecturer at the meetings of the club.

The trial of O'Donovan will be resumed Monday. Today Yogi Roy, Hindu herb specialist and mental healer, will go on trial before Judge Holland on a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

OIL TRADE URGES A U. S. GRANT FOR SUPERHIGHWAYS

Wider Use of Autos Is Predicted.

BY HAL FOUST.

The oil and gasoline industry yesterday joined automobile producers and retailers, motor clubs, safety workers and civic and political leaders in appealing for a $100,000,000 federal grant for the construction of an elevated highway system for Chicago.

The spokesman for the fuel men was F. E. Packard, Chicago attorney. He is sectional chairman of the national petroleum industries committee, representing all of the gasoline and oil merchandisers of Illinois and 85 per cent of the business in ten neighboring states.

Declares Public Would Benefit.

"Our position," said Mr. Packard, "is identical to that of the Automobile Manufacturers' association and the Chicago Automobile Trade association. We have a selfish interest in desiring a major improvement for Chicago's trafic facilities, but this cannot discount our indorsement, since every factor benefiting us would benefit the public as a whole twofold.

"The elevated highway system, by sharply reducing the toll of trafic accidents and by materially lessening the delays of urban motor travel, would greatly stimulate automobile usage. We would sell more gasoline because a gallon for consumption on elevated highways would be of greater value to the purchaser than a gallon for consumption on hazardous and slow surface level streets.

Tells Office Worker's Problem.

"My personal transportation habits illustrate what I mean by increased automobile usage. I live in Oak Park and my office is in the central business district. I don't motor between home and work because the surface streets and boulevards are too slow and there are too many accidents. If we had an elevated highway I'd become a better customer for the gasoline stations.

"The petroleum industry could not stand for any additional tax to finance such a project because the public will not pay any more for motor fuel. Sales are already curtailed by the existing high taxes. And there is no reason why there should be any additional tax.

1934 Tax Load Exceeds Billion.

"Petroleum products were taxed $1,170,000,000 in 1934. One large operator in the midwest collected $72,500,000 for governmental units in 1934 and $17,300,000 for its stockholders. In Illinois in the last biennium the legislature has authorized the diversion of 80 million dollars from the road funds.

"President Roosevelt will very likely succeed in passing the $4,880,000,000 work relief appropriation. The motorists are entitled to a substantial portion of this for improved trafic facilities and Chicago should get 100 million dollars for its elevated highway system."

PEER'S SON AGAIN SUED BY MOTHER OF "DREAM BABY"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—England's most famous law case of the century—involving the marital difficulties of Mr. and Mrs. John Hugo Russell over their so-called "dream baby"—has bobbed up again, it was reported tonight. It was stated that she is instituting suit against Russell, who is the eldest son and heir of Baron Ampthill, but the nature of the proceedings was not disclosed.

The couple were married in 1918 and have one son, Geoffrey Denis Erskine Russell, who is now 14. In 1922 Russell sued for divorce, alleging that he was not the father of the child. He won a divorce in 1923.

Mrs. Russell appealed, asserting that Russell was subject to walking in his sleep and that he was the father of their child. This view was upheld in 1926 by the house of lords, England's supreme court, when the son, Geoffrey, brought suit for a formal declaration of his legitimacy. His right of succession to the Ampthill barony was thus formally recognized.

Mrs. Russell is now in business as a dressmaker, while Russell lives with his parents in Bedfordshire.

FLANDIN ASSAILS 'BIG MONEY MEN'; WINS CONFIDENCE

PARIS, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin won a vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies today after revealing a breach with certain financial interests. The vote was 444 against 124 in support of the government's unemployment relief plans.

"Farm and financial policies of the government," the premier declared in a defiant speech, "run afoul of powerful interests. Certain oligarchies do not dare to fight us openly."

The Bank of France was not mentioned in the speech, but the premier's reference to hostile "oligarchies" was interpreted by deputies as referring to those members of the bank's board of regents who blocked Flandin's demand that the bank discount government paper to ease credit.

This board yesterday refused even to sanction weekly loans on treasury bonds, railroad bonds with government indorsement, or national defense bonds. This was the minimum program the premier tried to put through. His original plan called for discounting by the Bank of France of treasury bonds. The government removed Gov. Clement Moret and replaced him with Jean Tannery as a means of gaining the credit facilities.

SKYSCRAPER BURGLAR LOSES HIS APPEAL TO ILLINOIS HIGH COURT

The Illinois Supreme court affirmed the one year to life burglary sentence of Melville Reeves, 43 years old, known as the "skyscraper burglar." This indicates that Reeves' long record of immunity from prison, despite numerous arrests, is about to be broken.

Reeves was convicted last June 30 by a jury in the Criminal court of Judge Philip J. Finnegan of robbing the offices of the H. W. Kastor company, an advertising agency at 360 North Michigan avenue, on May 30, 1932.

The Supreme court also affirmed the one to ten year sentence of Abe Rubin, owner of a fur store at 1324 Milwaukee avenue, for receiving stolen property, and the conviction of Leo Gasior for armed robbery.

While the court reversed the conviction of Hawthorne Clark, fined $200 in the Municipal court on a charge of operating a disorderly house, it upheld the legality of the ordinance under which the charge was brought. The court ruled the charge against Clark had not been proved.

HALL WINS FIGHT FOR $137,000 AS ARCHITECT'S FEE

High Court Upholds Claim on County.

The Illinois Supreme court ruled yesterday that Cook county must pay $137,000 to Eric E. Hall, county architect, for drawing plans for a building which was never built.

The building in question was the proposed Chicago Civic auditorium and convention hall. Plans for construction of the hall were abandoned in April, 1928, when the Supreme court held invalid a $15,000,000 bond issue approved by the voters.

Since that time Hall has waged a court fight for collection of his fee. He held that he was to receive 1¼ per cent of the cost of constructing the building for his work in drawing the plans.

No Compensation for Service.

He drew the plans, Hall held, spent his own time and money to go on trips to see similar buildings and received no recompense. His suit was denied in the Circuit court and met a like fate in the Appellate court before his victory in the state high court, to which it was carried by Attorney Urban A. Lavery.

"I feel as I always have that my claim was just," Hall said yesterday. "I worked long hours over those plans and it was no fault of mine that the building was not put up."

The position of county architect, which Hall has held since 1914, has not been a lucrative one in late years. Paid a percentage of the cost of constructing county buildings, the architect has not commanded a sizable fee since completion of the Criminal courts building in 1927.

Bond Issue Held Invalid.

The bond issue for the civic auditorium and convention hall was approved by the voters on June 1, 1927. A taxpayer's suit questioning its legality was dismissed in the Circuit court. The Supreme court, however, held invalid the bond issue on the grounds that due notice of the voting had not been given the public.

Another objection upheld by the court was that the county had no right to build such an enterprise; that a building of this kind was of a private rather than a public nature. After this decision, handed down on April 21, 1928, plans for the building were never revived.

First Baby Born in Truck; Second Arrives in Omnibus

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 15.—(AP)—A husky son was born to Señora Lidia Gonzalez de Cerminaro, 18, in an omnibus today. It was no new experience for her, however. Her first son was born in a truck. In both cases the stork arrived while Señora De Cerminaro was en route to the hospital.

BAINS WIN NEW TRIAL OF FRAUD CONSPIRACY CASE

Get Second Reversal in Supreme Court.

The Illinois Supreme court yesterday reversed the conviction of John Bain and three associates on charges of conspiracy to defraud creditors of their twelve banks, which closed June 9, 1931, with a loss of $13,000,000 to the depositors. The case was remanded for a new trial.

Bain, who now is 75 years old, was sentenced to one to five years in the penitentiary by Judge John M. O'Connor on Aug. 25, 1932. His sons, Robert A. and John H., and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, were fined $1,000 each.

Elder Bain Weeps with Joy.

News of his victory in the high court was carried to the elder Bain on his chicken farm in Tinley Park. Calling his wife to him, Bain held her in his arms while both wept with joy.

"The good Lord knows I didn't do anything wrong," Bain said. "If they had given me time there wouldn't have been any loss to the depositors."

Bain's victory yesterday was his second in the State Supreme court. Last October the court reversed and remanded for trial the case in which he, his son, John H., and Fisher were sentenced to one to three years in the penitentiary. They were tried before Judge James F. Fardy in May, 1933, on charges of accepting deposits in the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank while knowing that institution was insolvent. The conspiracy conviction was upheld in the Appellate court, but the West Englewood case had been taken directly to the Supreme court.

No Decision on Retrial.

Charles S. Dougherty, acting as state's attorney in the absence of Thomas J. Courtney, refused to comment on the reversal. He would not indicate whether either of the cases would be retried.

In the conspiracy case, reversed yesterday, the state had made much of bad loans by the Bains as evidence of conspiracy. The high court held that the loans appeared sound when made and until the banks closed. The opinion said the state had not shown that the Bains made promises in bad faith.

The state also had held that Bain's practice of buying real estate and selling it to the banks was part of the conspiracy to defraud. Of this the Supreme court said: "Many honest minded persons had illusory ideas of realty values during the period of those transactions, as viewed by what had subsequently transpired."

Still Face Mail Fraud Charges.

The opinion said the state failed to prove conspiracy and "the receipt of the deposits by the defendants as officers of the bank with the intention of defrauding depositors and obtaining for themselves the amount of the deposits and the amount of the capital stock of the respective banks."

Besides the two cases reversed in the State Supreme court, Bain, his two sons, and Fisher face trial in the United States District court on charges of using the mails to defraud.

In this case the government charges that the Bain banks were loaded with approximately $2,000,000 worth of first, second, and third mortgages controled by the defendants. These, the government holds, were traded to clients of the banks in return for first mortgages on small homes.

Moscow to Open Subways to Public at End of Month

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Moscow's luxurious subways, the walls of which are faced with marble and black mirror glass, will be opened to the public at the end of this month, it was announced today. All stations are equipped with surface vestibules, each with a distinctive architectural design.

TWO ARE SHOT AS N. Y. ELEVATOR MEN CALL STRIKE

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Two men were shot tonight in an outbreak of violence in connection with the strike of building employés, which includes elevator operators, in the Harlem section of the city. A third man was struck on the head with a baseball bat and seriously injured. One of the men is said to have been shot by a policeman.

Police said 25 men, armed with baseball bats and other weapons, entered the building to "pull out" four elevator operators who had remained on duty despite the strike order. The trouble followed.

Building service employés earlier tonight at a massmeeting attended by 12,000 persons had voted unanimously for a city-wide strike and had rejected a wage increase of from 10 to 30 per cent proposed by an arbitration committee.

The union claims 150,000 members.

FIND RICH FARMER SHOT TO DEATH; BODY IN CLOSET

Hardinsburg, Ky., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Malcolm Dowell, 67, wealthy farmer, was found shot to death today, the body stuffed in a closet at his home near here.

With bullet wounds in the head and chest, the body was discovered by neighbors who started an investigation after having failed to meet him for a week.

The farm home was locked and the neighbors broke in.

Sherif O. L. Norton and Coroner Lee Bishop received notice of the slaying and started an investigation. A coroner's jury said Dowell came to his death "at the hands of parties unknown."

A bachelor, Dowell was considered eccentric and was reputed to have kept large sums of money concealed about his home. Two sisters and a brother of Breckinridge county survive.

GEN. JOHNSON AND HOPKINS TO GIVE LECTURES AT N. U.

Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former head of the NRA, will be among the nationally known speakers participating in a course of public lectures at the downtown college of Northwestern university.

The course, "Six Views of Tomorrow," will be held in Thorne hall on the university's McKinlock campus. It will open March 4, when Mr. Hopkins will describe the government's new relief program. Gen. Johnson will speak on March 18.

JURY COMPLETED FOR WEITZMAN'S TRIAL AS SLAYER

Defense Attacks Daiches Murder Evidence.

CRIMINAL COURT.

FRED BESSENHOFER, robbery, sentenced to one year to life in the penitentiary; THEODORE BALSIEWIDZ, burglary, sentenced to one year to life, by Judge John C. Lewe.

A jury qualified to exact the death penalty in the murder trial of Irving Weitzman was completed yesterday in the Criminal court of Judge Harry B. Miller. Weitzman, owner of a chain of south side bakeries, is charged with inspiring the murder last March 3 of Eli Daiches, advertising executive.

It took less than three days to complete the jury, although half of the veniremen summoned were excused in the first two days of the trial because they said they would be opposed to inflicting the penalty of death in the chair, which the state will demand.

Taking of evidence was postponed until Monday because Defense Attorneys Harold Levy and James M. Burke told Judge Miller they desired to present legal authorities to limit the prosecution in its proof of the alleged conspiracy of murder for hire. After the judge has decided how much latitude to allow the prosecution, Assistant State's Attorney Emmet Moynihan will make the opening statement outlining to the jury the proof of guilt the state intends to bring against Weitzman.

Attack State's Evidence.

The defense attorneys said they believe three salient parts of the state's evidence are not admissible. Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle said he would produce legal precedent to show the state has the right to produce the evidence. The points of the defense are:

1. That evidence of assaults made on Daiches prior to his death comprises evidence of separate and distinct crimes and therefore is not proper for the jury to consider in this trial.

2. That evidence of Weitzman's financial condition and of firms and corporations he is interested in have no place in the evidence.

3. That evidence to the effect that Daiches carried $300,000 worth of life insurance, payable to the Thomas M. Bowers agency, 304 South Wabash avenue, of which he was president, is not proper for presentation to the jury. Louis A. Weitzman of New York, brother of the defendant, is chairman of the board of the agency.

State Argues on Admissibility.

The state's evidence will show, the prosecutors said, that Daiches was killed as a result of a conspiracy directed by Irving Weitzman. Previous assaults on Daiches and his financial condition are all part of the conspiracy, they contend.

Arthur Emblem, 44 years old, Gary hoodlum named in the conspiracy indictment, is expected to testify, the prosecutors said, that he committed the assaults on Daiches before the murder in carrying out the original plot against the advertising executive's life. Emblem confessed that he was given the murder job, but did not have the nerve to carry it out. He will be among the early prosecution witnesses.

Walter Murphy, alias James Murphy, 30 years old, who was indicted with Weitzman and Jack London, fugitive, for the murder, will be the star witness for the state. He will testify, the prosecutors expect, that he agreed to carry out the murder after Emblem failed. He was paid $16,000, he confessed, and was to get another $9,000. This is where the financial testimony is important, the state contends.

Murphy, however, said he did not commit the actual murder, but sublet the killing to Jerry Pilot, a gangster since slain. Murphy said he and London, a gambling house guard, were witnesses when the crime was committed.

The jurors who will decide Weitzman's fate are:

NORMAN S. COX, 40 years old, 5405 Crystal street, an express agent.

THOMAS MORGAN, 42 years old, 8003 Dorchester avenue, a machine designer.

Mrs. Belle T. Daiches, the widow, who was traveling in Palestine when her husband was murdered, probably will be the first state witness, it was announced.

Mrs. Daiches' civil suit for recovery of one-half of the $300,000 insurance collected by the advertising agency following her husband's death was set for March 15 by Circuit Judge Benjamin P. Epstein yesterday.

GREEK-AMERICAN G. O. P. INDORSES MAYOR KELLY

Notification of his indorsement as a candidate for mayor by the United Greek-American Republican organizations of Cook county was received yesterday by Mayor Kelly. The notice was sent to the mayor by Tom Galariotis, secretary, of 5008 Quincy street.

"The members of this organization are fully convinced," read the resolution submitted by Mr. Galariotis, "that Mayor Kelly's past record shows that he has every quality essential to the office of mayor, and that he has administered the office with efficiency, industry, honesty, and integrity. We pledge him our whole-hearted coöperation."

Take Joy Ride in Police Car

Land in Ditch

Mrs. Margaret Hurley, 20 years old, 8003 Ingleside avenue, and Gerald Grace, 5138 Woodlawn avenue, were questioned yesterday at the office of the state's attorney as to why they made off with a police squad car earlier in the day at Vernon avenue and 75th street.

Policemen James Stanton and James Eflin had parked the car to investigate a reported disturbance near a tavern at 448 East 75th street. They found no disturbance, but their car was gone when they reappeared. It was found later in a ditch at 113th and Green streets.

Mrs. Hurley and Grace appeared later and admitted taking the car, but said that they did not know it was police property. They had attended a Valentine party with Mrs. Hurley's husband, the couple explained.

"When we came out of the tavern," Grace said, "a man asked me why we didn't drive his car home. We got in and later found it was a police car."

Mrs. Hurley was released. Grace was charged with driving an automobile without the owner's consent and hearing was set for Monday.

FLYING PACIFIC PLEASANT, SAYS AMELIA EARHART

Describes Feelings in Record Hop.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Amelia Earhart, aviatrix wife of George Palmer Putnam, made her solo flight six weeks ago from Wheeler field, Honolulu, to Oakland, Cal., "for no other reason than that I wanted to," told an amusing and enthralling story of her experience to an audience largely of women in Orchestra hall last evening.

Miss Earhart, who said: "Please do not call me Mrs. Putnam," spoke depreciatingly of her flight's value as an advancement for aviation. Of more importance as proof that women flyers have a real place in the industry, she said, is the recent employment of Miss Helen Richey, a transport pilot, by Central Airlines on a passenger route between Detroit and Washington.

Bad Moments at Takeoff.

Although Miss Earhart spoke appreciatively of a few grim moments when she took off with a heavy load of gasoline downwind from a muddy field on her Pacific flight, it was the lighter side of "my pleasant evening in the air" that she stressed. There was a bit of pride, too, in her reference to the fact that she had flown exactly on her course throughout the 2,098 mile voyage although she made the flight by dead reckoning.

Soon after leaving the islands behind the commercial program broadcast from a Honolulu radio station on which she was tuned was interrupted, she said.

"I was listening to the music and then the announcer said: 'Miss Earhart has taken off on her flight to San Francisco.' And as I sat up there at 8,000 feet with the motor just in front of me, I thought: 'How impertinent of that radio man to be telling me.'"

Decides Sun Is Wrong.

"It was a night of stars . . . they were outside my cockpit window close enough to touch" or, "when I saw the sun come up I thought my compass must be wrong but I finally decided the sun was wrong," were some of her phrases as she spoke of the passage of hours in the air.

"I saw a lot of land California ought to annex before I really saw two little peaks poking their heads through the mist ahead of me," she said. "One always thinks one sees land when there are a lot of clouds ahead."

There was no welcoming committee to meet Miss Earhart when she arrived at Union station yesterday morning and this caused a misunderstanding between the Chicago Association of Commerce directors, who had planned the reception, and the Adult Educational Council managers, who sponsored her appearance. Informed of this later in the day, Miss Earhart laughed and announced that the fault was her own because she had been uncertain about her plans until too late to notify her Chicago backers.

AIRLINE SHOWS MOVIES AS SHIP FLIES OVER CITY

BY HARRY A. LAIRD.

[Traffic Manager, Chicago Tribune.]

"Miss Jones, it is going to be necessary for me to go to New York this afternoon, and I think I will take the family. Find out what movies there are on the planes."

These instructions of the business man of the near future to his secretary seem to have been presaged yesterday when the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., entertained a group of newspaper men with sections of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson's motion picture, "Baboona," while flying over the city.

A fourteen place Douglas air liner had been fully equipped with a motion picture projector and sound apparatus, and the program, including a luncheon, was carried to a conclusion without a flaw.

To many, if not most of us, a trip in an air liner is still a novelty, and the attention of the passenger is directed to the moving scene below him. However, as we get more accustomed to air travel, and particularly during night flights, monotony will appear. Air lines are taking time by the forelock to provide entertainment when necessary. All those who took yesterday's trip agreed that, while the ship had been in the air for fully forty-five minutes, it seemed scarcely a third of that duration of time.

SOLVE MYSTERY OF DEATH OF 5 ON SPONGE BOAT

Wreckage of Missing Vessel Found.

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—A story of slow death by suffocation six fathoms under the surface of the Gulf of Mexico was told today by the fire charred wreckage of the sponge fishing boat Xios and bones and diving helmets of two members of her crew located on the sea floor 12 miles off Cedar Keys, Fla.

The Xios and her crew of five had not been heard from since November, 1933, until Gabull Peterson, owner of the sponge boat Gabriel, found the relics Wednesday and gave the news of her fate to the sponge fishing colony at Tarpon Springs, home of the missing men.

Death at Work Is Theory.

Peterson believes fire aboard the Xios cut off the air supply of her divers gathering sponges on the sea bottom. He said the helmets of the divers were still attached to the metal parts of the underwater suits, indicating that the men had died at their work.

Those aboard the boat, Peterson concluded, either perished in the flames or jumped overboard and drowned.

The five members of the Xios' crew were John Gianetsis, captain; Nick Gianetsis, diver; Spiros Papatemetriou, air line tender; Dennis Alefantis, engineer, and Nathaniel Sloan, Negro deckhand.

The Xios left Tarpon Springs early in November, 1933, for the sponge fishing banks, and a few days later put in at Cedar Keys for gasoline. The boat and its crew were not seen again after leaving Cedar Keys.

Fail to Attend Festival.

Anxiety for the Xios was not felt until most of the other boats of the sponge fishing fleet had returned for Christmas and the ceremonies held in in connection with the Feast of Epiphany, a religious festival observed with much pomp by the Greek sponge colony.

Divers covered a considerable area in the vicinity of the sponge fishing banks but found no wreckage or other clews to the fate of the missing vessel. Families of the men virtually abandoned hope when the religious festival, which reached its climax Jan. 6 with the observance of Greek cross day, came and passed without news of the lost men.

Seize Confidence Game Suspect Posing as Priest

P. J. Buckley, 55 years old, alleged confidence man, who allayed suspicions of his victims by posing as a priest, is in custody at St. Louis, the Chicago police department was informed last night. Plans were made to send a policeman to St. Louis to bring Buckley back to face charges of swindling John V. Bowers, 4443 Greenwood avenue, of $150. It is understood that other victims may sign complaints.

PRISONER HELD WITHOUT WARANT TELLS OF BEATING

U.S. Agents' Captive Freed on Bond After Week.

Matthew Gleason, who in pre-prohibition days laid claim to the title of "night mayor" of Aurora, charged yesterday that he had been beaten repeatedly by United States department of justice agents, who held him for a week without a warant, in violation of federal statutes. He has since been charged with harboring Volney Davis, alleged participant in the kidnaping of Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker. Davis escaped from two department of justice agents Feb. 6 at Yorkville.

Gleason, who was released last evening on a $3,000 bond, exhibited two black eyes and severe bruises on his throat in proof of his charges. He said he had a number of other bruises elsewhere on his body. His attorney, Emil Schlan, announced that he will have Gleason examined by a physician, and if the physician's report justifies it he will ask the department of justice to investigate the conduct of its agents.

A "Town Character" for Years.

Gleason has been a town character in Aurora for a number of years. Police there said that he once served a thirty day sentence for a prohibition violation and was questioned once or twice in connection with petty gambling games, but that he had no serious police record and was not known as an associate of gangsters. He formerly kept a tavern.

Davis escaped from two department of justice agents, who were bringing him to Chicago from Kansas City, when their plane was forced down at Yorkville. The following day, Gleason said, Davis visited his home at 102 North 4th street, Aurora, stayed for several hours, and left after borrowing $5. Gleason had previously known Davis in Aurora under the name of "Curly" Hanson," he said. He did not know at the time of the visit that Davis was a fugitive from federal agents, he asserted last night.

"That same night," said Gleason, "I drove into the yard of my home in my car and about twenty men, all of them armed, surrounded me as I got out. They said: 'Don't make a move or we'll shoot.' They took me to one of the four cars they had parked in the street and one of them said: 'Where's that guy at?' I said: 'I don't know who you're talking about.'

Can Identify Agent, He Says.

"Then an agent struck me several times in the face with his fist. I can identify him. He was of medium build and had a small dark mustache with twisted points."

The agents refused him permission to leave a message for his wife, who was visiting in Chicago, Gleason said, and brought him into Chicago. Arriving early in the morning, they proceeded to question him.

"They asked me about harboring a man, but didn't mention Davis' name to me until the next day," said Gleason. "I told them I wouldn't tell them anything until I had a lawyer. Every time I asked for a lawyer they punched me in the face, until my eyes were swollen shut.

"I asked for a doctor, but they wouldn't let me have one. Some of the agents hit me in the stomach with their fists. Another time they forced me over the back of a chair with their hands on my throat. They beat me on the wrists and back of my hands with some rubber instrument.

"They questioned me every day until I signed a statement. I don't remember what day that was. I was in a dazed condition, and don't know what was in the statement."

Held One Week Illegally.

Gleason's wife returned to her home Wednesday and found out from Aurora police, a squad of whom had stopped the department of justice agents in that city and required them to identify themselves on the night Gleason was seized, where her husband was held. Although the statutes provide that when the agents make an arrest without a warant they must return the prisoner immediately before a committing officer, Gleason was held a week and was only taken before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on Thursday, after Attorney Schlan threatened habeas corpus proceedings.

Before his release yesterday, Gleason charged, two department of justice agents visited him in the county jail and, after urging him not to talk to newspaper men, told him that if he had difficulty in supplying bond they would have his bond reduced.

FACTOR KIDNAPING WAS HOAX, TOUHY'S COUNSEL ASSERTS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Vigorous demands that the three kingpins of the Touhy gang be kept in prison were voiced by the state today.

Assistant State's Attorneys Marshall V. Kearney and Wilbert F. Crowley, who scored one of the major victories of Chicago's anti-crime campaign by sending Roger Touhy, Albert Kator, and Gus Schaeffer to the penitentiary for the $100,000 John Factor kidnaping, insisted that the prisoners remain behind the walls for the 99 years the law prescribed.

William Scott Stewart, attorney, seeking a new trial, opposed the prosecutors in oral arguments before the Supreme court.

Stewart based his appeal on alleged errors in the record of the trial in 1932. He branded Factor's abduction a hoax engineered by Factor himself to stave off extradition to England, where he is charged with bilking investors of $7,000,000.

"The very fact that Factor is still in the United States emphasizes the truth of that statement," Stewart declared. "Through his alleged kidnaping Factor has successfully forestalled extradition up to now and probably will never stand trial in a British court."

Touhy and his henchmen were convicted by a jury in their second trial after it had been locked up 25 hours.

The state department at Washington indefinitly postponed Factor's extradition to England because of the possibility that his abductors might be granted a new trial and he would then be recalled as the state's star witness.

Factor has spent most of his time in California since the government declined to turn him over to representatives of the British crown. Federal officials said he is under no bond, but if the Touhys were denied a new trial and the state department is so inclined the international speculator could be placed in the hands of British officers on a writ issued by the state department.

BREMER LAWYER SUES FOR RETURN OF RANSOM CASH

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Samuel Lipschultz, attorney for the Jacob Schmidt Brewing company, and Adolph Bremer today filed suit in District court here for the return of $200,000 ransom paid a year ago for the release of Edward G. Bremer, banker here, held three weeks by kidnapers.

With the suit was filed a garnishment against Arthur [Doc] Barker, held in jail here awaiting trial for the abduction. Those named defendants in the suit are Alvin Karpis, Barker, Volney Davis, Harry Campbell, William Weaver, and William J. Harrison, all under indictment in connection with the kidnaping.

Lipschultz said the purpose of the suit was "to tie up such funds as may be in the possession of any of the gangsters when they are captured."

Two bags of clothing and $360 allegedly found on Barker when he was arrested in Chicago five weeks ago were turned over to the United States marshal here today.

MEDICAL CHIEFS WEIGH SICKNESS INSURANCE PLAN

1st Special Session Since War Opened Here.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The house of delegates of the American Medical association, which is the supreme legislative body of organized medicine in the United States, opened a special meeting yesterday in the Palmer house.

Only once before in the history of the association has its house of delegates, which is presumed to speak for the whole membership of nearly 100,000 physicians, been called to a special session. That was when the United States entered the world war.

The present session is caused by what a number of medical men have pronounced the most critical situation in the history of American medicine, brought about by President Roosevelt's social security program, and particularly by proposals of his advisers for compulsory insurance against the cost of sickness.

Fear "Socialized" Medicine.

The American Medical association always has been the most conservative of the nation's medical organizations. For years it has been a stanch foe of sickness insurance plans. Such plans, its leaders have held, are a step toward socialized medicine, which they abhor and denounce on the double charge that it would destroy the income of American physicians, and by hamstringing progress in medical science, eventually working great injury to the whole population.

But in the past the heated controversies on the topic have almost always been upon a theoretical basis. Now the administration's social security program, contemplating legislation to set up various forms of social insurance on a national scale, has made the question a practical one.

When President Roosevelt recommended the passage of unemployment insurance, old age pension and similar statutes in January he made no recommendation on sickness insurance, stating that this was still the subject of study.

$4,000,000 in Subsidies.

The Wagner social insurance bill, introduced to carry out the President's program, does, however, provide $4,000,000 in federal subsidies for maternity and child welfare and public health work.

More recently the committee on economic security, consisting of the secretaries of the treasury, labor, and agriculture, the attorney general, and Relief Administrator Hopkins, has put forth an eleven point program in which it has apparently rejected the idea of voluntary sickness insurance and plumped for a plan compulsory on a large proportion of the working population.

The reaction of the A. M. A. was the call by its trustees of the social session of the house of delegates for "the consideration of the social and economic problems of the association as related to pending and proposed legislation (and) to sickness insurance."

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, announced that the delegates will discuss six topics, as follows:

1. Sickness insurance.
2. The Wagner bill.
3. The eleven point program of the economic security commission.
4. The social insurance board set up in the Wagner bill to control all social insurance plans, particularly as regards medical representation on the board.
5. Federal subsidies for medical purposes.
6. Means of improving the quality of medical services, on a private basis, and of distributing medical care to more people.

Association Restates Stand.

At the annual convention last June in Cleveland the house of delegates restated the association's position in a resolution reaffirming the right of individualism in medical practice which practically vetoed proposals for sickness insurance in the sentence: "However the cost of medical care may be distributed, the immediate cost should be borne by the patient able to pay at the time the service is rendered."

The medical profession is far from unanimous in this stand. The day before the A. M. A. convention opened the board of regents of the American College of Surgeons, second oldest of the country's medical organizations, whose members are also members of the A. M. A., issued a statement urging that the medical profession take the lead in formulating workable sickness insurance plans.

"MY LIFE," AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY

The Armored Train—The End

Winston Churchill's autobiography resumes with a fast moving tale of the reporter suddenly turned mechanic when the armored train on which he is a passenger is wrecked.

BY WINSTON CHURCHILL.

The footplate of the engine was about six inches wider than the tender and jammed against the corner of the newly overturned truck. It did not seem safe to push very hard lest the engine itself should be derailed. We uncoupled the engine from the rear trucks and time after time moved it back a yard or two and butted forward at the obstruction. Each time it moved a little, but soon it was evident that complications had set in. The newly derailed truck had become jammed in a T shaped position with the one originally off the line, and the more the engine pushed the greater became the block.

How to Handle Trucks.

It occurred to me that if the trucks only jammed tighter after the forward pushing they might be loosened by again pulling backwards. Now, however, a new difficulty arose; the coupling chains of the engine would not reach by five or six inches those of the overturned truck. Search was made for a spare coupling. By a solitary gleam of good luck one was found. The engine hauled at the wreckage and before the chain parted pulled it about a yard backwards and off the track. Now surely the line was clear at last. But again the corner of the engine footplate jammed with the corner of the truck and again we came to a jarring halt. The heat and excitement of the work were such as to absorb me completely. I remember thinking that it was like working in front of an iron target at a rifle range at which men were continually firing. We struggled for seventy minutes among these clanging, rending iron boxes, amid the repeated explosions of shells and the ceaseless hammering of bullets, and with only five or six inches of twisted ironwork to make the difference between danger, captivity, and shame on the one hand and safety, freedom, and triumph on the other.

Careful with Engine.

Above all things we had to be careful not to throw the engine off the line. But at last, as the artillery firing steadily increased and a second field gun came into action from the opposite flank, I decided to run a great risk. The engine was backed to its fullest extent and driven full tilt at the obstruction. There was a harsh, crunching tear, the engine reeled on the rails, and, as the obstructing truck reared upwards, ground its way past and gained the homeward side, free, and, as it turned out, safe. But our three remaining trucks were fifty yards away, still the wrong side of the obstruction, which had fallen back into its original place after the engine had passed. What were we to do? Certainly we could not take the engine back. Could we then drag the trucks by hand up to the engine? They were narrower than the engine and there would be just room for them to slip past.

I went back to Capt. Haldane. He accepted the plan. He ordered his men to climb out of their steel pen and try to push it towards the engine. The plan was sound enough, but it broke down under the force of circumstances. The truck was so heavy that it required all hands to move it; the fire was so hot and the confusion so great and increasing that the men drifted away from the exposed side. The enemy, relieved of our counter-fire, were now plainly visible in large numbers on the face of the hill, firing furiously. We then agreed that the engine should go slowly back along the line with all the wounded, who were now numerous, and that the Dublins and the Durban men should retreat on foot, sheltering themselves behind the engine, which would go at foot's pace. Upwards of forty persons, of whom the greater part were streaming with blood, were crowded on the engine and its tender, and we began to move slowly forward. I was in the cab of the engine directing the engine driver. It was crammed so full of wounded men that one could scarcely move. The shells burst all round, some striking the engine, others dashing the gravel of the track upon it and its unhappy human freight. The pace increased, the infantry outside began to lag, and then to be left behind. At last I compelled the engine driver to stop altogether, but before I could get the engine stopped we were already 300 yards away from our infantry. Close at hand was the bridge across the Blue Krantz river, a considerable span. I told the engine driver to cross the bridge and wait on the other side, and, forcing my way out of the cab, I got down on to the line and went back along it to find Capt. Haldane and to bring him and his Dublin Fusiliers along.

Meeting the Boers.

But while these events had been taking place everything else had been in movement. I had not retraced my steps 200 yards when, instead of Haldan and his company, two figures in plain clothes appeared upon the line. "Platelayers!" I said to myself, and then, with a surge of realization, "Boers!" My mind retains its impression of these tall figures, full of energy, clad in dark, flapping clothes, with slouch, storm-driven hats, poising on their levelled rifles hardly a hundred yards away. I turned again and ran back towards the engine, the two Boers firing as I ran between the metals. Their bullets, sucking to right and left, seemed to miss only by inches. We were in a small cutting with banks about six feet high on either side. I flung myself against the bank of the cutting. It gave no cover. Another glance at the two figures; one was now kneeling to aim. Movement seemed the only chance. Again I darted forward; again two soft kisses sucked in the air; but nothing struck me. This could not endure. I must get out of the cutting—that damnable corridor! I jigged to the left and scrambled up the bank. The earth sprang up beside me. I got through the wire fence unhurt. Outside the cutting was a tiny depression. I crouched in this, struggling to get my breath again.

Cabin Offers Fair Cover.

Fifty yards away was a small platelayer's cabin of masonry; there was cover there. About 200 yards away was the rocky gorge of the Blue Krantz river; there was plenty of cover there. I determined to make a dash for the river. I rose to my feet. Suddenly, on the other side of the railway, separated from me by the rails and two uncut wire fences, I saw a horseman galloping furiously, a tall, dark figure, holding his rifle in his right hand. He pulled up his horse almost in its own length and, shaking the rifle at me, shouted a loud command. We were forty yards apart. That morning I had taken with me, correspondent status notwithstanding, my Mauser pistol. I thought I could kill this man, and after the treatment I had received I earnestly desired to do so. I put my hand to my belt; the pistol was not there. When engaged in clearing the line, getting in and out of the engine, etc., I had taken it off. It came safely home on the engine. I have it now! But at this moment I was quite unarmed. Meanwhile, I suppose in about the time this takes to tell, the Boer horseman, still seated on his horse, had covered me with his rifle. The animal stood stock still; so did he and so did I. I looked towards the river; I looked towards the platelayer's hut. The Boer continued to look along his sights. I thought there was absolutely no chance of escape—if he fired he would surely hit me—so I held up my hands and surrendered myself a prisoner of war.

It was not until three years later, when the Boer generals visited England to ask for some loan or assistance on behalf of their devastated country, that I was introduced at a private luncheon to their leader, Gen. Botha. We talked of the war and I briefly told the story of my capture. Botha listened in silence; then he said: "Don't you recognize me? I was that man. It was I who took you prisoner. I, myself," and his bright eyes twinkled with pleasure.

MUNITIONS QUIZ BARES ANGLE OF CAMPAIGN FUND

Lobbyist Tells Efforts to Collect Funds.

haps understand why it was that I wanted you to come down to Washington. I want to make you the golden haired child in the navy department, and, as certain other members of the shipbuilding fraternity have talked too much, you have a wonderful chance.

"Perhaps now that you see the possibility of 8 or 10 million dollars' worth of work for the Bath Iron works you may find time to come down."

The witness said Newell spent two days with him and they drew up a plan and charts "for presentation to the President."

Submitted to McIntyre.

The plan was submitted to Marvin H. McIntyre, assistant secretary to the President, who said he would submit it to Mr. Roosevelt, the witness testified. The next day McIntyre turned over the plan and said, "It's a swell idea; submit it to Henry," meaning Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy.

The witness then told of a luncheon with Admiral Peoples and Mr. Newell and later with Henry Roosevelt, who, according to Homer, agreed that the plan was practicable.

Senator Clark read another letter from Homer to Newell, saying it was the intention of the navy department that shipbuilders should bid on a certain number of boats and no more—"in effect, an allocation so they won't cut each other's throat."

Letter to Newell Quoted.

Homer's next discussion, he said, was with "my old friend Jerry Land [Rear Admiral Emory S. Land]." There followed a letter to Newell saying:

"He [Jerry] would like to see you get one of these boats [meaning cruisers], but feels as you do that when the big program comes through several of the 1,500 ton ships [destroyers] will suit you better."

The witness said that perhaps he had stretched the statments attributed to Admiral Land and then refused to answer when asked to what extent he had stretched them. After conferring with counsel, he testified that this was the impression he received in conversations with Admiral Land.

On July 26, 1933, the destroyer bids were opened and those of the Bath company were disallowed as illegal because they contained no fixed price provision as an alternative to the adjusted price.

Homer Calls on Admiral.

Homer said he then called on Admiral Peoples, referrred to in his memorandum as "the President's best friend in the navy," and had lunch with him. He said Admiral Peoples agreed to a suggestion of having labor and industrial leaders of Bath bombard President Roosevelt with telegrams of protest against the rejection of the Bath bids and that this was done. These were the telegrams which, as previously brought out and repeated today, Homer asked McIntyre to segregate from the others and place on the President's breakfast table.

The witness then told of a conference that took place in his Washington apartment on July 30 with Newell and two of his competitors, L. I. Korndorf of the Federal Shipbuilding company and J. W. Powell of the United Dry Dock company, present. While this was going on Homer took Admiral Peoples, Mr. Thebeau of the Bath company, and Mr. Nugent of the Public Works administration on a picnic at Harper's Ferry.

SALVATION ARMY LEADER CLEARS 2 OF RELIEF 'THEFT'

The testimony of Brig. Gen. Samuel Wood of the Salvation Army that he was responsible for the "custom" of relief workers' giving away produce of the relief farm, near Wheaton, yesterday brought about the dismissal of theft charges against two men. Wood was in charge of the farm until last November, when it was taken over by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission.

After hearing the Salvation Army leader, Justice of the Peace William H. Johnson of Wheaton dismissed a charge of petty larceny against Donald Richardson, a clerk at the farm, and a charge of receiving stolen goods which had been placed against George Savage, who operates a bakery at the edge of West Chicago.

Wood testified that Savage used to take bakery goods to the farm and donate them to the relief clients employed there. In return, he said, he suggested to the men that they give the baker "a chicken or two for his niceness." After that the exchange of gifts continued and became a custom which the men regarded as not dishonest, he said.

K. OF C. TO HONOR JUDGE, SENATOR AND PROSECUTOR

United States Senator Francis T. Maloney of Connecticut, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, and Judge Peter H. Schwaba of the Superior court are among 200 members of the Knights of Columbus who will be advanced to the fourth and patriotic degree of the order at the Palmer house tomorrow. More than 800 reservations have been made for the banquet which will follow the initiation.

Martin H. Carmody of Grand Rapids, Mich., supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus, was guest of honor at a rally in the Palmer house last night. The meeting was to make plans for a two weeks' national membership drive to open March 17. D. F. Kelly presided. Others present included Michael Howlett, Illinois deputy; Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, City Treasurer James A. Kearns, and Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan.

HUSBAND BEHIND IN ALIMONY, WIFE TO RUN HIS SHOP

Appearing before Superior Judge Francis Allegretti yesterday, William F. A. Wahler, 51 years old, who owns a sheet metal business at 3715 Elston avenue, said that because business is so poor he cannot pay temporary allmony and support money to his wife, Minnie, 49 years old. The court thereupon instructed Mrs. Wahler, who lives at 3704 North Drake avenue, to take over the business and run it herself. Through Attorney Harry X. Cole she is suing for divorce. Wahler was released from jail Feb. 5 after serving a 60 day term for intoxication.

GIRL WINS FIGHT AGAINST 1 QUART CUSTOMS RULE

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Miss Marion Schwing, a basketball playing Joan of Arc, who "likes a little nip of liquor now and then," today won her singlehanded crusade against the United States government's rule that returning travelers may bring into the country only one quart of liquor duty free.

The United States Customs court decided the treasury department's one quart rule was invalid and that homecoming Americans may bring in up to $100 worth of liquor free, if they bring in nothing else subject to duty.

"That rule of our bringing in only one quart of liquor without duty while allowing $100 worth of other commodities duty free just didn't make sense and so I began this action," explained Miss Schwing, who is secretary to James Berg, executive secretary of the Westchester county sanitary commission.

"You know I like a little nip of liquor now and then. What's more, I expect to take many more trips if my time and funds permit me. And the idea of this rule applying only to liquor when we were allowed to bring in $100 worth of other commodities didn't appeal to me at all."

CALLS ON ICKES FOR ALL DATA ON FARLEY INQUIRY

Senate Votes Resolution by Huey Long.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Administration leaders, hard pressed by Senator Huey Long's attacks on Postmaster General Farley, accepted today the senator's resolution calling on Secretary of the Interior Ickes for results of any investigation concerning Mr. Farley, and immediately afterward the resolution was adopted by the senate by a viva voce vote.

The postoffice committee has another resolution by Senator Long demanding an investigating of Mr. Farley on charges that his influence has resulted in building concerns unduly favoring the General Builders' Supply corporation in which the cabinet officer is interested.

Almost immediately after the Long resolution was adopted Secretary Ickes announced that when officially asked he would turn over to the senate all investigation files concerning Mr. Farley. He had previously conferred with Louis Glavis, PWA investigator, whose reports are specifically sought by the resolution.

Uncertain About Plans.

"I don't know whether the senate will make public or keep secret the information given it by PWA; that is entirely up to the senate," Mr. Ickes said.

If the Ickes reports contain material in any way sensational a stirring debate is expected in the senate when the data arrives. Democratic leaders were anxious tonight over the prospect.

The resolution as adopted was remodeled from the one introduced yesterday. In the original there was an opening paragraph making a blanket request for Mr. Ickes to furnish reports on all PWA investigations by Mr. Glavis. This was eliminated.

Bids Rejected 3 Times.

Mr. Long's inquiry to Mr. Ickes is concentrated on accusations that the Stewart company, contractors for the $4,250,000 postoffice annex and $6,000,000 federal courts buildings in New York which bought supplies from the General Builders Supply corporation, received these contracts after bids had been thrice rejected until the Stewart concern was low bidder.

Mr. Farley has shortened a Florida vacation and will return early next week to defend himself against the charges, his friends said tonight. They also stated that after becoming postmaster general, he had sold his holdings in the Builders corporation of which he was once an officer, and which is now said to be headed by his brother-in-law, Harry B. Finnegan. The charges, originally made last September, stated that Mr. Ickes had been "secretly" making an inquiry into the alleged circumstances."

JURY DISAGREES IN $50,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

The jury in Mrs. Florence Kramer's $50,000 breach of promise suit against P. J. Peterson, retired grocer of Winnetka, was unable to reach a verdict last night after deliberating five hours and was discharged. The case was heard before Judge Roman E. Posanski of Calumet City, sitting in the Circuit court.

The chief witness yesterday was Peterson, who lives at 1009 Vine street, Winnetka. He admitted he had once asked Mrs. Kramer to marry him, but said he meant it as a joke. He said that he met her on the street and that after this they had several meetings in a beer parlor at Clark street and Lawrence avenue.

Mrs. Kramer, who is 45 years old, lives at 3153 Drake avenue. On Thursday she testified that Peterson had persuaded her to divorce her husband on March 16, 1929, and then had broken his promise to marry her. She said that Peterson established her in a furnished apartment. Her daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Sapinski, corroborated much of her mother's testimony.

CRITICISES STATE FOR FLAUNTING NRA HOTEL CODE

Illinois department of finance officials were criticized yesterday for demanding special hotel rates for state employés in spite of the NRA code and the state NRA enforcement act. Frank Doyle, president of the Illinois Hotel association, which is in convention at the Palmer house, told the meeting he could not understand the officials' attitude.

"First they passed the state NRA act to enforce the code which regulates the cost of operating a hotel," he said, "and then, without consulting us, they fixed the rate at which we could sell our services to state employés.

"They event went so far as to force us to make special rates to representatives, notwithstanding the fact that this is in direct violation of the NRA."

OHIO DEMOCRAT CHARGES GRAFT IN HOLC LOANS

Accusations Aired at Committee Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Charges that the Home Owners Loan corporation is reeking with graft and political favoritism were made by Representative Martin L. Sweeney [Dem., O.] today before the house rules committee. His allegations were made in urging approval of a resolution to investigate the HOLC.

"Graft can be shown by a mere perusal of the records," Sweeney declared. "There are numerous loans which have obviously been granted after disregard of regulations. Chairman John H. Fahey of the HOLC has failed repeatedly to explain his stand on such loans. I believe he should answer a congressional committee."

Says Hotels Get Loans.

Representative Sweeney said that hotels, which are banned under HOLC loan provisions, have obtained loans through illegal methods. Other loans, he added, have been made to barred groups.

"One hotel in Boston," Sweeney said, "obtained a loan by taking down its sign until a loan was approved. When the money was obtained the sign was replaced. This could not have been done without some pressure somewhere.

"I have heard of two lawyers, one of whom is a brother of a leading Democratic politician, receiving unfair aid. Hundreds of other reports of political favoritism have reached me and other members of congress."

Charges on Campaign Fund.

Sweeney declared that North Dakota representatives were prepared to show that Democratic campaign contributions were forced in the state before loans could be obtained. He also said he had been told that those receiving loans were forced to deal with friends of politicians.

Representative John H. Hoeppel [Dem., Cal.], who appeared before the committee with Sweeney, declared that the HOLC in southern California was the stepchild of Senator William G. McAdoo, who swung the California delegation for President Roosevelt at the crucial hour of the Chicago Democratic convention.

"The HOLC in southern California has been used to build up the McAdoo political machine," Hoeppel said. "An investigation will disclose this abuse of the corporation."

Wants "Neglect" Considered.

Representative Robert Bacon [Rep., N. Y.] asked that the investigation be approved so that "neglect and willful discrimination can be considered."

The Sweeney resolution calls for a special committee of seven to be named by Speaker Byrns. The rules committee will report on the resolution next week.

The house adjourned until Monday after considering 55 minor bills, largely concerned with restoring dishonorably discharged service men to pension standing. Practically all of these bills were passed without a record vote.

Representative Samuel Dickstein [Dem., N. Y.] introduced a bill under which any American citizen voting in a foreign election would automatically lose his citizenship. The bill was prompted by recent agitation over naturalized American citizens who voted in the Saar plebiscite.

Mayor Thanks Owners of Demolished Buildings

Mayor Kelly gave certificates of compliance to scores of property owners in his office yesterday, and thanked them for their coöperation with the Metropolitan Housing council. The recipients of the certificates were among the first 500 persons who volunteered in the council's campaign for demolition of unserviceable buildings.

BRYAN COLLEGE URGES 'MONKEY' LAW BE UPHELD

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The college founded as a memorial to William Jennings Bryan at Dayton, in recognition of his last fight—to uphold Tennessee's anti-evolution statute—arose today in an attempt to prevent the legislature from repealing the "monkey law."

Ten years ago the legislature enacted the law against teaching in public schools a theory that man descended from a lower order of animals. John Thomas Scopes, a young teacher in the high school at Dayton, was brought to trial in a test case on a charge of violating the statute. Bryan, chief of prosecution counsel, died there July 26, 1925, two days after the law had been upheld.

The faculty and student body of William Jennings Bryan university appealed today in a letter to members of the legislature not to pass a bill to repeal the anti-evolution act.

Representative Cecil Anderson, 22 year old Vanderbilt university law student, announced that he probably would press for action on his bill Tuesday. The house judiciary committee has recommended it for passage.

Nazis Jail Young Baron; Grieving Father Shoots Self

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—At diplomatic receptions this week the absence of Baron Munn, assistant in the office of the chief of protocol, was noted. It was said the youthful baron had been interned in a concentration camp for lacking Nazi zeal. After the arrest, the baron's grief stricken father shot himself because his son will not be permitted to resume his diplomatic career.

RELIEF BILL SEEN AS DICTATORSHIP BY VANDENBERG

New Dealers May Make Laws, He Warns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A five billion dollar dictatorship over the lives of American citizens lurks behind President Roosevelt's work relief bill, Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] charged today as debate on the huge measure opened in the senate.

Shortly after Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.], chairman of the appropriations committee, called up the giant relief bill, Senator Vandenberg launched a slashing Republican attack on what he termed "the most amazing legislative proposal in the history of this or any other democracy."

Measure in Two Sentences.

Declaring that it granted dictatorial powers to the President, he said the whole measure could be boiled down to these two sentences:

"1. Congress hereby appropriates four billion 880 million dollars to the President to use as he pleases.

"2. Anybody who doesn't like it is fined $1,000."

Senator Vandenberg showed how under the guise of rehabilitating "stranded" populations the President under this bill could command citizens anywhere to move to new homes thousands of miles away or be fined $5,000.

"It can warp the lives and livelihood of every man, woman, and child in the land and even the character of American institutions," Senator Vandenberg warned, stressing the enormous powers granted by the bill.

"Lean on Dubious Dream."

"It requires the congress to abdicate; it requires the country to lean on a dubious dream: it requires posterity to pay the bill; it creates more problems than it solves. This is not recovery's road."

"It represents 4 or 5 billion dollars' worth of lost liberty and the erection of a corresponding presidential speculation," he shouted.

"He and his burocrats may launch whatever revolutionary economic schemes they please. When done, it is the law. They may write whatever rules and regulations may suit their flights of fancy. It is the law.

"The private citizen will be expected to obey. He will be presumed to know what these rules and regulations are. Otherwise it costs the 'forgotten man' $5,000."

HITLER'S PHOTO HEADS LIST IN 1935 ALMANAC

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Reichsfuehrer Adolph Hitler succeeds President Franklin D. Roosevelt in the place of honor in the diplomatic and statistical section of the Almanach de Gotha for 1935. The first copies of the 172d issue of the famous "Who's Who" of royalty, nobility and world statesmen were received from abroad today.

Where the likeness of President Roosevelt appeared in a full page portrait in the 1934 annual, a portrait of Hitler now appears above the caption, "Fuehrer and Chancellor of the Reich."

RELIEF BILL REMINDS OF 'MOTHER HUBBARD': IT TOUCHES NOTHING

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Senator Arthur Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] told the senate today the relief bill was so broad in character it reminded him of "an old fashioned 'Mother Hubbard'—it covers everything and touches nothing."

Senator Homer T. Bone [Dem., Wash.] listened to Vandenberg's 15,000 word speech against the bill and then likened his address to "a diaphanous skirt that touches everything and covers nothing."

CITIZENS CHASE STRIKING MINERS FROM GOLD TOWN

200 Armed Vigilantes Demolish Camp.

Jackson, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Reverting to the vigilante action of old frontier days, 200 armed citizens today swooped down on the field headquarters of striking gold mine pickets at Kennedy Flat, ran 120 strikers out of town, and demolished the camp.

The raid, reminiscent of the days when Jackson was a roaring pioneer gold town, climaxed the growing resentment of citizens against the strike in California's historic mother lode country, which has paralyzed Jackson's only industry.

Gather at Dawn.

The vigilantes gathered quietly at the Amador county courthouse at dawn. Two men, presumably strikers, approached them from the shadows taking down the license plates of the cars. The men were advised to leave hurriedly and they did.

Forty automobiles were packed with armed men. With rifles and revolvers bristling from the gunwales, the cars roared out to Kennedy Flat.

The caravan halted at the intersection of roads leading to the Argonaut and Kennedy mines, two of the four gold mines involved in a strike and lockout that has now lasted five months. At that point was located the headquarters of the pickets guarding the way to both mines.

About 120 pickets stood about the charred ruins of their tents, which authorities believe had been set on fire by vigilantes during the night.

Pickets Are Chased.

The citizen "army" drew up in semi-military formation, holding their weapons ready for use. The order to "get going" was given the pickets, who lost no time in following it.

While the pickets were retreating a shift of about 30 men men went to work at the Argonaut mine, the first time in months they had been able to do so without passing a jeering line of strikers.

After routing the pickets the caravan continued to Amador City, where the original Amador mine has reopened under strike conditions. No pickets were seen, so the citizens returned to the Kennedy Flat camp. They found it deserted.

Warnings to the strikers have been posted and distributed from time to time in Amador county by the "Mother Lode Vigilance Committee, No. 48," a citizen's group.

Awarded $4,600 Verdict Against Radio Performer

A verdict of $4,600 against Miss Myrtle Vail, 2000 Lincoln Park West, the "Myrt" of the "Myrt and Marge" radio skit, was awarded by a jury before Superior Judge Paul McWilliams yesterday in favor of Emil Olson, 58 years old, 6438 North Leavitt street. Olson, a stationary engineer, had sued for $50,000, alleging he was permanently injured when struck by Miss Vail's automobile at Lincoln and Washtenaw avenues on Oct. 16, 1932.

NEW RELIEF RENT PLAN WOULD ADD $761,000 MONTH

Executive Staf Approves Proposed Change.

A revised rent policy which would add an estimated $761,000 monthly to expenditures of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission has been approved by the executive staf, it was learned yesterday at a meeting of the commission. The commission adjourned without considering the matter, which had previously been deferred several times to obtain figures on the cost of the change. The proposed change in policy involves an increase in the number of work relief clients for whom rent will be paid in downstate counties.

Approval of the plan has also been given by the regional office of the Federal Emergency Relief administration. However, Howard O. Hunter, regional representative of the FERA, warned that his office is in "no position to guarantee funds in order to carry out the provisions of this or any other rent policy."

Downstate Resentment Noted.

The payment of rent for relief families in December cost the commission $1,137,053, while under the new policy the cost would have been $1,898,550. One result of the changed policy, officials hoped, would be to lessen the growing resentment of downstaters over the fact that all but $128,404 of the December total was spent in Cook county.

This gap would be narrowed somewhat under the proposal, giving 101 counties—all except Cook county—$715,010, as compared to Cook county's increased amount of $1,183,540. These figures would be reached by gradual increases over a six months period.

Plan No Change in Cook County.

Already 50 per cent of the "clients" on work relief in Cook county are receiving rent allowances, and this proportion would not be changed. But in downstate counties only 10 per cent of work relief families have been given rent, and this percentage would be increased to 50 per cent. Only small percentages of families on direct relief, as distinguished from work relief, would be allowed rent.

The local FERA office recommended, several points for adoption as policy, including the following:

"That adequate shelter must be provided for all clients.

House Repairs Proposed.

"That wherever practical, the relief work division shall develop projects for the repair of houses which are used by relief clients; such repairs to be made in lieu of paying rent."

On the first point, commission executives defined those for whom rent may be paid as "such families as have been proved by thorough investigation to be in need of such provision to 'prevent suffering.'" Rent would not be paid for families which include able-bodied adults who may be expected to secure odd jobs.

Explains Staf Increase.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission, yesterday explained a net increase of 249 in the number of employes from Dec. 31 to Jan. 31. He said that 300 persons employed in the distribution of relief had been transferred from work relief to the administrative pay roll, for the purpose of making records reflect more accurately the actual overhead expense. Other adjustments left the net increase at 249.

Mr. Reynolds said that by today staf adjustments resulting in a decrease of 600 probably will have been effective in accordance with his orders of several weeks ago. The dismissals were to have been made yesterday or earlier.

ROBS CHAIN GROCERY STORE.

Russell Frederick, 7839 Kolmar avenue, Niles Center, manager of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea store at 3845 Fullerton avenue, was robbed of $37 and $3 in cigarets yesterday by a gunman who entered while Frederick was alone in the store.

GOVERNOR DESCRIBES PENNA. SALES TAX AS 'SOCK THE POOR' IDEA

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Any proposed sales tax was described as a "sock the poor tax" by Gov. George H. Earle in an address today at the Founders' day and mid-year commencement exercises at Temple university.

Gov. Earle referred to the sales tax during a defense of so-called "visionaries" and "impractical theorists." He said he had no patience with "those who deplore the appearance of trained men and women in public life."

At first glance, the governor said, a sales tax had appeared to be an excellent measure for the present emergency in Pennsylvania, but he refused to include it in his tax program.

ASSAIL CARDINAL AT NAZI SCHOOL RALLY IN MUNICH

MUNICH, Feb. 14.—(AP)—Sharp attacks on Cardinal Michael Faulhaber, including shouts from the audience of "Hang him," punctuated a rowdy Nazi German School league meeting tonight to discuss the registration situation.

Schutz Staffel [picked Nazi guards] members conducted persons in the audience who took notes to police headquarters, where they were forced to give up their memoranda. Posters of the meeting warned that Jews would not be admitted. It was held on the scene of Adolf Hitler's 1923 beer cellar putsch.

President Bauer of the league said Cardinal Faulhaber, ardent anti-Nazi, was trying to revive the reactionary former Centrist party's policies.

Charges Violation of Concordat.

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Cardinal Michael Faulhaber of Munich has filed formal complaint concerning an alleged breach of article 23 of the concordat negotiated between Germany and the Vatican, it was learned today.

Article 23 of the concordat, which has not yet been ratified, deals with the Catholic church's maintenance of its own schools. The complaint is an outgrowth of the recent schools' plebiscite in Munich in which parents of school children chose between state and church schools. A copy of the complaint has been sent to the Vatican.

PROVED MEN FOR THE COUNCIL.

On Tuesday, Feb. 26, city primaries will be held for mayor, city clerk, and city treasurer, and on the same day what is called a general aldermanic election in the wards. If any candidate for alderman receives a clear majority of all votes cast in the ward for that office he is elected. If no candidate receives a majority the two high men contest again in the election of April 2, when the mayor, clerk, and treasurer are chosen.

The general aldermanic election of Feb. 26 should therefore not be overshadowed by the executive officials' primaries of that day. In some wards there is no effective contest, but in others, especially in view of the present strength of the Democratic organization, a special effort should be made to insure the retention in the council of men of demonstrated character and usefulness who have organization opposition. It is important to the city that such men should not be swept out regardless of their fitness and able service by a mere wave of unthinking party voting as occasionally occurs. Choice of alderman has nothing to do with national party policy and sensible citizens will take the trouble to select the best man for the job he is to fill.

A case in point is that of Ald. O. E. Northrup, who is running for reëlection in the Nineteenth ward. He is one of the aldermen who are an asset to the city and the city government, independent and industrious and watchful of legislation, an able and conscientious guardian of the public interest. He has been a leader in matters of city-wide concern, such as the Calumet Harbor program and the solution of the bridge problem on the Sag canal and the Chicago river channel, and has been an able chairman of the subcommittee on the trafic code and the subcommittee on the west side superhighway. While he is deservedly strong in his ward, the voters of the Nineteenth, in respect to ward and city interests, should insure his reëlection on Feb. 26.

It is of general importance to the city at large that at least a minority of strong and able aldermen, not to be dominated by party pressures but to be relied on to understand and work effectively for Chicago's welfare and progress, should be secured in the new council. The improvement in the quality of aldermanic candidates, which advocates of a four year term predicted, has not yet appeared, and our municipal problems at this time call for the best material we can get. The service of men like Ald. Northrup, Nineteenth ward, or Ald. John A. Massen, Forty-eighth ward, should not be lost to the city because of indifference or unintelligent partisan herding.

A CRY FOR HELP.

Among the institutions cherished by the true Briton along with Magna Charta, habeas corpus, jury trial, plum pudding, boiled mutton, waterlogged vegetables, and, most precious of all, his tea, is writing to the Times newspaper. The department in the premier of British journalism entitled "Letters to the Times" is a forum where duke and ditch digger may touch elbows and where every interest, hobby or complaint can get an airing. For example we have recently followed a passionate debate among distinguished contributors over responsibility for the tragic Passchendaele fiasco in the late war, and the other day an animated, if too brief, discussion dealt with the proper attire at dinner parties. Passchendaele is nothing for us to worry about, although, as we have noted, it suggested lessons our own military men might reflect upon profitably. But whether to wear a black or a white tie at dinner is a problem which confronts many a puzzled diner out in America. Perhaps it marks the often announced collapse of civilization, or, at any rate, of ancient authority, more sharply than the crashing of thrones. Certainly it is a poignant appeal that in "Letters to the Times" seeks solution of this conundrum. "I am constantly receiving invitations to dinner," writes Diner Out, "without any indication whether I am to appear in tails with a white tie, necessitating inquiry of my hostess on the subject either by telephone or letter." To which a stalwart survival of the old régime volunteers rebuke. "There is only one style of evening dress for a man," he declares, "namely, tails. If an indulgent host or hostess is willing to pander to the present day slackness in the matter of clothes, he or she will doubtless say so at the time the invitation is given. In the good old days dinner jackets were never seen outside one's home." There is a heroic pronouncement, the last cry of an order dying or dead. The top hat is no longer seen on the streets of London in the daytime and apparently even in the once elegant precincts of Mayfair the loose democracy of the dinner jacket has thrust its way like a rowdy Jacobin in the Tuileries.

Even in America only a generation separates us from the rule of tails for any evening function that included women. Now anarchy reigns. Black ties and white, jackets and swallow tails mingle irresponsibly at most gatherings and, pending the arrival of the dictatorship of the proletariat, when we shall all wear the blouse sans tie if not sans socks, "there ought to be a law" to save the conscientious, if any, and the timid from anxiety. We refer this great cause to Cousin Eve.

THE NEW DEAL IN JUSTICE.

The grain futures commission has found Arthur W. Cutten of Chicago guilty of violating the grain futures act. Mr. Cutten has been forbidden to trade on any grain exchange for two years.

Whatever the merits of the government's allegations may be, it is altogether certain that Mr. Cutten did not have a fair trial. The secretary of agriculture was the plaintif. He was also the prosecutor. He was also one of the three judges. The other two judges were the secretary of commerce and the attorney general, both of them political and personal associates of Plaintif-Prosecutor-Judge Wallace. If a court so constituted is competent to deprive a man of his livelihood, no citizen can feel that his liberty and property are secure.

Unfortunately, Mr. Cutten's situation is not unique. For example, Fred Perkins, the battery manufacturer of York, Pa., was sent to jail because of alleged violations of an NRA code which he did not sign. He had been found guilty by a code authority consisting of his competitors, who acted upon a complaint the authorship of which Mr. Perkins has not learned to this day.

Mr. Perkins' case has been appealed to the Supreme court. It is to be hoped, in the interest of decency and justice, that Mr. Cutten's will also be appealed. If he had acted as judge in his own trial the proceeding could not have been more unfair.

PLAINT OF THE SUBURBANITE.

While we crawl to work on locals
All the corn fed Kansas yokels
Get the speed.
I'm in favor of the Zephyrs,
But not for scaring hefers
While they feed.
Let's have speed where there are people
And the dough the rails will reap'll
Make 'em glad.
Folks now go to town on highways
'Cause the good trains run on byways
And we're mad.

Thus "Camooter" opines in his letter to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE published in the Financial Section the other day. It is addressed to the attention of "Mr. Sargent et al.," so that we may take it for granted that the writer is a regular patron of the suburban service of the Chicago and North Western railway.

Of course there are people in Chicago whose business requires a trip to St. Paul or Minneapolis, and vice versa, and the author's reference to byways is not entirely merited. Still there are people who ride the highways from nearby points to Chicago in preference to suburban service—but why paint the lily?

POLITICAL CONTROL OF CREDIT.

While the government through the Reconstruction Finance corporation is marching steadily ahead acquiring control of bank after bank, questions arise which are neither easy of answer nor assuring to those who seek the answers. Will the banks assume the character of the postoffice, bound in rules and red tape, their management in the hands of politically selected favorites? Will the tremendous power of the credit they control be directed for the political benefit of the party in power? Is it probable the banks and bank credit will be exploited for advantage, as power inevitably has been exploited by those who control it?

Government control is acquired through the purchase of preferred stock, with voting powers in the case of national banks and of capital notes and debentures in case of state banks.

Wisconsin gasped to learn that the government, by the purchase of 10 million dollars of preferred stock of its biggest bank, the First Wisconsin National of Milwaukee, was acquiring control of that institution. Further inquiry into Wisconsin bank affairs revealed that more than $28,000,000 has been sent into the state in return for preferred stock or notes and debentures. The Reconstruction Finance corporation has purchased the securities of more than 250 banks in the state, going into nearly every one of its 71 counties.

While this money has brought welcome relief to many banks whose assets had been written down pitilessly by bank examiners, it is commonly talked that high pressure has been used to induce perfectly solvent institutions to accept federal money in return for their stock.

A process tax on banks, it was described by a banker who in confidence and some terror complained of borrowing Reconstruction Finance funds at 4 per cent, with the only approved outlet for the money in government securities bought to net under 3 per cent.

The depression years have been tough ones for bankers. Not only have their financial problems been accentuated, but they have been submitted almost constantly to an increasing number of examiners, regulators, and administrators. The consequence is even the most solvent are unwilling or do not dare to raise their voices against a government program of which they heartily disapprove.

Wisconsin has had an excellent record for bank management and security. It will be interesting to see if that record can be improved under political direction and the banks continue to serve as a fountain for worthy and proper credit demands.

At present the banks seem rapidly being reduced to mere buyers of government bonds.

Editorial of the Day

BILLIONS JUST A TRIVIAL MATTER.

[Kansas City Star.]

Questioned closely by a house committee as to how the 24 billions a year could be had to finance his proposal of $200 a month in pensions, Dr. F. E. Townsend finally replied with a show of impatience that "anything that is for the good of the whole United States the United States can do."

Once upon a time a man of moderate income decided it would be good for him and his family to live in a $50,000 house. What was good for him and his family he believed he could do. So he bought the house with a small down payment.

But his good intentions failed to produce the money necessary to maintain the payments on the house and he went broke.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

WHAT GREAT LESSON have you learned from the Depression? Now that it's all over (or is it?) we can look back with some complacency and figure that if there is good in everything then there must have been some in the depression and question ourselves if we found it. Misses Zee writes a letter to say that she benefited much by the depression. "You know," says Misses Zee, "we thought at our house that true neatness required the fireplace to be swept out by the maid every morning before she made the fire. But during the depression we were often without a maid and so being lazy we left the ashes in the fireplace and built the new fire right on top of them. Then we found we got a much quicker and better fire that way, burned less wood and got more heat. The maid's back, but we only have her take out the ashes from the fireplace once a week and then she is not permitted to take out all of them." That's fine. Personally, I think the depression taught me several splendid lessons, one of the most important being to put my pants under the mattress at night and press 'em out that way instead of sending them to the cleaners. I don't say this is a new idea, but I had never been taught to do it until the old Depression began teaching school.

AGAINST THINGS.

I often wonder
Where they went,
The things that once
Made me content.
Gone with the wind,
Gone with the rain,
I hope they'll never
Come back again!
For things I've had,
And things I have,
Have fettered my hands,
And made me a slave.
A slave to the Earth,
A coward of Death;
They crowded my heart,
And stifled my breath.
They made me a tramper,
They urged at my feet,
They sent me running
Down the city street,
Looking for bargains
I did not need,
Missing my chance
To plant a seed,
To ask a question,
To clasp a hand,
To know myself,
And understand
That other things
Might be worth while,
Beside mere things,
Perchance—a smile.

"NEW YORK to Have Carnera-Impelletiere Fight Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22."—Headline. It is not strange that New York is going to celebrate Washington's birthday with a prize fight; the mystery is how New York knows that the immortal Washington's birthday comes on the 22d of February. Or that Washington had a birthday. Or that there was a Washington. It's simply amazing!

THINGS ARE GETTING MORE COMPLICATED every day. If you go up in the air in a dirigible the darned thing's liable to come slumping down; if you start an auto tour you're liable to do a double skid on the ice and barge into a couple of other cars; if you start on a voyage your ship may chance to sail past Sea Girt, New Jersey, and then the S O S and the lifeboats.

WE ALL HOPED we would get away from Bruno after the trial, but he has about as much space in the papers as ever. Still, it's not as bad as it was, because now we don't have to read that "at this time the spectators burst into laughter" or "as this was said a snicker went around the courtroom." And we don't have to see the pictures of so many prominent fat ladies from New York in their sealskin coats looking for thrills.

"'FIND THE BLONDE!' Is New Effort in Club Murder."—Headline. And formerly the slogan of a mysterious murder was "Cherchez la femme!" as the French put it, or "Find the woman!" in the American language. Now it's so often "Find the blonde!". And yet most of the girls love to make themselves into blondes. I don't understand it. If I were a lady and all this hue and cry on to find the blonde I wouldn't buy a nickel's worth of peroxide or henna. Darned if I wouldn't put shoe blacking on half of my hair and have the other half green with purple polka dots.

DUST OF OLD DREAMS.

Behind broken windows
Stuffed with rags,
While the wind cries like doom
And the ice crackles like the breaking of hearts,
Hungry for food
But hungrier for love,
Fearful of tomorrow
But more fearful of the tomorrows,
They huddle,
Looking out on a wintry world,
Looking in on a shattered hope—
Dust of old dreams.

FOOD MISINFORMATION.

MANY of our school children have read the thrilling story of Dr. William Beaumont, the army surgeon, and his patient, Alexis St. Martin. As the result of a gunshot wound, St. Martin had a stomach fistula or opening, by means of which Beaumont, for the first time in the history of the world, was able to study stomach digestion. The account of his experiments, published at Plattsburg, N. Y., in 1833, is a medical classic.

Although hundreds of volumes on foods had been published in the centuries preceding Beaumont, almost nothing of scientific value had appeared. For the most part, the volumes dealt with cookery; palatability and the stimulating of jaded or surfeited appetites.

During the past generation scores of scientific laboratory workers have added much to our knowledge of foods and their behavior in the digestive tract in health and in disease. Physicians today fully appreciate that a study of foods makes for a clearer understanding of the behavior of the body. Furthermore, they know of the important influence foods have upon body resistance and the maintenance of good health.

Nevertheless, as with many sound scientific contributions to medical progress, foods have been misunderstood or only partially understood. Possessing but little knowledge of what foods are and what they do, certain faddists have blamed them for all the ills that beset mankind. As a rule, medical fads die a natural death, but many exist long enough, possibly through superior salesmanship, to cause no little damage. Superficial information about foods, based upon equally superficial chemical training, has frequently involved the public in serious dietary errors.

A short time ago Martin E. Rehfuss called attention to one of the doctrins of the food faddists, namely, that proteins [fats] and carbohydrates [starches and sugars] should not be used in the same meal, on the ground that proteins require an acid medium for digestion, whereas carbohydrates require an alkaline medium.

Later, Rehfuss, in collaboration with other workers, studied gastric digestion in both health and disease, with the following conclusions: [1] there is no scientific evidence to show that even in persons suffering from disease there is the slightest incompatibility between proteins and carbohydrates; [2] in a group of persons suffering from various chronic diseases, meat was digested in approximately 3 hours and 51 minutes; meat plus potato in 3 hours and 54 minutes; meat plus potato plus fats in 4 hours and 2 minutes; [3] the total amount of acid present in the stomach when these three diets were employed was adequate for digestion. In other words, it requires three minutes more to digest meat and potato than meat alone and eight minutes more to digest meat, potato, and fat than meat and potato. One may well ask what it is all about, since the next meal isn't due for approximately two hours.

It all goes to show that the balanced ration which, by the way, most people use and flourish on is the best; that while many persons no doubt overeat, yet there is reason to believe that senseless starvation or confining oneself to one particular type of food is not only unnecessary but unsound.

Special diets for diabetes, kidney disease, gall bladder disease, colitis, and scores of other conditions have been scientifically worked out and are of the greatest value. There are also many conditions in which an accurate acid-alkali balance in the body must be established, and foods can be so adjusted to effect the result. But damage may follow an unsound dietary régime.

RED NOSE.

L. S. writes: I often have a red nose when I go out in the cold. It is embarrassing and my friends call me "cherry nose."

REPLY.

Santa Claus is often described as a person having a cherry red nose. Of course, he is out in the cold a great deal. Cold causes the capillaries lying close to the surface to dilate and this makes the skin red. Many persons with a tendency to colds, with watery discharge from the nose, complain of this condition. Dilatation of the capillaries not only of the nose but of the cheeks is fairly common in confirmed alcoholics. Protect the nose from the cold as much as possible and bathe the parts with extract of witch hazel. After an hour or two in ordinary room temperatures the redness usually disappears.

HEART PAINS.

R. S. B. writes: For nearly a year I have had occasional pains around my heart which are very severe. None of the physicians who examined me has found my heart to be unsound. I am 20 years old.

REPLY.

There are two causes of actual heart pain. One is angina pectoris and the other is coronary thrombosis. I feel sure you are too young for either of these conditions. The chances are that you have intercostal neuralgia, which can cause very severe pain. If this is the cause you can get relief by applying heat to the spine and ribs in the region of the pain.

MEASLES.

Mrs. J. K. writes: 1. What is the best way to care for children who have measles?

2. Is it contagious to other children in the home?

3. Does it affect the child's eyes?

4. How long does it last?

REPLY.

1. Good nursing is of the greatest importance as complications of fairly serious character may occur. Among these are pneumonia, tuberculosis, and middle ear disease. This latter condition is often followed by rupture of ear drum in one or both ears, with discharge of pus [running ears].

2. Measles is one of the most contagious diseases known. In spite of great precautions other children in the family will probably become infected.

3. While the eyes are usually congested, no permanent damage occurs if the patient has had good care. Washing the eyes with boric acid solution is advised.

4. The disease becomes manifest about ten to twelve days following exposure, and, in most cases, is over in ten days to two weeks.

VIBRATOR.

R. P. I. writes: Will an electric vibrator be harmful if applied when there is pain, probably caused by rheumatism?

REPLY.

Probably not harmful. If the pain is due to neuritis, massage and kneading of the muscles will aggravate the condition.

PURCHASE CONTRACT.

Olivet, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—B bought a section of land from A on contract. 1. B diverted all of A's cash payments under the contract for the section into his own debts of about $8,000 worth of new farm machinery which he bought on credit. 2. Has the machine company cause for action against B if they have proof of the above statement? What action? 3. May machine company keep A's diverted money? L. G. H.

1. We assume that you mean instead of paying his instalments on the purchase price he paid other creditors.

2. Obviously any seller of goods has a right of action against the buyer for the price. It is not clear whether this is the question you intend to ask.

3. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned. As we understand it, there are two rival creditors and the debtor has merely paid one instead of the other. We see no basis for your statement that the money paid to the machinery company was A's money.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SHARING ESTATE.

Fulton, Mich., Feb. 8.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—We have an estate which is being probated in Chicago. Also [1] have seventy acres of land in Michigan. If we sell the Michigan land [2] must that money be used to pay debts in Chicago? 3. Can we divide it among the heirs? 4. Can I sell my rights in the Michigan land to another heir without affecting my interest in the Chicago property? M. F.

1. We assume that you mean that the Michigan land belonged to the deceased so that it is a part of the probate estate.

2. It is not likely that you would be able to sell without satisfying the purchaser that debts have been paid.

3. No.

4. Yes. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MORTGAGE VS. RENT.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A holds second mortgage on B's property, which expired six months ago. A has store lease in same property which expires, paying the rent in full until the end of the lease. B served a thirty day notice to vacate on expiration of lease. A is ready to move if mortgage is cleared, which B refuses to do. A wants to stay on in the store and realize the mortgage through rent. B threatens to put him out. A is sole owner of all fixtures in store. What chance has A or B? A. Z.

We do not see how the landlord can claim that the tenant owes rent if the landlord in fact owes the tenant a larger sum on the mortgage note. It would follow that under the present civil practice act the setoff defense would be good against an action for possession.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

"GRATUITOUS GUEST."

Chicago, Feb. 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A owns an automobile and occasionally drives B to work. 1. Could A, in case of an accident, be sued by B, and [2] would B be liable to collect? 3. If B were a paying passenger would it have any bearing on the case? J. J.

1. Of course he can be sued.

2. Depends on the facts as to how much the driver was to blame. Under recent Illinois statute the driver is not liable to a gratuitous guest unless something more than ordinary negligence is involved.

3. Yes. In such case the gratuitous guest statute would not apply.

SHE ATTENDED THE TRIAL.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—I am one of the "decadent women" you talk about in your editorial on the Hauptmann trial, and I must defend my sex from what I consider a very narrow viewpoint of a narrow minded and envious reporter.

I wouldn't exchange my experience at "the trial of the century" for the greatest drama on Broadway. It was more unusual than a trip to Europe. Millions of people, including myself, have gone and can go to Europe, but only a chosen few could get into this historical old courthouse. And it wasn't only women with fur coats. There were just as many townspeople and men of all classes.

It was an education and a revelation to hear Attorney General Wilentz orate; to follow his examinations of Hauptmann; to be present at the testimony of the wood expert Koehler, and to find that Hauptmann is nobody's fool. One couldn't help marvel at Wilentz's wonderful preparation of his case as witnessed in his questions, without referring to his notes, especially his questions to Koehler. My mind and ears were alert every moment. I didn't want to miss a word. It recalled Marc Antony's great address.

One contacted the greatest minds in the fields of journalism, and radio, and the boys who help to make the movies of such interest. And I must mention the brave boys who took chances flying their scoops to New York in the snow. They all gathered on Main street or at the Union hotel after each session.

Did I learn a lot?

My fur coat was no hindrance; just a necessity in the cold and snow.

SOME PERSONALITIES.

Chicago, Feb. 8.—In academic discussion of NIRA's section 7a, do you never think of connotations suggested by Tommy Maloy's finish and recent Criminal court cases?

The history of labor union leadership and domination in Chicago bristles with significant names: Big Tim Murphy, Frenchy Mader, Con Shea, Red Barker, Umbrella Mike Boyle, Mossy Enright, Skinny Madden, to name only a handful. Other cities the country over would supply parallels.

Has Mme. Secretary Perkins ever been asked if that is the kind of labor union leadership and domination she wants American industry to accept? Or would it be impolite to ask?

J. I. C. WILLIAMS.

MALOY.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Mr. Maloy just could not have been so bad when for twenty years his men have stood by him so loyally. But it takes the reporters to pull one to pieces when he cannot defend himself.

To my notion Mr. Maloy was a second Lincoln; Lincoln freed the slaves and Mr. Maloy made it possible for his men to have decent sanitary conditions and made it possible that when you entered a theater you had no fear of a fire.

MRS. L. HOWELL.

THE H. C. OF L.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—With pork chops at 34 cents a pound, eggs at 43 cents a dozen, steak at 37 cents, and butter at 44 cents a pound those two outstanding exponents of 1926 commodity prices and 1926 property values, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Charles E. Coughlin, should receive a vote of commendation from some one for their phenomenal success.

The millions of working people throughout the United States who a few years back could afford pork chops or steak four times a week, and who are now daily enjoying liver, must feel greatly obligated to those ranking economists for their remarkable achievement.

The only blur on their almost spotless record is higher charity costs which, try as they did to prevent it, somehow managed to keep pace with higher commodity prices. This distressing feature should be overlooked, for history shows that no individual, no matter how much experience he lacked, could guess correctly, indefinitly.

With their work half done, let us pray that these master minds bend every effort to complete their program by restoring 1926 property values. Such a procedure could not possibly aid the millions who have already lost their properties, for theirs is already gone, but unquestionably would be instrumental in fattening the pocketbooks of the people who took it away from them.

MR. ORR'S GOOD DEED.

Hinsdale, Ill., Feb. 9.—I am writing for about fifteen hundred Boy Scouts out this way. We think your cartoon, "A Favorite Nephew," is mighty fine. Thanks a lot, Mr. Orr and Mr. Tribune.

ANDREW FENN,

RUSSIAN RECOGNITION.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—The writer wishes to make an unfavorable comment on a TRIBUNE editorial entitled "Russian Recognition."

In protesting the recognition of the soviet state THE TRIBUNE has thus far failed to give due consideration to or has wilfully disregarded the troublesome situation in the far east where a conflict was and is imminent.

J. MITCHELL BRUCE.

ANOTHER BUDGET.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—A letter in your column today amused me very much. In it the writer itemized his budget.

Please note mine. My salary is $40 per month:

Rent	$ 7
Coal	8
Gas and electricity	4
Clothes	5
Insurance	2
Total	$28

That leaves the vast sum of $12 per month for food—and, boy! can we eat. O, yes, I work under the NRA, 57 hours and 6 days a week. On with recovery.

GIRL IS WITNESS FOR KENNAMER IN SLAYING CASE

Pawnee, Okla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—His head bowed and a hand over his eyes, Phil Kennamer, 19 year old son of a federal judge, appeared unable to look up today during the testimony of the girl for love of whom he killed his former chum.

The witness was pretty Virginia Wilcox, 19 year old daughter of a millionaire Tulsa oil man. She testified for the defense, which is based on the contention that Kennamer fatally shot John F. Gorrell Jr., 23 year old dental student, last Thanksgiving night because the latter threatened to kidnap her.

An unexpected development of the day's testimony was the startling admission by the state that Gorrell wrote an extortion note to Virginia's father, H. F. Wilcox, demanding $20,000 upon threat of death to his children.

Believe Youth Crazy.

Two schoolmates of Kennamer testified they believed him crazy and recounted the irrational things he had done as evidence that he is mentally unbalanced.

One of these "irrational" acts was that Kennamer spent most of his $25 monthly allowance on Miss Wilcox despite the fact that his intense adoration of her was unrequited.

Though Miss Wilcox admitted she had been having dates with young Kennamer for the last four years, she indicated that her passion for him had not run high.

In recounting her conversation of last summer with Jack Snedden, one of her circle of friends, who previously testified concerning Kennamer's desire to have her write to him, Miss Wilcox said she had not written.

"Why didn't you?" she was asked.

Couldn't See Self Writing.

"I just couldn't see myself writing to Phil," she testified.

Biting her lip as A. Flint Moss, chief of defense counsel, questioned her, the pretty witness asserted in a low tone that she had not known Gorrell.

"At the time you first met Kennamer were your parents permitting you to have dates?" asked Moss.

"He was my first date," Virginia said, glancing at Kennamer. But not once during her testimony did the young man who said he loved her so ardently cast a look in her direction.

Miss Wilcox said she had only four or five dates with Kennamer. The last one was in February when they went to the Sneddens to a dance of the Hy-Hat club, an organization whose membership allegedly included only "fast living" young people.

Asked for Many Dates.

Virginia said Kennamer had asked her for many other dates than the few times they had been out together. She said she also had many telephone calls from him.

"One time he asked me for a date two years in advance," she recalled. "I told him he could not have the date."

Asked if her young admirer sent her presents while he was in school at Durant, where he is said to have spent nearly his whole allowance on her, Miss Wilcox said she "couldn't remember."

The witness said Jack Snedden told her about the kidnap plot aimed at her even before she learned of it from her younger brother, Homer Jr. She said she didn't bother to tell her parents or the authorities about it because she didn't believe it and didn't want to cause needless worry.

ILLINOIS JUDGES' CONVENTION TO ADJOURN TODAY

The Illinois County and Probate Judges' association, with delegates from the 102 counties in Illinois, today will conclude its 33d annual convention at the Palmer house. Justice Paul Farthing of the State Supreme court will be the main speaker in the concluding session, addressing the delegates on "Trial Courts and Upper Courts."

Other speakers this morning will be Superior Judge Francis B. Allegretti of Chicago, discussing juvenile crime, and A. J. Harno, dean of the University of Illinois law school, who will speak on social undercurrents.

Former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen discussed changing world conditions at yesterday's session.

A majority of public officials, he said, are so far removed from the people they govern that they become mere names. As a result of this distance officials are apt to fall into disrepute.

"It is mainly to you men," he said, "who probably come in closer contact with your constituents than most officials, and as a result are known and respected by them, that we must look for that result."

Court Clerk Bates Takes Job with Surface Lines

Officials of the Chicago Surface Lines announced yesterday that Charles M. Bates, clerk of the United States District court here for ten years, has accepted a position with the company. Mr. Bates will assume his new duties as soon as his successor as court clerk is appointed.

Auto Dealer Fined $2,500 for Evasion of Taxes

Harry J. Felz, owner of the motor sales company bearing his name at 1132 Diversey parkway, was fined $2,500 yesterday by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan for income evasion. Felz pleaded guilty to defrauding the government of $2,000 during the years 1927 and 1928.

New Cap Labels for Milk Bottles

Today consumers will have delivered to their doorsteps milk, cream and buttermilk in bottles with cap labels similar to the above, as required by the new city milk ordinance. 1. Label on caps of regular bottled milk, containing not less than 3.25 per cent butterfat. 2. Churned buttermilk has this kind of a label on the cap. 3. Label on cream containing 18 to 22 per cent butterfat. 4. Label on cream containing more than 22 per cent butterfat, exact percentage of butterfat indicated as shown on this cap.

36 POLISH VETS ENTER 5TH DAY OF HUNGER STRIKE

45 Canadians, 100 Jews Also Refuse Food.

BYDGOSZCZ, Poland, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Despite action by city authorities, 36 members of the Polish Insurgents' league refused today to abandon a hunger strike they began Monday.

Protesting against the government's inability to provide employment for fighters for national independence, the 36 locked themselves in their local headquarters Monday and refused food.

Their condition became so serious today that city officials sent medical aid. Two of the men, all of whom have families, were taken to a hospital in a serious condition. The others refused to take nourishment and said they would not abandon the strike.

45 Strike in Canada.

BLAIRMORE, Alta., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Forty-five single unemployed men of this mining town squatted in the town hall today on a hunger strike they said would last until something was done toward their relief. They started their fast last night.

The men had appeared before a council meeting and secured the promise that two councilors will visit Edmonton and plead their case before the Alberta relief commission, which insists the men must go to relief camps.

Jewish Strike Continues.

ACRE, Palestine, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Some of the 80 hunger strikers in Crusader fortress prison, held on charges of illegal entry into Palestine, were released today under bail, having completed their original sentences.

They were freed on orders of Sir Arthur Wauchope, high commissioner, in response to an avalanche of criticism by Jewish leaders.

The remainder of the 80, who began the hunger strike Tuesday, said they are "prepared to die unless our protest is heeded." They have refused to reveal their countries of origin to forestall deportation by immigration authorities.

What disposition will be made of the prisoners who were freed has not been decided.

50,000 TO MARK LITHUANIA'S 17TH BIRTHDAY TODAY

Fifty thousand Chicagoans of Lithuanian descent today will join in celebrating Lithuania's "July Fourth," commemorating the formation of the republic of Lithuania seventeen years ago. Eleven meetings will be held in halls throughout the city today. Tomorrow a massmeeting in the Lithuanian auditorium, 3133 South Halsted street, will climax the celebration. The main speaker at the closing meeting will be Antanas Kalvaitis, Lithuanian consul in Chicago.

French Jobless Total Rises 9,474 in Week to 496,900

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 15.—The dizzy pace of unemployment continues unabated, according to figures issued today. On Feb. 9 there were 496,900 registered fully unemployed. This is an increase of 9,474 over the previous week and 153,185, or about 44 per cent, over the corresponding week of 1934. Only 12 foreign workers were permitted to enter France in the week ending Feb. 9, while 562 were deported.

Tells of Regulations

Determined to prevent the sale of stale milk, the Chicago board of health today will begin requiring the labeling of bottle caps under provisions of the simplified milk ordinance passed by the city council on Jan. 4. Consumers will find the newly labeled caps on the bottles of milk, cream, and buttermilk delivered to their homes this morning.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board, in announcing the enforcement of the new regulation, advised consumers in homes, hotels, clubs, and restaurants to look at the milk cap on every bottle.

"The cap will tell you when the milk is to be sold," he said. "In accordance with the provisions of the new ordinance, all milk and milk products sold in Chicago are to be fresh, safe, pure, and wholesome.

According to Dr. Bundesen's announcement, the wording on the bottle cap, in addition to the name and address of the distributor and the name of the product, must now read "To Be Sold Before Noon." Immediately after this the day of the week is printed in letters 3/16 of an inch high.

"No milk or milk products should be accepted from distributors after the time stated on the cap," Dr. Bundesen warned.

The kinds of dairy products whose bottles must carry dated labels in addition to the name and address of the company and the permit number are pasteurized milk, pasteurized cream, 30 per cent pasteurized cream, pasteurized buttermilk, pasteurized cultured buttermilk, and pasteurized vitamin D milk.

SUSPEND GIRL AT WELLESLEY; RECOVER BOOKS

Wellesley, Mass., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A Wellesley college girl has been suspended for the remainder of the school year and the student body has been barred from the Brooks room at the college library following disappearance of priceless volumes.

The student, whose identity is withheld, was suspended, according to President Ellen Fitz Pendleton, after several books, taken from the library, were found in her room.

"These books were noticed," said Miss Pendleton, "because three of them had tags showing they belonged on reserved shelves and four others were found, not one of which had been charged."

One of the books had been missing since last year and the object of a wide search.

ISSUES WARANTS FOR OFFICIALS OF TWO BREWERIES

Municipal Judge Joseph A. Graber issued warants yesterday for officials of two brewing companies under the section of the Illinois dram shop act which denies brewers the right to lend or give money or fixtures to tavern owners. Those named are Frank Fox, president, and William J. Fox, secretary of the Peter Fox Brewing company, 2600 Monroe street; and Edward Landsberg, president, and Paul Immel, secretary of the United States Brewing company, 2519 Elston avenue. The Fox officials are alleged to have donated a beer coil for use in a tavern at 546 De Koven street, while the U. S. company is charged with building an outdoor beer garden at a tavern at 1200 South Cicero avenue.

KING OF ETHIOPIA URGES ITALY TO ARBITRATE ROW

Says Peace Is Essential to His Country.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia tonight reiterated his desire for a peaceful settlement of the dispute with Italy in a special statement to the Addis Ababa correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph. He said amity with his neighbors is essential to the progress of his country.

"The position which my government has held throughout the present dispute," the emperor said, "has been that the incident at Ualual and Italy's subsequent attitude have rendered impracticable any endeavor to settle by direct negotiations.

Bound to Arbitrate.

"Both parties are bound by the solemn treaty of 1928 to submit a dispute to arbitration. Support was given our viewpoint by England and France at a recent meeting of the council of the league of nations which resulted in my agreeing to renew direct negotiations. This was on the distinct and implied understanding that both parties were under an obligation to facilitate formalities leading to arbitration.

"The council recognized that the nearness of the opposing forces constituted a danger of further incidents and I hope that arrangements for arbitration will shortly be advanced by an agreement to establish a neutral zone between Ualual and Gerlogubi.

"While determined to keep its territory intact, Ethiopia has at the same time the greatest need to preserve amity with its neighbors. Without assured peace on the frontiers my government cannot use its energies and resources to the full in the task of raising the standard of life of the Ethiopian people."

Italian Troops Sail Tonight.

ROME, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Italy's military machine tonight continued without interruption to turn out soldiers for possible hostilities in Africa as another note arrived from Ethiopia's emperor accusing Italy of frontier aggression.

Shortly after the note was issued by the Ethiopian chargé d'affaires, Negradas Yesus, Italian officials confirmed reports that Ethiopians occupied Silar, near Ualual, on the disputed frontier between Ethiopia and Italy's African colonies.

Emperor Haile Selassie's note—the second vigorous denial he has issued in recent border conflicts—said none of his troops had been concentrated on the border.

Meanwhile the nation's supreme defense council met for the fourth consecutive day.

The first detachments of the projected expeditionary force were ready to sail from southern Italian ports tomorrow night, and arrangements were being made to send other contingents along in as rapid succession as may be necessary. The total number of men en route to Eritrea and Italian Somaliland may reach 15,000 by the end of the week.

Fugitive Chicago Slaying Suspect Captured in Ohio

Morris Rappaport, who for four years has been a fugitive on a charge of slaying Harry Silverstein during a quarrel, has been under arrest since last Saturday in Mansfield, O., police here were informed yesterday. He was seized on a larceny charge under the alias of Milton Stein. Lieut. Otto Erlanson said he would seek immediately to extradite Rappaport. Silverstein, son of Benjamin Silverstein, clerk in the marriage license bureau, was slain during a quarrel behind the Central Park theater, 3535 Roosevelt road, on Jan. 4, 1931.

MACON OFFICER SAYS LOOSE FIN DOOMED AIRSHIP

Structural Failure Is Blamed for Crash.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A naval board investigating the doom of the dirigible Macon was told today the disaster resulted from a structural failure where the upper fin on the craft joined the frame at the rear of the gigantic "sky queen."

This information was given by Chief Boatswain's Mate Robert J. Davis who had completed an inspection of the airship's stern only a few moments before it plunged to its destruction in the Pacific ocean and the death of two members of the crew of 83.

Loosened from Frame.

"It sounded to me as if the fin structure loosened from the frame at the extreme aft portion of the ship," said the petty officer. "Immediately there was felt a rush of gas and the ship lurched as if struck by a sudden severe gust of wind.

"It sounded like the structure was pulling out where the fin was bolted to the frame. Undoubtedly the structure tore the gas cell. The fin was carried away."

The officer said that about two hours before the crash, which occurred Tuesday evening off Point Sur, Cal., he directed his men to watch the fin surfaces, the control wires and gas cells after the Macon hit some rough weather.

"It began to rain a little," the witness continued. "I noticed a few leaks in the surface and that the cell netting holding the gas cell was broken. We repaired the leak with cord in about ten minutes. Then a bad leak started in another place and we lashed a canvas bucket to catch the rain water that was coming in.

Hears a Crosh.

"A little after 5 p. m. I heard a crash as I was inspecting the forward part of the top fin. I noticed a rush of gas. I called the control car. The phone was busy. Gas was rushing into the ship.

"We went forward and I sent the airplane crew to the hangar but the ship was at such an angle we delayed launching the planes."

Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the Macon and a survivor of the Akron disaster, was one of the 65 navy lieutenant commanders President Roosevelt today promoted to the rank of commander. Commander Wiley was designated an "interested spectator" by the naval court of inquiry to permit his presence throughout the hearing which is being held aboard the U. S. S. Tennessee at anchor in San Francisco bay.

ENZO CHARGES IL DUCE PLANS TO SEND HIM TO WAR

ROME, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Enzo Fiermonte, boxer, said tonight Italian officials clearly intimated to him that a possible call for army service in Ethiopia was the only reason his passport was being withheld. The passport was taken up several days ago.

Fiermonte, referring to the tangles involving him, his wife, the former Mrs. Madeline Force Astor Dick, and his first wife, Tosca Fiermonte, said:

"My wife and I have both made mistakes in the past, but we have reached an understanding. We were going to start anew when this war business interfered. As soon as my papers are returned we will start our second honeymoon and go back to America."

Old Age Pension Bill Wins in Oregon House, 32 to 26

Salem, Ore., Feb. 15.—(AP)—An old age pension bill today passed the house of the Oregon legislature, 32 to 26, and was sent to the senate. The bill would assess employers and employés two cents each a day to build up an old age pension fund, and would give persons over 70 years of age $45 a month maximum.

LAUNCH CHICAGO DRIVE ON INCOME TAX DELINQUENTS

With the March 15 deadline for filing income tax returns for 1934 only a month away, federal officials yesterday began a drive against income tax delinquents of recent years in the Chicago district. They estimated that some 5,000 persons would be interviewed as a part of the national campaign to collect millions of dollars claimed to be due the government.

Acting on orders of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, C. W. Herrick, chief internal revenue agent in Chicago, assigned forty agents to conduct the investigation under the supervision of Carter H. Harrison, collector of revenue. All taxpayers who have been delinquent in filing returns or making payments on returns filed will be given an opportunity to rectify these shortcomings, it was said.

DIES AFTER HEART ATTACK.

Manert Algminowics, 56 years old, collapsed of a heart attack in his home at 3564 South Halsted street yesterday, and died a few hours later at the County hospital.

BUNDESEN NAMES 200 TO INSPECT DISH WASHING

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, yesterday appointed 200 men from the relief rolls as inspectors of dish washing in the city's 50,000 food establishments. He announced the measure was designed to help stop the spread of contagious and infectious diseases. There are only 15 regular inspectors, Dr Bundesen said. The new men immediately will inspect all restaurants.

SATURDAY NEWS OF NEW BOOKS

Gingrich Pens a Novel Novel That's Amusing

"Cast Down the Laurel" by Editor of Esquire.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Cast Down the Laurel," by Arnold Gingrich. [Knopf.] Published on Monday.

ANOTHER Chicagoan is added this week to the roster of "I Will" novelists. Arnold Gingrich, editor of Esquire, has certainly had his own way with "Cast Down the Laurel," and it is for the quality of individuality that the huzzahs are resounding.

Mr. Gingrich has thought out an amusing technical method of telling his story which gives him not only the flexibility of two points of view but also the chance to make fun of one of them, which is always intriguing.

The story is of a great pianist who sought interpretive perfection so passionately that he got into the habit of stopping in the midst of a musical phrase to play it over and over . . . until one day in a concert in Chicago he walked out on the whole business and by stages settled down in a little Michigan town with a music school to brood over and "customers" and one brilliant pupil to hatch. What happened in the group that surrounded him, his relations to them, to the town, to the world at large, and in particular to his wife and his favorite pupil are the plot of the book. Good music stuff, very, but just for the musical background nobody would be tooting the first bars of "Hail the Conquering Hero Comes."

What all of us professional readers like about "Cast Down the Laurel" is not so much the material as how the author uses it. The first part of the book sounds exactly like that conversational letter writing that certain kinds of personally inarticulate human beings hurl about them . . . the kind who can sit down and write a letter with pleasure when talking the same thing face to face is a chore. There is nothing more alive, more real than that sort of writing when it is well done—and nothing rarer, for, somehow, when any one starts to write a BOOK the spontaneity goes by the boards.

Mr. Gingrich hasn't lost his in the first and last parts of this book. His style is as alive and as colloquial and as vivid as the note that your most admired newspaper man writes to his most appreciative buddy . . . and it has the same frankness about it. In a style which is so artless that it is an art, Mr. Gingrich sets down the facts about the life of his hero and the lives that impinge on his. He is setting them down for the use of an author friend who remembered that he had once "in casual conversation" given that author "a swell idea for a book."

One of the curses of authoring is the number of swell ideas for books that everybody is always trying to give authors. Everybody thinks he or she knows a story that is much better than anything the author has ever used and only an act of God like a case of laryngitis can silence everybody.

Mr. Gingrich, in the character of the character writing the first and last parts of "Cast Down the Laurel," is not one of those, but a friend who, at the request of the author, really tries to put into working notes the characteristics of a bizarre group—because, as he says, "I'm no nearer writing it [the story of Karel Telec, pianist] than I was ten years ago, if as near. A year of writing advertising copy might be an apprenticeship to a writing career, as they call it, but ten years of writing advertising copy ought to constitute a definite disavowal of both ability and intent to write anything else." He "talks" out the whole group, making the reader see them all plainly and some of them vividly.

The second section of the book is the novel which was written from those notes. It is a terrible novel, bad enough to be a travesty of the material, worse even than the most popular serials destined for manicure parlors and dentists' waiting rooms.

The third section is again a long letter to the "author" which begins "Well, I've read your damn book and I don't like your ten cent store brand of psychology. . . . I grant you that your story does stem, basically, from the stuff I turned over to you, and yet it seems to me that you have missed most of it completely and cheapened all the rest. . . . If you weren't going to write a character novel, then why the hell did you bother to ask me for this character whose story once interested you. . . . It never occurred to me that you would feel you had to horse them around to make a story out of them. That's what you've done and that's about all you've done. You've made a story, but it isn't their story—it certainly isn't the story I gave you."

And then he goes on to tell the truth about the characters and what really became of them. And he knows, because, although he had not told the author so when he wrote his first dossiers, he is one of them.

It's a very ingenious way of telling a story. It gives Mr. Gingrich a swell chance to make fun of the modern novel [although a novel as bad as "Apollo's Young Widow" would be hard to find], and it also gives him a chance to surprise his readers, which is one of the best circus performances in novel writing.

"Cast Down the Laurel" is not, as has been stage-whispered, the great surprise of the year. But it is that rare phenomenon, a novel novel.

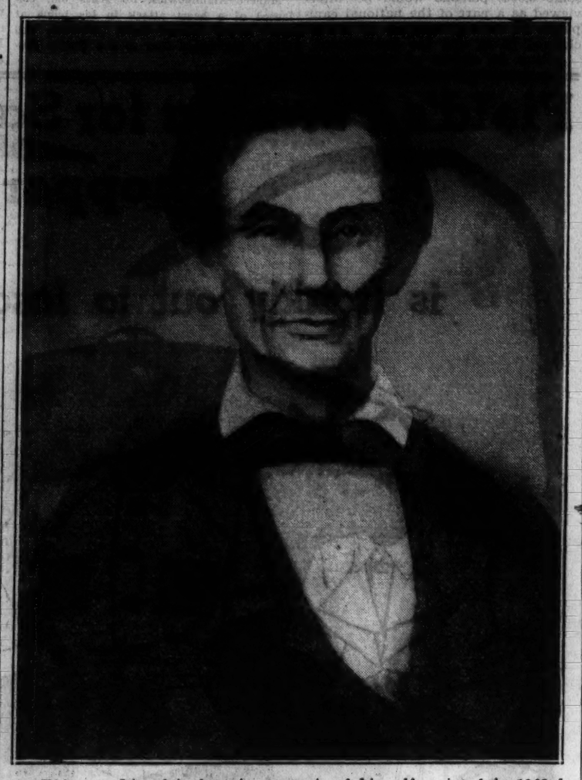
Uses New Material on Life of Thaddeus Stevens

In his work on a new biography of "Thaddeus Stevens" [Telegraph Press, Harrisburg, Pa.], Thomas Frederick Woodley had the help of recently discovered material, and he delved in previously unused newspaper reports of the old commoner's life before he was 50. Mr. Woodley thus achieves a new perspective on a controversial character.

LINCOLN'S FAVORITE PORTRAIT



This was Lincoln's favorite portrait of himself, painted in 1860 by George Frederick Wright. It is part of the William E. Barton collection of Lincolniana now in the Lincoln library at the University of Chicago. At the dedication of the collection four impressive speeches were made by William E. Dodd, Carl Sandburg, Lloyd Lewis, and M. Llewellyn Rainey, librarian of the collection, on "If Lincoln Had Lived." They are published by the University Press in celebration of the great man's birthday. The illustrations include this portrait.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK.

Suddenly the old timers are covering themselves with glory. Anthony Wynne has never before written such a good murder story as "The Toll House Murder" [Lippincott]. Col. Wickham, chief of the C. I. D., is ready to throw up his job so mysterious are the deaths that tread on each other's heels, and even Dr. Hailey is pretty discouraged.

And no wonder. No killer ever worked so neatly before, and no less neat is Mr. Wynne in describing that work. I don't see how a mystery story could have a better plot. It all centers around a great British shipping line and one bit of evidence is added to another quietly, skilfully, convincingly, until it's all explained by the murderer himself in such a way that his multiple crime seems justifiable.

The reign of terror begins with the death in a moving automobile, in which he sits alone, of the British shipping magnate. There seems no reason for the murder and no possible clew. Even the stalwart police are frightened by all that ensues, but though the material is sensational it is handled with such calm decision that the book is more than just another detective story.

It has solid qualities of style, character drawing, and inevitability that raise it far above the average and produce a really distinguished book. Dr. Hailey doesn't put on any airs, either. He goes quietly about his job with no eccentricity and no false motions, and his large sympathy at the swift and shocking end will bring new readers and admirers to his further exploits.

Exciting Story of Gypsy Love—That's 'Romany'

Lady Eleanor Smith Puts Zest in Writing.

"Romany," by Lady Eleanor Smith [Bobbs Merrill].

LIKE her former success, "Flamenco," Lady Eleanor Smith's latest novel, "Romany," is about gypsies. Her first and startlingly popular tale, "Red Wagon," you remember, hinted that gypsies were alluring to its author. "Flamenco" confirmed that hint. "Romany" makes it undeniable.

There is little except the author's interest in a romantic people and her natural youthful zest in writing to distinguish "Romany" from many another romance of a Cinderella or many another tale of passionate love battling with sedate. But on account of the author's excitement in her work "Romany" is an exciting book.

It is the story of Hessina, a gypsy girl who dances with the same passion that she falls in love with Brazil, a gypsy animal trainer. Brazil gives her the traditional kiss of betrothal, says he will be back in six months to marry her and disappears.

Escaping from the convent where she has been put by the authorities, she dances in a den in Seville, is snatched up by a London theatrical producer and taken to England to become the toast of intellectual London. There she meets a man who is the typical fictional Englishman of middle age, with scholarly interests and a kindly spirit, and who has sense enough to make his love a cushion for her comfort rather than a goad.

The news of Brazil's death sends her into the arms of her Englishman legally and properly, and she becomes the bizarre mistress of a typical English country place and the contented wife of a tender husband. What happens when she hears that Brazil is not dead but exercising his animals in a circus in London you will have to read "Romany" to find out. But don't be too sure of what will happen.

If we had to do "Romany" up in a sentence we'd say that it is a pretty second rate book with first rate "it."

Authors Join Noted London Booksellers

Hugh Walpole, Priestley Are Shareholders.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—The famous London booksellers, J. & E. Bumpus, are moving shop farther west along Oxford street. Moreover, their present proprietors, Debenham & Freebody, are relinquishing control and, while the management will continue in the hands of that sterling bookman, J. G. Wilson, a new company has been formed to carry on the business.

Among its shareholders are Hugh Walpole and J. B. Priestley. This is the first time, to my knowledge, that authors have entered the bookselling trade, but it is an interesting step onward from the active interest in the selling of new books which Mr. Walpole, in particular, has shown for a good many years.

The Book Society of London, which chooses a new book each month, owes greatly to his enthusiasm its continued existence as a distributive agency, and no man among the generation which used to be "younger" and is now middle aged has done as much as Mr. Walpole to assist young authors of promise and achievement to take their places in the bookselling limelight.

Every book lover will wish success to the new company, for Mr. Wilson has a vast experience, a colossal enthusiasm, and an unsurpassed literary connection. He is one of the few English booksellers who create sales for new books by new and ingenious forms of publicity for books in general.

Two forthcoming publications will rival each other in their conflict of view. The first of them is Prince Mirsky's attack on English highbrows, which is called "The Intelligentsia of Great Britain" [Gollancz]; the second is Stephen Spender's analysis of "Modern Writers and Beliefs" [Cape].

Mr. Spender is a young poet, the nephew of J. A. Spender, who has chosen a few modern writers and has found in them, he believes, a similar ideology; Prince Mirsky is a Russian man of letters, at one time an exile in England, who has made his peace with the soviet government. He has long shown impatience with the self-deceptions of English highbrows, and as he has great intelligence his destructive account of their failings will be well argued.

Prince Mirsky was a friend of the late Harold Williams, foreign editor of the London Times, and was often at his house, but his political views have changed and he is now a devoted communist. His book is likely to be very interesting; Mr. Spender's will be that of a very young, earnest, emotional man of literary promise.

Among remarkable subjects and contributors may be noted Belloc's Lord Burghley, Peter Fleming's Sir Humphrey Gilbert, and Alfred Noyes' Christopher Marlowe. The range of names is wide, both as to subject and writer, and, while the authors astonishingly number some who are hardly breeched along with some who are impeccably mature, the mixture should be lively enough.

'Living with Weather' Tells Known Facts on Climate and Health

"Living with the Weather," by Clarence A. Mills, M. D., Ph. D. [Caxton Press, Cincinnati], is one of those factual books that so surprise the laity who know only old wives' tales about the subject. Dr. Mills, who is a professor of experimental medicine at the University of Cincinnati, spent two years with the Rockefeller Foundation in China, where he began the study which has been his research field ever since, that of the effect of climate upon man.

This little book, written definitly for the laity, tells us, among other startling things, that "definite mathematical proof has been obtained that business activity in general is dependent on the effects of weather conditions on man," and suggests that depressions and prosperity could be prophesied if long-term weather conditions could be measured, that sleeping out of doors in our climate is too stimulating, that we in central North America are subjected to a climatic drive more forceful than that of inhabitants anywhere else in the world. Interesting, this little book!

Which the tabbies defined
As presence of mind,
But deplorable absence of ecticut.

Courage Against Odds Is Theme of Novel.

"American Family," by Faith Baldwin. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

FAITH BALDWIN has been for many years one of the most popular writers of magazine serials. She has had a special flair for writing about the contemporary scene in the contemporary mood and style, and if her work has had the essence of the passing rather than of the eternal scene of human actions and conflict there have been many who found that essence more alluring than the stronger soul attars.

Miss Baldwin has forsaken her popular and prosperous field in her latest novel and has done that book which every writer yearns sometime to do . . . a chronicle of some respected forbear whose courage has been a secret comfort and spur. Miss Baldwin inherited an old diary from her grandfather who went to China, as does the hero of her book, as a missionary. Her father was born in China and may well be the hero of the book, with so much love has the author told his story.

That story is one of courage in the face of almost tragic misunderstanding on the part of a wife culminating in the ironic declaration of war at the precise moment when life seemed to have become a promise for him, at the moment when, after years of wanting to go back to the China that he had loved as a boy, lived in too briefly as a young man and always yearned for, it had become possible to return.

"American Family" is not great, but it has a quality about it that nothing else Miss Baldwin has written ever had, a "sympatica" with her characters rather than the casualness of sharp observation. It is unquestionably her best book.

Among the New Books

FICTION.

Publish 'Chats' by Architect Louis Sullivan

Book Appears Years After Author's Death.

BY T. M. HOFMEESTER JR.
[Armour Institute of Technology.]

"Kindergarten Chats," by Louis Sullivan. [Scarab Fraternity Press.].

WHISTLER in his second series of propositions says, "The masterpiece should appear as a flower to the painter—perfect in its bud as in its bloom—with no reason to explain its presence—no mission to fulfill—a joy to the artist—a delusion to the philanthropist—a puzzle to the botanist—an accident of sentiment and alliteration to the literary man." These words were recalled by the reviewer when he set himself the serious, yet appealing task of saying something about a work so complete and final that any comment would necessarily sound feeble.

"Kindergarten Chats" is now published in book form for the first time, thirty-five years after it was written, at the height of Louis Sullivan's powers, and ten years after his death.

As the title indicates, the author "chats" on architecture, education, and democracy. The scheme is very simple: a series of dialogs between a young man who has "finished his education" at the architectural schools, and the author. The pupil is subjected to certain experiences, and the impressions they make carefully watched over by the master, ever-ready to renew hope and faith in his young charge when successive stages of revulsion and nostalgia shake his very soul to its depths.

The first part of the volume is devoted to the ruthless destruction of all the false notions, and theories with which the youth is imbued, the reaction of which is to plunge him into despair, pessimism, and utter darkness. But the master assures him that in order to create one must first destroy. Through a subtle and illuminating series of discussions on imagination, man's powers, scholarship, culture, citizenship, poetry, the creative impulse, optimism, etc., the true purpose of the book is disclosed, and the pupil step by step led towards the foreordained climax. His eyes become accustomed to the bright, never faltering light of understanding, and ever guided by the loving hand of the master, he emerges from the bleak and dormant sterility of winter into the warming and life-giving splendor of spring.

This is not a technical text book on architecture understandable to the initiated only, but a philosophy of life, love, and art written in a style so poetic and flowing that it is comparable only to certain passages in Nietzsche's "Zarathustra." It is a philosophy truly American, for Americans, and as original as Whitman's "Leaves of Grass."

Three Books Give You Information on Meanings of Slang

"Slanguage" seems to have taken its dignified place with language recently, for three volumes have been added to the literature of argot, "Slang, Today and Yesterday," by Eric Partridge [Macmillan], which is concerned with English, American and Australian slang; "A Thesaurus of Slang," compiled and arranged by Howard N. Rose [Macmillan], which is mostly American, and Maurice H. Weseen's "Dictionary of American Slang" [Crowell], which is all native. The two latter books are vital to fiction writers of the modern hard-boiled school whose education among the underworld has been neglected.

Storrs Exhibit Is Remarkable in Color Work

Sculpture Also Comes In for Praise.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibition of sculpture, paintings and drawings by John Storrs opened yesterday in the Roullier galleries, Fine Arts building. The paintings are chiefly abstractions, so you may write your own titles. They are remarkable for their depth of color, their shading, their vibrant quality and their definite, finite beauty.

Mr. Storrs assures one that he makes his mind a blank when he begins a new composition and that things just happen. It probably is true that he starts in this way, but to have things happen as in his arrangements a conscious technique and knowledge must be in the background.

From 1917 Mr. Storrs has worked in abstraction. Not until three years ago, however, did he deal with paints; sculpture was his first love. Metals present an enormous attraction to him and he has used with striking effect copper, silver, steel and bronze.

In the current exhibit one of the loveliest things is his profile portrait in bas-relief of his wife. It is in marble and beautifully modeled. The rounded surfaces fairly sing for you.

The silver point drawings are very charming. Several of the portraits are delicate, sensitive and exquisite beyond belief. In the larger work one finds the abstractions, both in paint and in sculpture.

There is an enterprising sculptural achievement suggestive of a rising sun and a crowing cock that could well be placed with distinction in a modern foyer. There is another with which the ear of a horse is concerned, that has a martial air, a proud charger attitude, that would fit perfectly into the entourag of an Aida setting.

Among the paintings one will find a blown poppy, the petals like red velvet, and a humorous little seal being rebuked by his mother, and a fireside that sends a glow over some one's dreams.

There is also a waterfall and a large heavenly blue cross or fleur-de-lis with a Jean d'Arc flair that is bewitching. To find them your imagination must match mine. Mr. Storrs disclaims all responsibility of what his work may look like to you. He puts, in fact, the intelligence of his fancies into public keeping.

Lithographs by Peggy Bacon, irresistibly human and humorous, complete the exhibit, which will continue to March 8.

Evanston Library Loans 20 Books Per Resident

The 36,431 registrants at the Evanston public library borrowed 732,000 books last year, an average of more than 20 each, according to a report made yesterday. Thus the average was more than 11 books for each Evanstonian. While the demand for fiction fell off by 20,000 last year, there was a 22 per cent increase in works on art and music, and a 16 per cent increase in books on economics and the useful arts. Demand for history and biography remained stationary.

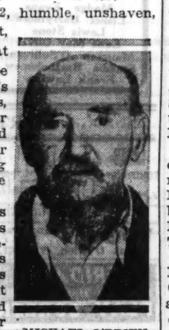
Ex-Hod Carrier Art Victor at Denver Show

Denver, Colo., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Michael O'Brien, 82, humble, unshaven, and self-taught, who boasts that he used to be one of Denver's best hod carriers, won the Denver Artists' guild award today for the outstanding painting of the year.



MICHAEL O'BRIEN. [Associated Press Wirephoto.]

O'Brien, his wrinkled features adorned by a ferocious walrus moustache, was so astounded at the news he could only stammer "By gar, by gar," during the first few moments after a messenger carried the news to his shack.

The picture, painted in oils on cardboard cut from a box with a crude, handwrought frame, is a pastoral sonnet of a grassy retreat where O'Brien said he used to spend many boyhood hours. The painting is called "Nest by the Roadside."

Mrs. O'Brien, a kindly woman in spotless apron, came to his aid.

"It's like I told you Mike," she said proudly. "You are a better artist than you were a hod carrier and that is saying something."

She had taken in washing the last eight years so Mike could turn his talent to colors and an easel.

"It's like I dreamed," O'Brien said. "You know, I dream all my pictures, too, before I paint them. I never copied one in my life. They're all things out of my memory."

Louise Brewer Will Be Bride at Rites Today

Ceremony to Take Place at St. Chrysostom's.

BY JUDITH CASS.

At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Chrysostom's church Miss Louise Brewer will walk to the altar on the arm of her father, Edward Harris Brewer, to become the bride of Frank H. Woods Jr. The Rev. Dudley Stark, rector of the church, will officiate at this fashionable late winter wedding which will be followed by a reception at the Casino.

Mrs. Herbert P. McLaughlin will be her sister's matron of honor and Miss Virginia Waller will be her cousin's only other attendant. William Humphreys will serve as best man for Mr. Woods and ushering will be Herbert P. McLaughlin, Gardner Brown, Huntington Eldridge, Solomon B. Smith, Press Hodgkins, all of Chicago; Stanton Grigg of California, and Thomas Woods of Lincoln, Neb., and Henry Woods of Winnetka, the bridegroom's brothers.

Mr. and Mrs. Brewer gave the bridal dinner last night at the Casino. Mr. Woods and his bride will go to Panama on a month's wedding trip and upon their return they will be at home temporarily with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Woods, formerly of Lincoln, in their apartment in the Drake Towers.

Handel's "Xerxes" to Be Given Tonight.

Society is looking forward with interest to the presentation tonight of Handel's comic opera "Xerxes" by the University of Chicago chorus, orchestra and orchesis (dance group), and numerous dinner parties have been planned to precede it.

Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank are especially interested in it for their daughter, Miss Janet Fairbank, will sing one of the leading rôles, that of Atalanta, and they postponed a trip to Mexico so that they could be here for the production.

Among others who have boxes or blocks of seats for tonight's performance—the opera will be repeated tomorrow night—in Leon Mandel hall are the Charles H. Swifts, the Joseph L. Valentines, whose daughter, Jane, is in the chorus; Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Campbell, the William A. Nitzes, the Frederic Woodwards, the Edgar J. Goodspeeds, the Laird Bells, Mrs. Stanley Harris, Mrs. Ernst Freund, the Edward L. Ryersons, Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Miller and the Carl Brickens.

The Brickens—he is conductor of the orchestra—will have as guests at dinner and then at the opera the Tiffany Blakes, the Graham Aldises, the Fairbank Carpenters, the John Colliers, Mrs. Thomas L. Marshall and Howard Talley.

The Charles S. Deweys, Dr. and Mrs. Donald W. Riddle, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, Frederick T. Haskell, Dean and Mrs. Gordon J. Laing, and Dr. Harold Willoughby will be with the Goodspeeds. Mrs. Clarence Dillon of New York, Walter von Wartburg, the Murry Nelsons and Algernon Coleman will dine with the Nitzes before the performance.

Others Have Boxes for Tomorrow Night.

Miss Astrid Breasted, Dr. and Mrs. Martin Sprengling, the Pierce Butlers, and the Harold Moultons are among those who have boxes for tomorrow night.

Thornton Wilder is making his debut as a stage director in "Xerxes" and he and John Pratt, a young Chicago artist who has designed the settings, have planned a performance which will combine an authentic knowledge of the baroque style of Handel's time with whimsical—1935 comment upon some of the amusing features of that style.

Cecil Michener Smith is musical director and Marian Van Tuyl has planned and is directing the dances. In presenting "Xerxes" the university

"EVERY man has two countries—his own and France.' It is equally true that every man has two centuries, his own and the eighteenth, that time of love and letter writing, of salons and irony, of reason and revolution, when wit was to wisdom what the index finger is to the hand; when a clash between a sage and a monarch made history; when the most powerful person in Paris was a blind old woman in love with an Englishman twenty years her junior; when a great philosopher begged to sit at the bedside of a woman dying for love of another—a century whose table manners would shock us, whose science makes us smile, but whose chair legs and teapot handles were as carefully turned as the phrases of the poems and as graceful as the ladies they celebrated."

—From the letter of acceptance written by Inez Cunningham Stark when asked to give a talk at the Little Traveler in Geneva introducing an exhibition of original drawings and designs by artists and artisans of the eighteenth century.

Some Saturday Tips for Shoppers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Some stunning new brown patent lether handbags that will be perfect accents for brown or beige suits and costumes. They are deep rich brown, in flat envelope models and in pouch shapes, with or without strap handles. Also, some bright red patent lether affairs for rainy days as well as sunshine. And since red is going to be one of the most popular trimming accents, these bags are just in time.

Absolutely new! The big eighteen inch linen square handkerchiefs in sheer linen for proper spring suit hankies, especially the tweeds and tweeds and woolen suits that are being worn under winter fur and fur trimmed coats. They come in knockout colors. Old gold, wine, slate gray, black, bright blue, canary yellow, scarlet and white. They are tailored without any lace or doodads, slick finds for color contrast to slip in the chest pocket of your tailored suit.

Also in the same shop are a lot of big chiffon hankies for your newest chiffon evening gowns. The colors are simply breath taking — jade, fuschia, flesh, gray, and mauve. The trick is to wear two or three of them in as many different colors for fluttering and effective contrast with your dress.

Blouses of cotton, taffeta, and the like are the subject of timely news. And for the old guard there are new models in heavy silk and crêpe. The last named are still the ideal all around numbers to wear from dawn till dark. There's one collection of the best looking models, in white, with all the fashionable pastels and soft tinted shades. Most of them have unusual and different collar lines, with drapings, shirrings, and twisted scarves.

Some can be monogrammed in silk to match the contrasting scarf that ties around the neck. Others have shirred peplum and all have some very interesting sleeves. Heavy silk shirts in white and colors have turnover collars, long cuffed sleeves, chest pockets and plenty of tailored swank.

Good Morning!

Announcement of a new Will Rogers picture always causes a general girding up of the loins on the part of picture fans, and a sallying forth to treat themselves to what, they're pretty confident, will be sure fire entertainment.

Like Wallace Beery, Will Rogers seldom disappoints anybody. It's with pleasure we report that "The County Chairman" chalks up one more success for him.

This picture is an adaptation of George Ade's stage play of 1903. It abounds in whimsey and amusing situations and gives Rogers the sort of rôle he needs to bring out the best in him. As county chairman, embroiled in the election of a new prosecuting attorney, he is foxy, funny, soft hearted, and flint souled by turns. AND Johnny at the rat hole of every emergency.

Mr. Rogers makes his young law partner [Kent Taylor] candidate against the pompous and wily lawyer politician [Berton Churchill] who had through ruses and wiles won and married Rogers' girl in years gone by. The daughter of this strutting scoundrel and the mother the county chairman still adores, is engaged to Mr. Taylor. This situation, of course, carries complications aplenty. The fact that the brash young editor of a newspaper, opposed to Taylor, is ALSO in love with the girl, doesn't make good will blossom any more luxuriantly in that neck of the woods.

The picture opens on a laugh and closes with one. The last reel has a side splitting sequence that will remind you of that famous horse race in "David Harum."

The cowboy philosopher is at his dry, lovable best. He has an A-1 supporting cast. Stepin Fetchit provides much hilarity. Berton Churchill—whose specialty is portraying false, bay-windowed gentlemen—gives you Elias Rigby done to just the right turn. Louise Dresser is charming as his wife. Evelyn Venable and Kent Taylor are appealing in the romantic episodes, while Frank Melton, who looks and acts like Jackie Searl grown up, is convincing and maddening.

Direction is slick. So are the staging, costumes, and dialog.

Nice picture. Don't miss it.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A pleasant, inexpensive cream of practically ideal weight has been brought out by a cosmetic house. They now have three—a liquefying cream for those who like the thin, quick cleansers, a cold cream which is quite heavy and now this which is medium weight.

It is heavy enough to be kinder to dry skins than the very light cream but not so heavy as to have the pull some very thick creams have. It can serve two purposes—cleansing and as a treatment cream for parched skins.

To use this most satisfactorily as a cleanser you must be prepared to use a technique slightly different than that used with a quickly melting cream. You must give a little more time to the job, breaking the cream down rather carefully as you go over the face. We like best to use it in an upward circular motion, with the circles not too sweeping. Massage it in well, then remove with tissues or a towel. It does a grand cleansing job—and not at all an uninteresting job of oiling the skin at the same time.

If the skin of face and neck is awfully dry use two coats, the first for cleansing, the second for softening. You may, if you like, leave it on overnight or, if you prefer to go to bed with your face free of grease, leave it on as long as convenient, massaging it in idly as you read your book or say your evening prayers.

You'll like everything about this cream—its texture, its fragrance, its virtues and its price. It's widely sold in Chicago shops.

Keep Away from Water

By Alice Campbell.

SYNOPSIS.

Sarah MacNeil, an American, calls on Miss Venables, who advertised in a London paper for a traveling companion, with requirements of an especial nature. Miss Venables is living under a mysterious fear and doesn't want to be left alone. She has been receiving alarming communications, threatening her life, which cannot be traced. She spends most of the year at Ste. Brigitte, a small resort in the south of France, where she expects to return soon. Her nephew, Harry, will join her there. He is the stepson of her widowed sister-in-law, Mrs. Mark Venables. Harry calls on his aunt while Sarah is there. Miss Venables' doctor from Ste. Brigitte, Dr. Gilcrest, who is visiting his mother in London, also stops in. Miss Venables has her sister-in-law, whose health is poor, consult Dr. Gilcrest. He gives her a prescription which she gives to Harry to have filled. Sarah and Harry immediately become friends, though Dr. Gilcrest is cool to her. Miss Venables invites Sarah and her nephew to the theater that evening. Sarah's services are not required until they leave for Ste. Brigitte. That night Sarah has just returned to her room after the theater when she receives a hurried summons from Miss Venables to join her immediately.

INSTALMENT VI.

HIDDEN DANGER.

Beneath the wild conjectures filling Sarah's brain during her dash to Northumberland avenue lay a stubborn belief that the midnight summons from a woman safe in the fortress of her hotel, with a relation within call, could arise from nothing worse than a neurotic whim. This, she told herself, was the sort of thing she must be prepared to expect in a future which might not, after all, prove entirely beer and skittles. Only when she flung open the sitting room door and out of breath confronted Miss Venables did her opinion subtly alter.

The spinster, stiff backed and self controled, still in her prim brown satin afternoon gown she had worn to the theater, was superintending the making up of a broad divan into a bed. Save that her lips seemed drawn she showed no sign of disturbance, her brown eyes bright and intent as they greeted Sarah across the housemaid's stooping back.

"Thank you, my dear," she murmured with quiet gratitude, and Sarah decided then and there that one who could behave with such composure was hardly calculated to be swayed by chimerical delusions.

The stout housemaid took a pillow in her teeth, shook it into a snowy case, and having patted it into position slipped from the room. Instantly Miss Venables grasped Sarah's hand and led her into the bedroom, her flat chest rising and falling rapidly as she spoke with tense emotion.

"I appreciate you acceding to my extraordinary request without asking any questions. The fact is, I have had a shock. My sister-in-law is completely ignorant of all this trouble, and I don't intend to enlighten her. She would make far too great a hub-bub—and besides she is two floors below us. If only Harry had not left me at the door—but I had sent him home before the night clerk handed me this."

She was pointing to a sheet of paper laid face upward on the dressing table.

"Don't touch it. I must avoid getting unnecessary fingermarks on the paper so as not to confuse the detective. Read, though, and see for yourself the sort of outrage I have been subjected to."

The paper was common and ordinary, torn from a tablet. On it in irregular block script was written this message:

"March 17th. Lady, we laugh to see you trying to escape. Go on, we have given ourselves yet another month to accomplish our purpose, and we have shown you not only what we can do, but how hopeless it is for you to keep your whereabouts concealed from us. Maybe when you read these lines you will be spied on by some one who is only waiting his chance, some one so clever as never to be caught. All the same, we offer you a free word of advice. Go to France if you like, but once there, keep away from water."

Sarah's first impulse was to laugh. Only the suspended breathing and taut muscles of the woman at her side convinced her that the recipient of this farrago of nonsense saw in it genuine evil import. Then one salient detail struck her. How, she asked, did the writer know about Miss Venable's plan to return to France?

"I've been inquiring about reservations. I've been followed, that's evident."

Taking another look Sarah remarked that the communication was expressed in good English, but that the seven of the date was crossed.

"That doesn't suggest an English person, does it?"

"Whoever wrote this is not English," muttered the spinster with conviction.

"Then you do know that much?" exclaimed the girl in surprise.

"As well as I can know anything."

The tone was evasive, the speaker glancing over her shoulder so apprehensively that Sarah looked too, to make sure they were quite alone.

"The other letters have all come from France, though widely separated localities," continued Miss Venables in a whisper. "Only this,"—she indicated a smudged envelope propped against a tortoise shell box—"was posted not only in London, but here, close at hand, in the Charing Cross district. At noon today. In fact, the writer may be under this very roof. In the adjoining room, perhaps."

"The district's nothing to go by," rejoined Sarah sensibly. "And anyhow you're safe with me here. What can this advice about keeping away from water mean? Do you often go bathing or sailing?"

"Seldom if ever," replied the other with a tortured sigh. "It has no meaning for me. I simply have not an idea what fate is in store for me. There's no earthly use cudgeling our brains over it. All I can do is to hand this over to Parsons—that's the detective—and see if it will help him. I never dreamed any one knew I was in this hotel, but it has been the same wherever I have gone. Will you give me an envelope and pen from the writing table?"

Sarah watched her companion draw on a pair of loose gloves, seal the villainous message up, and direct the new envelope to a detective agency in Lincoln's inn.

"I wish," declared the precise accents, "this had come before Dr. Gilcrest left London. He might have advised me."

"Dr. Gilcrest knows about the previous threats?"

"He and Harry know. I have confided in no one else except you."

"And you don't feel nervous about going back to Ste. Brigitte?"

"I am nervous anywhere, but as Harry and Parsons both point out I shall be as safe there, perhaps safer, than in a large city," replied the unhappy woman. "You see, the local police have been informed and have promised to keep a sharp eye out for—for certain persons. But it is late, and we both are tired. Let's leave discussion till another time, particularly as nothing can come of it. Would you mind bolting your corridor door and examining your window catches? Mine have been seen to. I shall keep my reading lamp on, but there is no need for you to do the same."

Ensconced in the first downy bed for many months, Sarah sought to relax, but found her brain teeming with questions. Why was Miss Venables so sure the writer of these letters was not English? What was meant by "We have shown you what we can do?" How sinister that sounded! Perhaps it was because Miss Venables knew what they could do that she was kept paralyzed by fear. Why the warning about the water? She heard her own name called in an urgent whisper. Half dazed she sprang up.

"Yes, what is it?"

With pounding heart Sarah crept close to the farther door.

"Who's there? What do you want?" she demanded cautiously.

A man's voice answered. "Sorry, miss, but the lady on the second floor—the one who's with you—sent me to fetch you. She's been taken very bad."

"You say Mrs. Venables is ill?"

"Yes, miss, very sudden like. I was told to fetch the hotel doctor, but to let you know about it first."

Sarah, less concerned over Mrs. Mark Venables' illness than was her companion, felt a haunting suspicion that here was some ruse to entice the latter out.

Proud Gesture Against Rival Not Condemned

BY DORIS BLAKE.

You can trifle with some of them—but you can't trifle with them all.

Note the way James interjected himself between his fiancée and her proposed acceptance of another man's invitation to dine and dance.

It seems "Bee" got a letter from an old girl pal telling her a man friend due to visit in the city would call her up and ask her out. Bee was excited about the invitation. She hadn't been to a night club for ages, her fiancé's finances being what most fiancé's finances are these days, and night club excursions not imperative. The man called, according to schedule, arranged for the next evening out dining and dancing.

Then "Bee" thought she'd better tell her fiancé about it. She did. Fiancé took it all right at the moment, seemingly. But smart boy got on the phone later and informed the visiting gentleman that it was swell of him to offer to take his girl out. But she was his girl—and no foolin'.

"This was done by my fiancé without my having any knowledge of it. It naturally makes me feel very peeved. Was it his place to call up the gentleman?"

Perhaps it wasn't his place to call up the gentleman. Nevertheless, we have a sneaking admiration for a young man with the nerve to act that way.

We wouldn't row over the incident. He may have been wrong. Probably was. He really should have requested you to excuse yourself. But you've got a man on your hands—and that's something, "Bee," to be thankful for.

groups are joining in the world-wide celebration of the 250th anniversary of the birth of George Frederic Handel.

Dance Tonight at Dunham Woods Club.

Over a hundred guests are expected to make merry in the ballroom coach-house of the Dunham Woods club tonight at a delayed Valentine party. Harlan Canby will bring a group of ten from Barrington for dinner preceding the dance, and others who will entertain at dinner before the dance are the Arthur Farwells, who have invited the G. Corson Ellises and the Walter Hovings to come from Lake Forest; the Milton J. Blairs, the Gilbert Halls, the Charles C. Webbs, William Van Nortwick, Miss Emeline Bush.

John L. Dole has invited the Perry Drydens, the Charles R. Lindsays III., the J. McWilliams Stones, the David B. McDougals, the George Moseleys, Frederick Copeland, Miss Jane Dunham and her fiancé, Leonid Remisoff, to be his guests. Mrs. Dole is in Miami now, where she went after a sojourn in Warm Springs, and is not expected at home in Wayne until next week.

Painting of Onions Wins Art Award.

That lowly vegetable, the flavor of which is enjoyed by many but which none would choose in reality as a decoration, has come into its own, for the painting that was chosen to hang over the fireplace in the lounge of the Junior league quarters is a still life of yellow flowers and ONIONS reposing on a small table.

Madeleine Maher, who in society columns more often is called Mrs. Philip Maher, is the artist to whom the league judges decided to award the prize of $40 and the honor of having her work hung in the lounge of the attractive new quarters on North Michigan avenue.

The painting also will have the central position in the exhibit the arts and interests committee of the Chicago Junior league has arranged for next Tuesday at the Casino. Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III. was given the second prize in the competition.

Mrs. Maher is planning to leave next week to spend a fortnight with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bitter, in Jacksonville, Fla.

Friends of the young Kenneth C. McKeowns and of her parents, the John C. Slades, are making a point of calling at the Slade residence at 1210 Forest avenue, Evanston, these days to make the acquaintance of Master John Slade McKeown, who is just seven weeks old.

For two weeks he has been a member of the household. His mother, the former Carroll Slade, and his grandmother Slade think he is the loveliest baby that ever came from the Cradle and Mrs. Slade is certain she is in a position to be a good judge of this, for she is on the board and has been one of the most devoted workers at the Cradle ever since it was established 12 years ago.

The three McKeowns are staying with the Slades until the young mother feels certain that she knows about caring for the baby and then they will move back to their own apartment at 831 Forest avenue.

Pikes to Entertain for Gen. and Mrs. McCoy.

Another party for Gen. and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy, who have been wined and dined almost daily since they arrived from Omaha for him to take command of the Sixth corps area, will be given tonight, when the Charles B. Pikes entertain at dinner at their residence, 1100 Lake Shore drive.

The dinner will be almost a farewell party for the host and hostess, for they are leaving next Wednesday for several weeks with Eugene R. Pike in his house at Boca Raton, Fla.

There were tea parties galore yesterday afternoon after the concert, including one at which Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank was hostess in her charming home on North State street. Her guests were those interested in the benefit the Bohemians will sponsor on Friday night, March 8, the opening night of the spring engagement of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe.

In spite of the fact that so many socialites are vacationing in warmer climes, the Bohemians feel that there still are enough at home to insure the success of a benefit and yesterday plans were made to start work on a box and ticket selling campaign at once. Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, Mrs. Philip Pillsbury, Mrs. Louis Skidmore, Miss Frances Bell, Mrs. Edgar Stanton Jr., Miss Janet Fairbank, Frank Breckinridge, Mrs. Emerson Withorne of New York, whose husband is a composer, and daughter Jane, Mrs. John Alden Carpenter, Mrs. Ernest Graham, Mrs. Anna Fitzu, and Rudolph Ganz were among those present.

Open Exhibition of Storrs' Art.

A large and fashionable group were at the Albert Roullier galleries yesterday afternoon to meet Mr. and Mrs. John Storrs and review Mr. Storrs' exhibit of original sculpture, paintings, drawings, and lithographs. More than one guest marveled at Mr. Storrs' ability in so many and varied arts.

Miss Alice Roullier as hostess at the preview was assisted by a dozen well known society women. Assisting were Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mrs. John H. Winterbotham, Mrs. Edward H. Bennett, Miss Elsie McCormick, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Edward B. Smith, Mrs. Daniel C. Rich, and Miss Peggy Hambleton.

Others present included Miss Jean Schweppe, Miss Mary Read, Miss Jean Wilhelm, and Miss Laura Thorne, a quartet often seen at affairs of artistic merit, and Miss William A. Nitze and Mrs. George T. Langhorne.

Mrs. Frederic W. Upham has issued cards for a supper party Monday night at half after ten o'clock at the Cliff Dwellers for Miss Marion Kerby and Miss Janet Spencer of New York, who will be Mrs. Upham's house guests for the next few days.

The party Monday night will follow a program of Negro exaltations and southern mountain songs Miss Kerby will give in the foyer of Orchestra hall.

To benefit the Francis Parker school scholarship fund there will be a special performance of "Smoky" at 10 o'clock this morning at the Dearborn movie theater. Several of the children who attend the school are giving parties this morning at the theater, among them Benny Young, the B. Botsford Youngs' son; Bobby Adams, the Robert Adams' son; Mary Cornelia and Owen Aldis, children of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Aldis, and the Clay Judsons' son and daughter, Clay and Alice.

Members of the Chicago Smith College club will have tea at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place, to hear reports on the recent alumnæ council meetings in Northampton. The reports will be given by Mrs. Walter E. Miller and Miss Annie Dunlop.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Today's dress is a wonderfully flattering one for the mature figure. It's designed along youthful lines, so the young woman whose figure is above normal will find this a most becoming dress. If you like you can use the rever collar and the loose wrist sleeves, as seen in the lower sketch. Printed silk crêpes, linens, and many cottons are suitable materials.

Keeping Toys Orderly Solves Many Problems

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

When ideal conditions are described for parents as being necessary in connection with their babies or children, I always feel that the value of the advice must be discounted. Only the rare person has money enough and home advantages enough to make conditions ideal for his or her children.

So in this column we try to be practical and to take into account the fact that most families are living in smaller quarters and on smaller incomes than ever before. Nevertheless, it is often possible, with ingenuity and a real desire, to improve a child's environment to his increased happiness.

I realize that lack of space, for one thing, accounts for many difficulties with children of all ages. The little ones are underfoot and with only normal noises annoy their elders. The older children need a room to themselves and often cannot have it. Yet the old saw often holds good, that "where there's a will there's a way."

One family I know of decided that they would give up trying to have a living room charming and usable only by grownups. Their children had no place to draw, to whittle, to indulge in various manual activities which they loved and which kept them happy and off the streets. So the living room was turned into a place where everybody had a good time, and friends were expected to accept the family on that basis.

What I had in mind especially today was the matter of space for younger children's playthings. Mothers often complain to me of one sort of trouble or another in connection with their little children's play, and that we are going to deal with fully tomorrow [Sunday]. But now I want to point out that, if a place for playthings could be provided, some of these troubles would melt away.

Children need to be able to get at what they want when the impulse seizes them. If their playthings are all piled into a box or closet, with some things buried under others, this is not possible. Shelves and drawers and an assortment of boxes will make things gat-at-able. Blocks, especially if they are numerous and vary in size, should be somewhat classified.

Having convenient places for toys is also a blessing when putting away time comes. Order appeals to children if it isn't too much of a struggle to achieve it.

Even if you're cramped for space, try out these suggestions, with the aid of your wits and some amateur carpentry and a rearrangement of your furniture.

We have a fully written booklet called "Teaching Your Child to be Orderly." A stamped, self addressed envelope will bring it to you.

Actor Robert Montgomery Writes Book

Gives His Impressions of Movie Folk.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—That sardonic sense of humor which stuck out in Bob Montgomery's early film parts, in which he invariably played an over-cocky youth, and which started him on his way to where he is today, has some of Bob's movie acquaintances worrying. For the actor has just sent the manuscript of a book to a New York publisher, and the book is about his impressions of people and situations he has met in the film colony.

More than that, Montgomery has illustrated many of his own stories with candid camera shots that his subjects never knew he was taking. The title of his book is to be "Hollywood, My Hollywood." He admits there is a little acid in some of his writing.

May Robson thinks it's pretty keen when a great-grandmother can still receive mail like the following, which came to her from a male writer in Lima, O.: "O, girl, how I love you. I see others, but they are as nothing compared to you, the idol of my heart. On the screen one sees many beautiful women, but none of them appeals like you do. They are mere chits, nor do they begin to measure up to your standards in intelligence, character, personality, and wondrous acting ability. Dear grand old girl, it is no wonder I have fallen in love with you. There is no other woman in the world like you. When you pass from the screen I shall never enter a motion picture theater again, that is my solemn vow."

"Isn't it a grand letter?" May says, twinkling. "Say, by any chance is the Ohio State asylum located in Lima?"

Radio studio's official announcement about Francis Lederer's walkout and replacement by Charles Boyer in Katharine Hepburn's starring film, "Break of Hearts," states: "Lederer's replacement was caused by a difference of opinion between him and the 'Break of Hearts' unit regarding interpretation of the rôle of Roberti which Lederer was cast to play."

Matty Kemp and Shirley Grey issue vehement denial that they eloped to Arizona and were wed last week, as published in some quarters. . . . Colin Clive is back in the cast of Universal's "Bride of Frankenstein" with a badly sprained ankle.

If you can swallow Edward G. Robinson's attempt to look like a meek and submissive clerk, scared to death of losing his job, you will doubtless get plenty of kick and entertainment out of this star's "The Whole Town's Talking," in which he plays the mild mannered clerk who looks like the twin of "Killer Mannion," bloodthirsty public enemy No. 1. As "The Killer" the characteristic Robinson snarl goes over great; the actor plays the two rôles in which trick photography has him talking to and pulling guns on himself.

Edward Gargan, Bill's brother, and Paul Wing, Toby's papa, have been put in the cast of Paramount's "Hold 'Em Yale." . . . Irvin S. Cobb will be master of ceremonies at the motion picture academy dinner Feb. 27.

The Chicago Cubs, after arriving here for spring training, will appear in scenes for the Ring Lardner story, "Alibi Ike," which Joe E. Brown will star in. Warner studio is also after Ty Cobb to play the ball club manager.

J. P. Morgan Library Goes Modern; Has a Press Representative

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The Morgan library on Madison avenue and 36th street, long the center of a controversy as to whether it is "public" or taxable, today blossomed forth with a press agent.

The first press release ever to emanate from the sacrosanct portals of the two classic white marble structures that house the fabulous $8,500,000 collection of paintings, books and manuscripts told of lectures to be held there for fine arts students in New York university. It was sent by Miss Marguerite Arnold, publicity representative, who has handled accounts for Barnard college and other institutions.

The library property was assessed at $1,665,000, and the buildings at an additional $500,000. When J. P. Morgan returned from a trip to Europe a few weeks later he told ship news reporters that he would oppose a tax recently imposed by the city on his library because it is "a state educational institution."

Display Shows How Library Is Aiding Children

A program to show parents the work the public library is doing for children will be given at 10:30 this morning at Mandel Brothers store by Mrs. M. L. Purvin, trustee of the library. Mrs. Purvin also has arranged a children's department display at the store.

Mrs. Purvin said yesterday: "The library needs the public support. We have stood great appropriation cuts and we have not been able to buy new books for four years. We are trying to show the parents a small part of the actual work the library does in teaching their children to read and appreciate reading."

Today's program covers the relationship of the home to the child and the book. The speakers will be Mrs. Holland Flagler, chairman of school education and kindergarten extension, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Cornelius J. Peeples, vice president Austin P.-T. A.; Mrs. Paul G. Burt, Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. Arthur E. Sharp, chairman children's reading, S. W. Council P.-T. A.

Mrs. Purvin said the public library has 60 children's librarians. The work of these librarians is not only to locate children's books but to interest the children in reading by giving them games and problems that tie in with their reading. In this manner travel books are accompanied with travel games.

A children's story hour is conducted in each of the 44 library branches in the city every Saturday morning.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

CONCLUDING REMARKS ON RESPONSE TO DOUBLES.

In our discussion of the considerations which should guide the partner of the doubler when he has to choose between responding in a weak four card major or in a good five card minor, we have still to take cognizance of JUST ONE MORE CONTINGENCY.

If the opening bid was a club, my partner doubled, and I held

Sp.—Qxxx Di.—KQ10xx
His.—xx Cl.—xx

my response would be one diamond, not one spade. If he now bids a heart, whether it be because his double was distributional and he is giving me another chance, being prepared for two diamonds and perhaps hoping for a secondary spade response, or because it was strategic with a long heart suit, I will still be able to bid my spade at the level of one; and this will give him the key to my hand, locating nine cards in two suits. He knows I gave preference to diamonds not because they were longer than spades, but because I have a good five card holding, easy to set up, headed by at least K Q 10 or A J 10. Further bidding would follow the lines already indicated. If over my diamond he bids a spade, I obviously raise in spades. He might well bid three spades tentatively, which I would pass with 5-4-2-2, and no more high cards than those given above. Either partner with a singleton club would "take the strain" and go to four spades. With two club losers in each hand, there would be a sign-off below game unless the doubler had a very fine hand and could still count no more than three losers or a finesse to lose not more than three tricks.

Bidding a No Trump in Response to a Double does positively not mean that you have any stopper or even a remotely possible stopper in the suit bid by the opening bidder. It merely denies the ability to respond in any four card suit; it really says that your only four card suit is that bid by the opponent who opened the bidding, and tells the doubler to select some suit himself unless he prefers to pass one no trump. I will also use this response with a worthless hand, such as if the opening bid is a spade and my partner doubles, I would bid a no trump and not hearts. If his double was distributional they may run five spades on me, but I will be shedding inevitable losers and may well make one, or go down only one, as if he has made a distributional double, which is the only condition under which he will let us play the hand in one no trump, means plenty of high cards in the unbid suits. On the other hand, if his double was strategic with his "out" in a minor suit, he will naturally bid that minor over my no trump and may secure the bid at the level of two, which is much to be desired with my useless bust hand. Had I bid two hearts, he would have to go to three in his minor suit. If over my no trump he bids two hearts, I naturally pass as this hand is useless unless he can immediately contract for game on his own cards, or force me by bidding three in something over my no trump response. Only if the opening bid were a psychic or the hand were an incredible freak could I hope for a game for our side. In that case my partner would have to force over my first response and take full responsibility for, and control of, the bidding from then on.

Sp.—xxx Di.—xxx

Remember This, However

in connection with response to a double when your hand is by no means worthless. Should your first response be a no trump or a suit response, and on the next round over some bid either by your partner or by an opponent, you bid two no trumps, now you are making a very encouraging bid, almost a force, in fact, which POSITIVELY GUARANTEES TWO SURE STOPPERS in the suit bid by the opening bidder. If your partner had already bid a no trump over your first response, as already explained, a raise in no trumps by you would not mean stoppers in the opener's suit—your partner has promised to take care of that—but a supplementary stopper in an unbid suit and in general a fair hand with ample justification for any bidding you have made up to that moment.

Exercise Keeps Shoulders Slim, Arms Beautiful

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Watch those arms of yours, women! Don't let them get out of bounds. They're the very mischief to remodel slenderly if you wait too long.

I happen to know of an experience of a woman of the stage who let weight crowd up on her during a period of idleness. When a rôle was offered it was not a difficult job getting the chassis trimmed down—but the arms were the problem.

I don't know why it is that arms and legs, once they embrace superfluous flesh, cling tenaciously to it. The trick, of course, is not to let them get a head start on you.

Some help for the heavy arm is promised in the new sleeve trend. Great voluminous ones, I'm told, are in the spring dress program. And on this point of dressing the plump and overplump arm many women make the mistake of trying to crowd it into a tight sleeve. It's a mistake. A little room is just what the fat arm needs. The tight sleeve creates an ugly line of arm to say nothing of the strain on seams.

Also, I might say here that a little looseness of dress material over any heavy part of the body helps conceal the obese flesh. The diaphragm, for instance. Most women pull frantically to get the dress tight over a puffy diaphragm. Try a little looseness there and see if it isn't better.

Diet can't be relied on to bring the arms back to symmetrical proportions again. O, on a big weight loss, yes. The arms will show reduction, too. But you've simply got to wham that arm fat off with vigorous arm exercise. Shooting the arms and hands forward, up high overhead and out to sides is as good as any—only stretch as you shoot and do it many times a day.

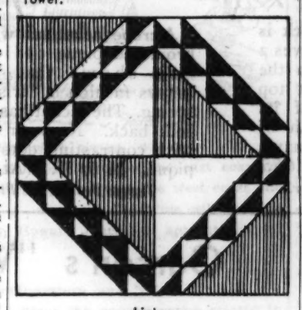
The Chicago Association of Assistant Principals will meet for luncheon at 12:30 today in the grill room of the Hamilton club. Mr. and Mrs. Max Oberndorfer will discuss "The Correlation of Music with History and Geography."

Attractive Pieced Quilt Native of Indiana State

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.



Linton.

BY NANCY CABOT.

This attractive pieced block is a native of Indiana, where it was pieced in 1876. It may be pieced entirely of plain or print materials, or in combination. "Linton" is easy to piece, and, when set together in an allover pieced quilt, forms a continuous design throughout the coverlet. It also may be alternated with plain blocks and set together with bands of solid color.

With her second book of quilts, Nancy Cabot now offers 10 patterns of her own choice at a combination price of 10 cents (12 cents by mail). The booklet alone is 5 cents; by mail, 7 cents. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Hackett, GridCaptain, King of Prom at Creighton U.

Custards Fool Children Into Quota of Milk

Velvety Drinks Palatable and Nourishing.

"Catering to Bridge Appetites," a booklet of menus and recipes for bridge refreshments, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

All of the milk strikes don't get front page stories in the newspapers. Tucked 'way back in this weekly question forum we have one that's stumping a great many feminine minds all over the country. Mrs. A. J. D.'s small son and daughter, who have suddenly decided that they're quite positively through with drinking milk, are fair samples of those diminutive strikers. Since Mrs. A. J. D. probably has tried the hot cocoa ruse, the chocolate milk shake ruse, and possibly even the malted milk flavored ruse to lure the young independents into downing their daily quarts, we're referring her to a new soft custard drink.

Drinking custard may sound like a difficult proposition at best, but this smooth, velvety drink, made with irradiated evaporated milk, is fully as easy to take as it is brimming with milk and eggs. It goes together in the true custard manner, like this:

Custard Nog.

1 egg
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup irradiated evaporated milk
½ cup hot water
Vanilla
Nutmeg
Few grains salt

Beat the egg well, add the sugar and salt, and finally the milk. Stir in the hot water and cook in a double boiler, stirring frequently until the mixture coats the spoon. Flavor with vanilla [lemon or caramel make pleasant alternatives] and serve either hot or cold with a sprinkle of nutmeg.

If menu terms disturb you occasionally, think of the worry they must be to restaurant managers and waiters. To keep them primed on the general meaning of all the ordinary, foreign, and obscure names of various dishes and drinks, starting with Abatis and ending with Zucchini, a gentleman named J. O. Dahl has prepared a convenient little handbook. While it doesn't pretend to be a recipe book, his "Dictionary of 1,001 Menu Terms," written "primarily for those who serve the public," might well find its place on the kitchen bookshelf of the woman who occasionally joins the diners-out. It's the sort of thing that prepares you for the shock of finding spinach underneath the eggs described on the menu as "Florentine."

Dumpling problems seem to be fretting Miss K. G., who confesses that the dumplings in her stews fall short of proper, fluffy, light perfection. Chances are, Miss G., that your dumplings are ailing with one of these complaints: Too much flour, too little solid matter in the stew, or your own lack of restraint in lifting the lid and peeping in at them. The flour matter first: Too much flour makes heavy, solid dumplings. Still, your batter must be firm enough to hold its shape when dropped into the boiling kettle, so we'd suggest cutting down the flour in your particular recipe to that exact stage where the dumplings are stiff enough to hold together, and no stiffer. You can ascertain that quantity easily enough by dropping a few small trial spoonsful into the pot.

Next, to the stew itself. If there aren't enough supporting pieces of meat and vegetables in the stew to hold the dumplings part way up out of the gently simmering liquid they're likely to drown, and you'll have to fish them out in a soggy state indeed. And now to the question of your own curiosity. After the dumplings go in the lid of the stew kettle is to go on tightly, and there it's to stay for a full 12 minutes, even if you have to sit on your hands to keep from lifting it for an anxious peek. Sogginess is the result of any departure from this time honored law.

Then, assuming that you've brought your dumplings to this stage safely, try to serve them immediately. If a wait is positively unavoidable, your only recourse in staving off the certain sogginess that delay causes is to prick each of the dumplings several times with a fork to let out the steam, just as you'd break open a baked potato that couldn't make its table arrival on scheduled time.

GOLDEN GLOVES BATTLES THRILL WEST SIDE CROWD

BUTCHER BOY, FACTORY HAND STEAL THE SHOW

Next Fights Tuesday at Loyola.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Out on the west side last night there was a Golden Gloves battle that would have sent a quiver up and down the backbone of a million dolar fistic crowd.

The great fight started when Jerry Lucas, a west side butcher boy who hails from the C. Y. O., squared away for a struggle in the novice welterweight division against Johnny Grant, a factory worker who does his training at Northwest gymnasium.

Each landed on the other's chin with a mighty right just after the first tap of the bell. Their eyes became glassy. Their knees began to buckle. For an instant it looked as if both would go down for the full count.

But neither toppled. In ten seconds they were going at each other like a couple of strange bulldogs. Just before the first round ended Grant delivered another powerful right that sent the butcher boy down for a nine count.

Tide of Battle Changes.

They stood toe and toe and punched straight and true all through the second round. The third round started just where the hard swinging lads had left off at the end of the second. Lucas clipped Grant twice with his right and the fans marveled that the factory worker could remain on his feet. Suddenly the complexion of the thrilling struggle changed. Grant popped four terrific rights to the butcher boy's jaw. Down went the butcher and his handlers tossed in the towel.

This was the greatest thriller of 32 fights which carried the west section tournament, under way at the Community Recreation, into the semi-final round, which will be held next Wednesday. A capacity crowd went wild in the excitement as the fortunes of the hard punching struggles swung like a pendulum from one game boy to the other.

Next Bouts at Loyola.

In Chicago the week-end will be a period of rest for the Golden Glovers. The next Chicago sectional bouts will be held on Tuesday night at the Loyola university gymnasium, where the north section meet opens.

The fighting for the most part this week has been limited to the novice division. This was made necessary because of the unusually large entry list among the novices.

Much of next week's fighting will be in the open division, and it won't be long until Chicagoans can see for themselves just how powerful its color bearers are to be in the great Tournament of Champions opening at

Purdue Returns to Big Ten Race Against Illini Tonight

Purdue's basketball team will return to Big Ten conference competition tonight after its successful trip to the east. The Boilermakers, defending champions and co-leaders in the race, will play Illinois, the only team that has been able to beat the title holders in 14 games this season.

The Illini, who rallied in the final minutes to upset the Boilermakers, 37 to 36, early this year at Champaign, face a harder assignment than ever because the game tonight will be played on Purdue's floor.

Indiana's Hoosiers, who climbed into a tie for the lead while the Boilermakers were whipping Fordham and Temple in the east, tonight will meet Wisconsin, which handed the Hoosiers their only conference setback, 30 to 23. A capacity crowd is expected to watch the game at the Badger fieldhouse, where Wisconsin should have an edge.

May Play for Lead Monday.

The Boilermakers and the Hoosiers, if victorious over their jinx teams of the year, will meet Monday night at Lafayette with the undisputed conference lead at stake. Each team has won five games.

Coach Ward Lambert of Purdue indicated yesterday that he will rely on the same lineup used in the first game against the Illini. Cottom and Kessler will be at the forward positions, Shaver and White at guards, and Seward at center. The Illini lineup includes Froschauer and Guttschow, forwards; Combes and Henry, guards, and Riegel, center.

N. U. at Marquette.

Michigan will meet Iowa at Iowa City in the only other conference game tonight. Four contests are scheduled for Monday night, Purdue meeting Indiana, Ohio State traveling to Illinois, Wisconsin facing Minnesota, and Michigan opposing Northwestern.

10 BOUT SHOW AT STADIUM IS HIT--ARTISTICALLY

Ten bouts at six rounds each were offered by James C. Mullen and Nate Lewis at Chicago Stadium last night and when the final match ended shortly before midnight the co-matchmakers announced the boxing carnival was a success. They meant artistically and not financially, however, for only 3,669 attended. Receipts were $6,586, the sum needed to break even.

By artistically the veteran matchmakers meant they had uncovered several bright prospects for future appearances at the Stadium and Detroit Olympia, which their boss, James Norris Sr., also controls. Included among these good looking youngsters are Johnny Paĉek, heavyweight, and Geno Salvatore, lightweight, both Golden Gloves graduates, and Mike Belloise, New York featherweight.

Pacek Whips Hogan.

Pacek, 1933 Golden Gloves heavyweight titleholder, earned recognition by his splendid performance against Eddie Hogan of Waterbury, Conn. The Chicagoan played the rôle of "Jack the Giant Killer" by whittling Hogan, who is 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs 216 pounds, to his size in five rounds and then proceeded to give him a lacing in the sixth and win the decision. Pacek is only 6 feet high and scales 188.

Salvatore of La Salle, Ill., two time Streator Golden Gloves featherweight champion, made the best showing of his professional career when he trounced Eddie Carroll of Ottawa, Ont., in six rounds. Carroll, undefeated since he first appeared in Chicago several weeks ago, was floored in the third round. A fast left to the mouth, followed by a short, hard right to the point of the chin caused Carroll to topple over on his back. He rose at nine, and two seconds later the round ended. Although the Canadian's legs were wobbly as he headed for his corner he recovered during the rest between rounds.

Belloise Wins Over Lee.

Belloise, who lost a 15 round decision to Alberto [Baby] Arizmendi in the east a few weeks ago for recognition in New York as featherweight king, was much too good for Paul Lee, game little Indianapolis boxer. Mike dropped his opponent twice in the first round. The New Yorker did not have the soft touch the fans supposed, however, for Lee was not afraid to exchange punches and he made things interesting.

The final round was all in Belloise's favor, however, and he bounced numerous lefts and rights off Paul's head and body. When it appeared Lee could not absorb this punishment any longer, Belloise eased up and allowed the stout hearted Indianapolis lad to last the limit.

Ronny Malcolm, 21 year old Waterloo, Ia., welterweight, was awarded the six round decision over Nestor Brugg-

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE Cubs are going to have first hand information about all the rookies in the various big league camps this spring. . . . Scout Clarence Rowland will visit the different training spots and observe activities. . . . Mr. Wrigley figures the information will be valuable in case any of the youngsters are turned loose. . . . It is reported that the tangled financial affairs of the Boston National league club are not completely ironed out. . . . President Emil Fuchs at the recent league meeting was given 60 days in which to raise needed cash. . . . If he fails, the league will find buyers for the franchise. . . . Larry Seimering and Jim Barber, linemen on Spud Lewis' University of San Francisco eleven, will play with the Boston Redskins next season. . . . Golf ball sales on the east coast of Florida have fallen off the last three weeks but sales on the west coast and interior of the state have picked up. . . . Southern California will have no football captain next fall. . . . Coach Howard Jones will appoint one for each game. . . .

The basketball rivalry between Northwestern and Notre Dame is one of the most remarkable in sport. . . . Since the present series started in 1927 the teams have met 16 times, each winning eight games. . . . Notre Dame has scored 408 points and Northwestern 406. . . . The Irish have averaged 25½ points a game and the Wildcats 25⅝. . . . Eight of the 16 games have been decided by three points or less. . . . What a difference two years make. . . . HARDING GROUP TAKES CONTROL OF RACE TRACK

The Washington Park race track passed into official control of a group of Chicago sportsmen yesterday at a meeting in the office of Edward Sonnenschein, one of the directors of the new Washington Park Jocky club, which will operate the track in the future.

John P. Harding, chief stockholder, was named president of the organization and Roy Carruthers, long associated in various capacities with Arlington Park, was named secretary, treasurer and general manager. Directors in addition to Harding and Carruthers are Harry H. Lobdell, James G. Condon and Mr. Sonnenschein.

Leaders Hold Stock.

The list of stockholders includes the names of many Chicagoans prominent in the social, industrial, and commercial world. They are Laurence Armour, Frank Bering, Vincent Bendix, Benjamin Marshall, Otto W. Lehmann, Charles McCulloch, Benjamin Lindheimer, Warren Wright, Walter Gregory, Albert D. Lasker, John Hertz, Leonard Florsheim, John R. Railton, Robert Dunham, Sheldon Clark, Britton I. Budd, and Edward Hughes.

Yesterday's announcement was the first indication as to who was associated with Mr. Harding in the venture.

The American Derby, $25,000 added fixture at the south side track, will be run as usual, Mr. Harding announced after the meeting. A totalizator, similar to the one now in use at Arlington Park, will be installed before the racing season and the entire plant will be refurbished in line with the progressive policies of the new organization.

Purchased for $2,000,000.

The track was purchased by the Harding group several weeks ago from the American Turf association, which operates Churchill Downs and Lincoln Fields, in a $2,000,000 deal.

Mr. Harding said that Washington Park will be operated in accordance with the same high standards that prevail at Arlington Park, Belmont Park and other outstanding tracks in the country. "We feel," he said, "that Chicagoans will appreciate the opportunity of patronizing a track which is operated entirely by Chicagoans and that our expenditures in improving the plant will be returned during our first meeting."

"It is too early to announce definite dates and plans," he continued, "but I can assure the Chicago racegoers that the American Derby will be maintained and that other stakes races, in which the country's best horses will compete, will be offered."

Many of the boxes in the grandstand will be removed and seats to be sold at regular grandstand prices will be installed in their place. Proposed changes also include the installation of a loud speaker system to inform the patrons of the activities at the post, as well as during the races.

BOTH PLAYERS TO RECEIVE LESS FOR '35 SEASON

Woody Keeps Team Captaincy.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Both Charles Klein, better known as Chuck, and Elwood English, commonly referred to as Woody, decided yesterday that they could manage to get along on the salaries offered them by the Cubs. Infielder English, after a conference with Manager Charles Grimm, signed his document. Klein wired to President P. K. Wrigley from Indianapolis that he had signed his papers and dropped them into the mail.

CHUCK KLEIN.

After a bit of detective work had proved the telegram was not a practical joke, Owner Wrigley made known the news.

Klein was a 100 per cent holdout but didn't do much of his barking directly to the club's officers. From Indianapolis, his home town, he occasionally broadcast hints that he might go back to the rolling mill instead of accepting a mere pittance of about $20,000 from the Cubs. The threats bounced off the Wrigley building office like so much harmless amusement and when Chuck noted that his long distance barrage was ineffective he decided to surrender.

Klein Given Reduction.

Nothing is known regarding the amount Klein accepted. In this connection Wrigley admitted only, that the club's original ante wasn't raised. The owner-president also indicated that the star hitter who didn't hit last season was given a cut equal to the annual salary of an average player. Klein's contract last season was reported to be slightly in excess of $25,000 and it is a good guess that his new pay will be $20,000 at the most and probably closer to $18,000.

English's contract was signed as soon as he revealed the nature of his grievance. He wasn't exactly a holdout because the terms offered were satisfactory even though there was a shrinkage from his 1934 figures. Woody admitted he expected the reduction. But what delayed his acceptance was that he didn't know whether he was going to be retained as team captain, an honorary position he has held for several seasons. When he mentioned that to the manager he was assured there was no intention to pass the job to any one of the other hired hands. The captaincy pays about $900 extra per season.

Advised to Ease Up.

After the money question had been disposed of, English agreed to accept a suggestion from Manager Grimm in the matter of a spring training program. For years it has been Woody's habit to go to camp and work like a Trojan. The strenuous program always has resulted in melting him down well below his normal weight. For the last few seasons this left him in such shape that he didn't have strength to carry on regularly during the season.

Woody's new training diet will call for less action. Grimm wants him to do just enough work daily to harden up his muscles and at the same time improve his wind. If the program is a success, English may be able to retain the 10 pounds in weight picked up during his recent sojourn at Hot Springs, Ark.

The signing of English and Klein leaves four of Grimm's red blooded athletes still outside the fold. Billy Herman, another recalcitrant, has moved from his Texas ranch to his home in Indiana, indicating an intention to make Chicago his next stop. Nothing has been heard from Pitchers Bill Lee and Larry French and Outfielder Frank Demaree, but nobody is worrying at this end.

WHAT, NO WORMS!

Nope, there never are any except for the early birds. And it's the same way with Golden Gloves tickets. Those who get to the ticket counter first are the ones who'll see the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium, Feb. 25, 26, and 27.

If you want the best seats, be an early bird. Seats are on sale at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, and Tribune Tower. Prices are 40 cents, 66 cents, and $1.10 for the Tournament of Champions and for the finals on March 8, they're 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20, and $3.30.

For those who think early but can't get to the ticket counter, mail orders are being filled. Just send check or money order to Golden Gloves Ticket Manager, Tribune Tower, Chicago.

BEN FINNERTY. [112 Pounds] — FRANK CVITAK. [118 Pounds] — GEORGE TRUPP. [126 Pounds] — SAMMY VERSE. [135 Pounds] — JOE MATHESON. [147 Pounds] — HAROLD HENDERSON. [160 Pounds] — JOE DRAYER. [175 Pounds] — PAUL HARTNEK. [Heavyweight]

From Omaha, Neb., westernmost point on the Chicagoland Golden Gloves map for 1935, these fighters, all lads who can take it as well as hand it out, will come to the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 25, 26, and 27. They were winners in the Omaha World-Herald tournament which set a record, both in attendance and in thrills.

man of the Catholic Youth organization in the first fight. Malcolm, with a record of 23 knockout conquests and 18 decision triumphs in 41 bouts, punched too hard for Bruggman.

Harold [Dutch] Weimer, Tucson, Ariz., heavyweight youngster, won a disputed six round verdict over Johnny Vorce, Detroit, Mich. Weimer earned his margin in the second round when a series of straight rights to the jaw twice dropped Vorce. Vorce rallied in the fourth and fifth rounds when Weimer tired. Weimer traded blow for blow in the final round and thus protected his lead.

Cohen, Scalba Draw.

A battle between two Golden Gloves products was third on the lengthy program. This match brought together Nick Scalba, 1931 international bantamweight champion, and Lenny Cohen, 1932 and 1933 flyweight runner up, at 122 pounds. With Johnny Behr, head coach of the Golden Gloves teams, serving as referee it was a perfect Golden Gloves setting. And it was that kind of a fight.

At the end of six rounds of terrific battling, the decision was called a draw. Scalba started out as if he meant to record an early knockout. After he had given his taller antagonist a licking in the second round, Cohen found the range in the third and scored with several solid rights to the jaw, one of which dropped Nick for no count.

Frattini Beats Miller.

Mike [Kid] Frattini of Naples, welterweight champion of Italy, pounded Billy Miller of Milwaukee, Wis., into defeat in six rounds in one of the best fights on the program. Miller tried hard throughout, but Frattini's aggressiveness and superior strength and hitting were too much for him. The foreigner, a chunky, wild swinger, varied his attack, which Miller found difficult to solve.

Ray Lazar, New York, 192 pounds, knocked out Joe Jordan, Memphis, Tenn., 190, in the fourth round of the next encounter. Lazar registered four knockdowns in the third and two in the fourth.

Joe Vignale, New York junior welterweight, beat Fred Chynoweth, Manitowoc, Wis., in a six round slugging match.

Lou Thomas, Indianapolis, Ind., light heavyweight, was given the six round decision over Bud Saltis, Chicago.

The proposed nontitle bout between Champion Max Baer and Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, which had been scheduled tentatively for the first week of March at the Chicago Stadium, seems likely to be deferred indefinitly as a result of complications which were disclosed yesterday. Stadium officials announced that Neusel had demanded a $25,000 guarantee, following his recent victory over Jack Peterson in London.

Neusel's American representative, Jimmy Bronson, had accepted terms of 15 per cent of the net gate receipts prior to the boxer's contest with Peterson. Now Walter refuses to fulfill this agreement. His repudiation is due, it is reported, to the belief Baer will leave on a European tour in April, during which the German hopes to fight Max.

Billy Miller, Milwaukee, Wis., welterweight, anticipates a spot on the card at Detroit Olympia Feb. 26. . . . Tony Falco, Philadelphia, refused to make less than 142 pounds for a contemplated encounter with Frank Saglio at the Coliseum March 1 and so he was discarded. . . . Negotiations have been opened with Lew Massey, another Philadelphian, for the assignment. . . . Mickey Beal, Chicago bantamweight, expects to fight at Los Angeles, Cal., Tuesday. . . . So does Battling Gizzy. . . . A hearing on whether Jack Lindgren or Clarence Rapp is the rightful manager of Johnny Pacek, promising local heavyweight, will be heard Monday at the Illinois boxing commission.

Two supporting matches for the show which will bring together Billy Celebron and Toots Bernstein in the eight round windup at Marigold Gardens Monday were arranged yesterday. . . . Jack Landman, Cheyenne, Wyo., will clash with Eddie Pearson at 156 pounds and Harry Garbell will oppose Sammy Guidara at 126.

BAER CONQUERS STAN POREDA IN FOUR ROUNDER

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Clowning most of the time, but deadly serious in other moments as he went through his complete repertoire of fighting moods, Max Baer gave Stanley Poreda a four round beating tonight in a bout featuring a benefit program.

The champion, who could have ended the bout with a punch from the time they came together, appeared as the headline performer of an affair the proceeds of which were given to Mrs. Elsie Camilli. She is the widow of Frankie Campbell, who died here in 1930 after a fight with Baer.

Ten thousand fans, packing Dreamland auditorium to capacity, came out to see the Californian perform as champion here for the first time.

Clarence Smith Wrestles Midget Fischer to Draw

Charles [Midget] Fischer, claimant of the world's light heavyweight championship, and Clarence Smith, Chicago, drew in the 90 minute windup at the Midway arena last night. Two other matches ended in draws. Zack Malkov and Lou Talaber went 30 30 minutes, and Frank King and Buck O'Neil went 30 minutes. In the opening match Al Williams pinned George Joansen in 11 minutes.

Eagles and Ramblers to Meet Tonight

The Chicago Ramblers will clash tonight with the Detroit Eagles at the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, in a game that will go a long way toward settling the Metropolitan Polo league high goal title.

Although six men will be on the field, the eyes of the fans will be focused chiefly upon seven-goal Bill Nicholls of the Ramblers, highest rated player west of New York. Except for Winston Guest, ace of indoor players, Nicholls holds a rank equal to any poloist in the country.

First Appearance of Season.

Tonight's game will mark the first appearance here this season for Nicholls, who starred with the Chicago Riding club and the high goal western team in the 1934 national tournament at the Washington park armory.

The opening game tonight also will be an inter-city duel, with the Chicago Black Horse troop riding against the Kansas City Polo club.

Lineups:

MAROONS FACE CULVER

With three matches on the program, polo enthusiasts expect plenty of action this evening at the Chicago Riding club, 333 East Erie street.

In the curtain raiser, the University of Chicago poloists will be pitted against a team from Culver Military academy.

Tiger Lilies to Play.

The second encounter of the evening will bring together the Tiger Lilies, a team comprised of girl polo stars, and the male Centaurs, who are making their fourth attempt to defeat the girls. In previous contests, the girls were awarded handicaps, but tonight the men will receive a two goal head start.

In the feature game, the Shamrocks will resume their campaign in the Black Horse Troop league by meeting the Riding Club Bees. A victory will give the Shamrocks third place.

Name 21 for Derby Today at Santa Anita

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Twenty-one thoroughbreds were listed today as over night entries for the Santa Anita Derby, which tomorrow may decide what 3 year old will become the future book favorite for the annual Kentucky Derby in May.

It is considered likely that the winner tomorrow in the $20,000 added event will be among those named for the Kentucky classic.

Of today's entries, approximately a dozen are expected at the post tomorrow for the mile and a sixteenth race, with the Catawba stable entry of Sound Advice and Polar Flight the favorite.

Until final declarations are made tomorrow and the post positions are drawn, the exact value of the race will not be ascertained. Fifty-four nominations added $2,700 to the purse and an additional $250 will be asked from those going to the post. The total is expected to be approximately $26,000.

Four thousand dollars goes to the second place horse, $2,000 to third, and $1,000 to fourth, with the winner getting the remainder.

Peradventure, Greentree stable filly, is one of the top choices to threaten the Catawba stable entry. The filly, owned by Mrs. Payne Whitney, will have a weight advantage of five pounds plus the expert riding of Silvio Coucci, who arrived today from Miami.

THOMPSON BOYS TO RESUME FEUD TOMORROW NIGHT

Brothers Meet Again in Hawk-Bruin Game.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The world champion Chicago Blackhawks and the Boston Bruins, never what you might call boon companions on a hocky rink, will resume their vendetta at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night, but it is as nothing compared to a personal feud between two of the combatants.

A stranger dropping in for the game never would suspect that the two in question are brothers, but such is the case, one of the strangest in sports. One is Paul Thompson, the Hawks' leading scorer last year, and the other is his big brother Tiny, the Boston goalie.

The long standing enmity between the Hawks and Bruins would be sufficient guarantee of a battle, but the private argument between the Brothers Thompson always has provided extra fuel. The two have been duelling for seven seasons, Paul breaking his neck to score on Tiny, and the latter doing likewise to stop him.

It's been an argument for some time as to which of the two holds the edge in their rivalry, but Paul confessed yesterday that in the seven seasons he has played against Tiny, he has scored exactly nine goals.

Paul Makes Good First.

Tiny, christened Cecil, is the older of the pair, having been born at Sandon, Alberta, May 31, 1905, while Paul made his appearance at Calgary, Nov. 2, 1907. It was Paul, however, who was the first to make good in the big time. After helping the Calgary team win the Canadian junior championship, he turned up with the New York Rangers in their first season in the National Hocky league, that of 1926-'27.

He stayed with them through the 1930-'31 campaign, and then came to the Hawks in a trade for Art Somers and Vic Desjardins, staying with the Chicagoans ever since. He has played with three Stanley cup finalists, two of them winners of the trophy, and in those three shots in the big show has made seven goals and five assists. Last year he led the Hawks in regular play with 20 goals and 16 assists.

Tiny is Some Goalie.

Tiny, the elder Thompson, dabbled about in the minors before he came to his only major league connection, the Bruins. He played in the Crow's Nest league and the American association until 1928-'29, when he went to Boston from Minneapolis. In his second year in the league he won the Vezina trophy, the greatest honor that can come to a goalie, by restraining the enemy forwards to 98 goals.

In 1932-'33, he captured it again by holding his foes to 88 goals. With George Hainsworth, Toronto, and the late Chuck Gardiner, he is the only gateman to win the Vezina cup twice.

Incidentally, his career of goalie was purely an accident. He started out as a forward in his kid days and was a right good one, admits Paul, but when his own goalie was injured in an amateur game, Tiny put on the pads and has kept them on since.

Paul's Goal Wins Playoff Berth.

The Thompson feud began in the 1928-'29 season, Tiny's first with Boston and Paul's third with the Rangers. In that year and the following two, the younger brother could get only two goals against Tiny. Paul got only one in his first year with the Hawks, but that was the most precious of all, for it won the game, 1 to 0, and allowed the Hawks to beat out Boston for a playoff berth. Since then he has made two a year, getting a pair in one game at Boston Jan. 5.

The Hawks, refreshed by their 3 to 0 shutout of Detroit Thursday after a three game losing streak, arrived yesterday. Manager Clem Loughlin will put them through a brief workout late today at the Stadium. With the exception of Donnie McFadyen and Art Wiebe, both down with shoulder injuries, the champions are in good shape.

BIG THREE OF MILERS TO RACE AGAIN TONIGHT

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—For the second time this season the greatest three cornered duel in the history of track athletics will be held tomorrow night when Glenn Cunningham, Bill Bonthron and Gene Venzke renew their series of battles in the Baxter mile. The occasion will be the sixty-eighth annual indoor games of the New York Athletic club in Madison Square garden.

There will be five starters, but the issue seems to be among Cunningham, Bonthron and Venzke. With them at the starter's gun, but not expected to be with them at the finish line, will be Eric Ny, Sweden, who showed great improvement last Saturday at Boston, and Harry Williamson, North Carolina, best of southern milers.

DUTRA, LAFFOON LEAD FIELD IN PHOENIX GOLF

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Mortie Dutra, Chandler, Ariz., and Ky Laffoon, Chicago, were tied for the lead in the $2,500 Phoenix open golf tournament at the end of the first 18 hole round today. Each scored 69, two under par.

Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., was in third place with 70. Immediately behind Zimmerman, in even par 71, came Craig Wood, Deal, N. J.

Three others, Bunny Torpey, Kansas City; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., and Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., were tied at 72. Nearly a dozen were grouped at 73.

The two leaders sprinkled their cards liberally with birdies, but each slipped above par on three holes.

Jean Bauer, Mrs. Drennan to Meet in Nassau Golf

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Miss Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., continued to coast along toward victory in the British Colonial Women's Golf tournament today, defeating her semi-final opponent, Mrs. O. B. Keeler, Atlanta, Ga., 7 and 5. Tomorrow in the final she will meet Mrs. Estelle Drennan, Tulsa, Okla., who eliminated Mrs. H. David Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kas., 3 and 2, in the semi-finals.

HIRSCH QUINTET WHIPS FENGER IN OVERTIME, 39-32

Two overtime battles featured the nine game basketball schedule in the City league yesterday. Eight games were played in the heavyweight division and one in the lightweight between Senn and Sullivan, with the former winning, 23 to 21.

In the south section, Hirsch scored 8 points in the overtime session to beat Fenger, 39 to 32. The victory enabled Hirsch to remain in a tie for first place with Calumet. Calumet, led by Schrik, who scored seven baskets, defeated Harper, 43 to 29.

It remained for the north section to supply the thriller of the day when Lake View defeated Schurz, 20 to 18, in two overtime periods.

St. Ignatius Is Beaten, 23-13, by St. Patrick

St. Patrick High school's heavyweight basketball team increased its lead in the west section of the Chicago Catholic High School league last night by defeating St. Ignatius, 23 to 13, at St. Patrick's gymnasium. It was St. Patrick's fifth league victory and St. Ignatius' fifth defeat.

St. Patrick led at the end of the first half, 8 to 6, and held a 14 to 8 advantage at the third period. Raynor, guard, led the winners' attack, contributing two baskets and three free throws.

In the north section the second place St. George quintet scored its fourth victory at the expense of Weber, 17 to 14, on the latter's court. It was Weber's fifth consecutive setback in league competition.

De La Salle's quintets took a double header from Mount Carmel at De La Salle gymnasium. The heavyweights, now occupying second place, triumphed, 26 to 22, while the lights by winning, 30 to 29, moved into second place.

HINSDALE HEAVIES WIN

Hinsdale High school moved another step toward the heavyweight basketball championship of the West Suburban conference by defeating York, 23 to 21, at Elmhurst last night. Meyers, center, and Keith, guard, led Hinsdale to its tenth conference victory of the season. Hinsdale trailed at the half, 14 to 13.

Downers Grove, Glenbard and Riverside were other heavyweight victors. Downers Grove, which is in second place, triumphed over West Chicago, 46 to 23, for its tenth victory; Glenbard whipped La Grange, 20 to 17, and Riverside won from Maine, 33 to 32.

Deerfield's heavyweights took the heavyweight lead in the Suburban league by defeating Waukegan, 39 to 33, while Oak Park was losing to Morton, 32 to 22, at Cicero. Deerfield now holds the top position with seven victories and two defeats, while Oak Park is in second place with seven triumphs and two setbacks.

The Oak Park lightweights also were defeated for the first time this season in league competition, losing to Morton, 32 to 26. The victory enabled Morton to take second place.

Elmhurst Loses Last Home Game to Eureka Five, 33-25

Elmhurst college lost its last home basket ball game of the season to Eureka college, 33 to 25, last night at Elmhurst. High point man was Ingerski of Eureka with 12 points.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

"IOWANS."

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 15.—"Iowans" is a term often applied to the large number of middle westerners who have settled in and around Los Angeles after acquiring a modest fortune on farms or in trade enterprises of small towns and cities.

They have come to spend their declining years in softer climate with enough means to live if they augment it slightly by ranching or working. They are the type of people who were regarded as the backbone of our nation until new tenets put a less high appraisal on industry and thrift.

We asked why "Iowans" rather than Kansans, Illinoisans, Michiganders, Ohioans, or something else, and were informed Iowa furnished a greater number than other states, or at least it seemed so from attendance at Iowa picnics. There are two Iowa organizations whose annual outings have drawn crowds estimated as high as 100,000 and 60,000 respectively.

The term "Iowan," as generally used, is one of mild derision. It is not essentially similar to "hick" in meaning, but it denotes conservatism and lack of sophistication. Southern California has been dry, opposed to betting on horse racing [which it supports so royally after majorities in the rest of the state put it over], lacking in the night life of which San Francisco always has been an exponent.

Perhaps whatever real animosity lurks in the term "Iowan" is due to feeling that these middle westerners, backed by more or less money saved elsewhere, are willing to work for less salaries or wages than those not equipped with a nest egg.

Consequently Los Angeles has been known as a "cheap" city in the matter of wages, salaries, and living expenses. This condition naturally is resented by those without nest eggs, along the same general theory as feeling against Japanese, Filipinos, Mexicans, or those with lower scales of living. It is economic so far as the feeling exists, derisive rather than bitter.

Hollywood, on the other hand, spends freely, and is giving Los Angeles a new sophistication, if it may be called sophistication, in the matter of swanky places and night clubs which charge patrons several times what the service is worth because they are the places at which to be seen and to be talked about.

Conservative Pasadena does not enter into this new rich Los Angeles spirit to a large extent. While Beverly Hills, Bel-Air, and other neighborhoods near the ocean attract Hollywood stars with their large earnings, and of late many others of wealth, Pasadena remains satisfied with its stability and respectability. For several decades it was the choice for residence of the wealthy class from the east and middle west retiring to a permanent Southern California abode.

No Wires to Track.

In its efforts to keep betting quotations from handbooks, outside telegraph service is not available at Santa Anita race track. This is a serious handicap to newspaper men wishing to file prompt results to their home papers. It is promised by the management that outside wires will be available on handicap day, Feb. 23.

The Undecided Poet.

Did you ever sit down to write a poem?
The first thing you think of is where you will roam.
Shall it be summer or shall it be spring,
Or shall it be of the birds that sing?
Shall it be fall with its cold, crisp airs,
Shall it be love and romantic pairs?
It could be of school days, with thoughts so dear,
But there isn't a line that they did not hear.
Of course it could be knights of old,
But very few stories haven't been told.
The mountains and valleys and beautiful streams
Sure had their share from the poet, it seems.
The moon and the stars are nothing new,
The heavenly skies or the ocean blue.
So I've not decided on what to write—
Guess I'll wait till tomorrow night.

Oil Well in Street.

Driving along La Clenega boulevard toward Beverly Hills from Hollywood we were astonished to see an oil well in operation right in the middle of the boulevard, with another just beyond the curb. It was fenced off, of course, but occupied considerable area, with fairly heavy trafic passing on each side.

Inquiry disclosed that property in California may be condemned for park or boulevard purposes, but the owner may not be dispossessed of his oil or mineral rights. Rather than change the route planned for this boulevard, the oil well, its derrick towering high, was allowed to remain and the fence built around it. It was a unique sight for a Chicagoan.

Iowa Track Team to Face Notre Dame Today

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's track team will seek its third consecutive dual victory here tomorrow against Iowa. The Irish have defeated Chicago and Marquette.

Badger Swim Team Loses to N. U., 62 to 22

Paced by the veteran Bernie Hahn, who became eligible a few days ago, Northwestern's swimming team handed Wisconsin a 62 to 22 defeat last night at Patten pool.

The Wildcats will return to action again tonight, meeting the strong Hoosier Athletic club of Indianapolis in Patten pool.

Northwestern captured eight of nine events, including both relays. Eddie Kirar, Badger sophomore, splashed home in front in the 60 yard free style for Wisconsin's only first place.

Hahn was the Wildcat individual star, winning the 100 yard free style and anchoring the victorious relay teams. Northwestern also defeated Wisconsin in the water polo game, 9 to 2.

Purdue, Maroons Meet on Track This Afternoon

The University of Chicago track and swimming teams will see action today against Big Ten opposition that promises to be a little stronger than the Maroons in both sports. Purdue will seek its first dual meet track victory over Chicago in eleven years this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Midway fieldhouse, with indications pointing to a Boilermaker victory.

The Maroon swimming team, victor in three previous conference meets this season, faces Iowa's powerful squad in a meet at Bartlett natatorium at 8 o'clock tonight. The Hawkeye swimmers appear to be Michigan's chief rivals for Big Ten supremacy this year.

The Maroon fencing, polo and wrestling teams also will see action today. The swordsmen will clash with Purdue at the fieldhouse during the track meet; the horsemen play Culver Military academy at the Chicago Riding club tonight, and the wrestlers will meet Wisconsin at Madison.

M'CARTHY FACES PLATAK TODAY IN HANDBALL FINAL

Maurice McCarthy, defending champion of the Illinois Athletic club, and Joe Platak, Community Recreation center, will meet this afternoon at 1 o'clock in the final match of the Illinois state handball tournament. The contest will be decided at the Medinah club of Chicago.

McCarthy last night defeated Charles Ravis, Postl Health club, 21-12, 21-5, and Platak won from Bill McCarthy, Illinois Athletic club, 21-13, 21-15, in semi-final matches.

MICHIGAN TRACKMEN WIN

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 15.—(AP)—A great University of Michigan track team invaded the field house at the University of Minnesota tonight to defeat the Gophers by a 57 to 28 score.

Michigan captured first places in eight of the ten events and had a good sprinkling of seconds and thirds to build up its margin.

The feature race was the two mile, in which Wayne Slocum of Minnesota and Alex of Michigan resumed their Big Ten duel, with Slocum taking the event in 9:39 to lower his previous university record of 9:41.

KAWAL AND JONES RULED INELIGIBLE FOR N. U. FIVE

The woes that have beset Northwestern's basketball team this season were increased yesterday when Co-Capt. Al Kawal, regular guard, and Paul Jones, reserve guard, were declared ineligible. Both players received incompletes in constitutional law during the recent semester examinations.

Kawal was scheduled to start tonight's game against Marquette at Milwaukee. The two players will have an opportunity to take make-up examinations next week, but not in time to become eligible for the Michigan game at Patten gym next Monday night.

Winnetka Girl Wins in Palm Beach Net Tourney

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Deborah Butler, Indian Hills club, Winnetka, Ill., and Carl Schuster, New York, carried off singles honors in the first annual Bath club tennis tournament in final matches today. Miss Butler staved off a determined rally in the final set of her match against Miss Sally Gardner, New York, to win in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4.

T. J. O'GARA, LONG COAL COMPANY OFFICIAL, DEAD

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Retired Operator.

Thomas J. O'Gara, founder, president and later chairman of the board of the O'Gara Coal company, the affairs of which figured in stormy litigation in Chicago for almost fifteen years prior to 1918, died last night of a heart attack at his home, 1540 Lake Shore drive. Members of his family were at the bedside.

THOMAS J. O'GARA.

Mr. O'Gara, who was said to have been largely responsible for the development of the coal fields of southern Illinois, founded the company in 1898 as the O'Gara-King Coal company. It assumed the name of O'Gara Coal company in 1906.

Head of Wide Interests.

In addition to this company the group controled by Mr. O'Gara included mines in West Virginia, Ohio, and Indiana. In 1913 the company was thought to be hopelessly bankrupt, but the advent of the world war brought business and it prospered again.

In 1918 the company figured in the famous New York Central railroad-O'Gara Company rebate cases. O'Gara and William C. Brown, former president of the railroad, headed the list of those indicted. They were charged with conspiracy to violate the interstate commerce law and the Elkins act by giving and accepting rebates on coal shipments.

Subsequently, however, a compromise settlement was reached and the indictments were dismissed in federal court.

Retired from Active Business.

Mr. O'Gara retired from active business twelve years ago and has since passed much of his time in world travel with his wife. He was a member of the Evanston Golf club, the Chicago Athletic association, the Lake Shore Athletic club, and the South Shore Country club.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Mae Brady O'Gara; two sons, Alfred of Chicago and Lincoln of St. Paul, and one daughter, Mrs. Frederick K. Weyerhaeuser of St. Paul.

Funeral service, which will be private, will be held Monday in the Holy Name cathedral.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Wanted

SOCIETY MOURNS MRS. BROWNING, DEAD HERE AT 97

Widely Known for Her Birthday Events.

Debutantes and dowagers alike joined yesterday in mourning the death of Mrs. Stephen Garrettson Browning, 97 years old, mother of Mrs. Frank J. Loesch and one of the most beloved characters in Chicago society.

MRS. STEPHEN G. BROWNING.

Mrs. Browning died early yesterday in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Loesch at the Drake hotel of complications resulting from an appendectomy performed last Easter at St. Luke's hospital. In one more month, on March 15, Mrs. Browning would have celebrated her ninety-eighth birthday.

Private Rites to Be Tomorrow.

A private funeral service at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the Loesch home will be followed by services at 11 a. m. Tuesday in Cooperstown, N. Y., Mrs. Browning's birthplace. Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, will read the service here. Interment will be in the Lake Woods cemetery, Cooperstown.

Fond of World Travels.

In addition to the many personal greetings on March 15, Mrs. Browning always received hundreds of birthday messages from friends in other parts of this country and abroad. Significant of her love for travel, she celebrated her 94th birthday in Pasadena, her 93d in Washington, D. C., her 91st on the Caribbean en route to the Canal Zone, and her 88th in Jerusalem.

One of the six children of Col. and Mrs. John Holmes Prentiss, Mrs. Browning came from a distinguished family. Her father was a member of congress from 1837 to 1841 and a friend of President Martin Van Buren. Col. Prentiss was also the founder of the Freeman's Journal in Cooperstown in 1809. This newspaper is still published.

Family Home Built in 1799.

Mrs. Browning's patrnal grandfather was Col. Samuel Prentiss, who commanded a regiment in the revolutionary war. Her maternal grandfather was John Shankland, who was captured by the Indians in 1778 and held prisoner for two years. The Shankland home, built in Cooperstown in 1799, still stands.

Mrs. Browning was brought to Chicago for the first time by her father when she was 17.

As Charlotte Prentiss she became the bride of Stephen Garrettson Browning of Cooperstown on May 1, 1861. After his death in 1901 Mrs. Browning came to Chicago to make her home with Mr. and Mrs. Loesch.

Author of Small Volume.

Many of her experiences, also her recollections of Lincoln, Mrs. Browning wrote into a small volume entitled "Full Harvest," published in 1932.

Mrs. Browning was the oldest living member of the New York City chapter of the Colonial Dames of America and the Cooperstown chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Loesch, Mrs. Browning is survived by three granddaughters, one grandson, and six great-grandchildren. Her grandchildren are Mrs. Henry K. McHarg of Ridgefield, Conn.; Miss Marjorie Pierce of Cooperstown; Mrs. Edward Moffett of Beverly Hills, Cal., and Carleton Pierce of Earlville, Ill.

Rites to Be Held Monday for Francis C. Farwell

Funeral services for Francis Cooley Farwell, retired wholesale merchant, will be held in the Presbyterian church of Lake Forest at 3:15 p. m. Monday. Mr. Farwell, who was 74 years old, died Wednesday at Phoenix, Ariz. With him at the time of his death were his daughter, Mrs. Paul Moyer, and his sister, Mrs. Henry N. Tuttle. His son, Albert Day Farwell, had been in Phoenix after Mr. Farwell became ill, but returned here when his condition showed apparent improvement. Mr. Farwell was treasurer of John V. Farwell & Co. until that concern was absorbed by Carson Pirie Scott & Co. in 1926.

James Young, Attorney in City 35 Years, Is Dead

Attorney James Young, who had practiced in Chicago for 35 years, died yesterday in his home at 633 Waveland avenue. He was 70 years old. Attorney Young served as a member of the zoning board of appeals under Mayor Dever. He is survived by his widow, a son, and three daughters. The funeral will be held Monday in Our Lady of Mount Carmel church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

ESKIMO GIRL, 18, AIDS AIR HUNT FOR 3 LOST IN ALASKA

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb., 15.—(AP)—Helen Koenig, 18 year old Eskimo girl, roamed perilous skyways today to add another thrilling chapter to her career as a friend of Alaska's flyers.

This lithe, strong girl—she can handle a gasoline drum as easily as a man—acted as observer for Don Glass, veteran Alaskan pilot, during a vain two hour air search for three men missing in a plane since Saturday.

Helen, who often turns out in 50 below zero weather at McGrath to refuel a plane while the pilot catches a nap, cast an experienced eye for a sight of Bob Lowery, Paul Keating and Pilot Donald Goodman.

Last month she aided Pilot H. W. Barnhill in his midnight dash across snow covered and uncharted mountains and valleys to rescue Mrs. George Shappard, critically ill at the village of Chevak.

Mrs. Mary Thirkield, 76, M. E. Bishop's Wife, Dies

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Mrs. Mary Haven Thirkield, 76, wife of the retired Methodist Episcopal bishop, Wilbur Patterson Thirkield, died today. She was a Mayflower descendant and president for 13 years, until 1927, of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church.

Alfred Pembroke Thom, Railroad Attorney, Dead

HUGH A. LEAMY, MISSING EDITOR, IS FOUND DEAD

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The body of Hugh Anthony Leamy, 35, managing editor of the American Magazine, who had been missing since last Friday, was identified today at the morgue by Arthur Bartlett, associate editor of Country Home.

When Mr. Leamy did not return to his home in Wilton, Conn., on Friday night, his wife, the former Doris Montague, daughter of James J. Montague, poet and author of the "More Truth Than Poetry" column of the New York Herald Tribune, notified the New York police.

An incomplete medical examiner's report gave the cause of Mr. Leamy's death as congestion of the viscera.

According to the police records Mr. Leamy left the offices of the magazine about noon Friday. Meanwhile, that afternoon, a well-dressed man had gone to the Hotel St. Francis and paid for a room overnight. He wrote his name on the register, but it proved hard to read.

Saturday afternoon a maid went to clean the room and found its occupant dead in the bathroom. The dead man was identified subsequently as Mr. Leamy.

9 PERSONS SHARE $125,000 ESTATE OF DORA HODGE

The will of Mrs. Dora A. Hodge, 72 years old, widow of William T. Hodge, an official of Samuel Bingham's Son Manufacturing company, was admitted to probate yesterday. It disposes of an estate estimated at $125,000 to nine persons, including four sisters, two brothers, two nieces, and a nephew. Mrs. Hodge, a resident of Chicago for 60 years, died Dec. 8 in her home at 525 Arlington place. She came to Chicago in 1874 from Manchester, England, with her parents.

The following other wills were also admitted to probate and filed:

HENRY F. MEYER, died Jan. 28. Estate, $25,000, to two sons and two daughters. Walter L. Cohrs, executor.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Before Kay Kyser returns to W-G-N by way of the Blackhawk restaurant next Saturday evening he will provide the music for the two leading college proms of Chicago. Next Thursday evening he will play for the Washington prom of the University of Chicago and on Friday for the Northwestern university junior prom. Both parties will be held in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel and W-G-N will broadcast high lights of the parties.

Kyser is returning early next week from a three weeks' collegiate invasion of the southland. Among his engagements in Dixie was the prom at the University of North Carolina, his alma mater—also the alma mater of Hal Kemp and Jan Garber, both great musical favorites of collegians.

Kyser's selection for both Chicago proms is a distinction that never has fallen to a Chicago band leader before. And it is the more surprising when one recalls that Kyser came to Chicago last fall practically unknown. But he caught one in a hurry.

A new program, comprising thumbnail sketches and gossip of personalities of the radio, stage, screen, political, industrial, business and sports world, will be offered by Frank Mastro of THE TRIBUNE'S sports staf, at 2:30 a. m. tomorrow [Sunday] over station WEDC.

Don Ameche, June Meredith and Charles P. Hughes, headliners of "The First Nighters" program, will make their first stage appearance since coming to radio in the benefit performance at the Erlanger theater to be staged tomorrow for Col. William Roche, veteran theater manager. Hughes, incidentally, began his career as a ticket taker for Rollo Timponi, Erlanger manager, who is staging the benefit which will feature headliners of the stage.

Gale Page, NBC contralto, will sing at the Junior League show "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," at the Grand Opera house this morning. Her numbers are "Snow White" and "I've Got a Pain in My Sawdust." . . . George Olsen and Ethel Shutta, who leave the College Inn next Thursday, to be followed by Charlie Agnew and Art Jarrett in turn, will return to the Inn on Oct. 2 for the fall and winter season.

"Backstage Wife," a new sponsored sketch, will have its première on W-G-N Monday, Feb. 25. It will be heard five mornings a week at 10:30 o'clock. . . . Burgess Meredith, who plays Red Davis on the air, has been signed by Katherine Cornell to appear with her in a revival of the "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." . . . When the door lock jammed the other day Abe Lyman found himself locked in the studio control room. So he conducted a one hour's rehersal through the window before a locksmith released him.

Reveals 148 "Flu" Deaths in French Army in 6 Weeks

PARIS, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The deaths of 148 soldiers during an influenza outbreak in the last six weeks were reported in the chamber of deputies today by Sulpice Dewez, communist. Louis Felix Maurin, war minister, did not challenge the figures. He said measures were being taken to fight the epidemic but declared, "you can't close barracks as you can close schools."

NEW HENROTIN HOSPITAL SHOWN TO ITS TRUSTEES

Chicago's newest hospital, the $600,000 Henrotin Policlinic at Oak and La Salle streets, was inspected last night by its trustees, board of governors and medical staf and pronounced among the finest in the city. On Monday the patients will be removed from the old building and razing of this structure, made necessary by the widening of La Salle street, will begin within two weeks.

This afternoon 5,000 friends to whom special invitations have been issued will attend the formal opening reception. Tomorrow the ceremonies will be completed with a dedication of the Frank A. Wieland memorial operating room by the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

Inspected last night was the first floor with its offices, X-ray rooms, physicians' wing for consulation, dining room, kitchen and emergency room; the third floor, which is typical of the patients' floors; the operating and delivery rooms on the fifth floors, and the basement.

Those in the receiving line included Mrs. John A. Graham, Mrs. W. N. Pelouze, Mrs. W. J. Mohr, Mrs. E. J. Mosser, Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald Jr., Mrs. George Seaman, Mrs. George Fiske, Mrs. Vail B. Bucklin, and Mrs. George Maloney. Dr. Karl Meyer, chief of surgery, and Dr. Channing Barrett, chairman of the medical executive board, led the tour of inspection.

LINK BRITISH LEADERS TO BIG SHELLAC GAMBLE

Former Chancellor Reported Involved.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Involving of some of the most powerful men in Britain in the great gamble in commodities that crashed last week was publicly indicated today.

Revelations that Reginald McKenna, former chancellor of the exchequer and head of the Midland bank, Britain's largest, and Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, chairman of the $170,000,000 British-American Tobacco company, had a strong interest in James & Shakespeare, the firm that acted for the speculating syndicate and went bankrupt a week ago, led to other links today.

Reveal Control Link.

By delving into company records at Somerset house, economists and investigators have discovered that these two men virtually controled the shadowy Dean Finance company, which was one of the heaviest shareholders in James & Shakespeare, and which took large stocks of shellac off its hands shortly before the market collapse.

Equally revealing is the fact that until a week ago the managing director of James & Shakespeare's shellac subsidiary was Louis Henry, director of a dozen tin mining companies and co-director in a number of these with John Howeson, the leading power behind the tin restriction scheme.

Who else may have been involved continues to agitate the City (financial London) and is leading to demands for a "relentless inquiry." Many thousands of shares of James & Shakespeare are held by the Midland bank for "nominees whose names need not be registered at Somerset house," and are therefore difficult, if not impossible, to ascertain without an official inquiry.

Curious About Tin Market.

The City is also becoming more and more curious over the situation in the tin market where there is growing evidence that a corner is being attempted. This evidence is afforded by the fact that it is virtually impossible to buy tin for immediate delivery except at a prohibitive price, while tin for future delivery is much lower. In the history of other speculative pools this has been the usual sign that some one was accumulating a large supply of a commodity and keeping it off the market.

Rumors have associated at least two politicians who are well known throughout the empire with this flutter in tin, which presumably is being conducted independently of the official pool. It may have been these rumors, or a knowledge of undisclosed facts, that led one morning newspaper today to mention "not merely certain leading figures in finance and industry but other persons whose responsibilities to the public are even greater" as possibly linked with the commodity gamble.

Tighter Control Demanded.

The whole unsavory business is leading to demands in parliament and elsewhere for fuller registration of the names of shareholders and tighter control markets. Sir Cyril Cobb, Conservative, will ask on Tuesday whether the government will introduce legislation to place the stock exchange and the Mincing Lane (commodity) markets under charters.

Regarding the connection of McKenna and Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen with the commodity speculation, today's issue of the Economist expresses indignation.

Suggests Big Fund Is Used.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—(AP)—George Lansbury, veteran labor leader, tonight suggested that the government controled exchange equalization fund may have been used to aid alleged manipulation of the market last week, which caused securities to decline.

"I am not sure that, with government control, the equalization fund, of whose workings not even the house of commons is allowed to know anything, may not be used to give countenance to this policy of gross misrepresentation," he said.

MODERN HOMES TO BE SHOWN AT COLISEUM TODAY

Doors of the Modern Home exposition at the Coliseum will be thrown open to the public today at 2 p. m. The formal opening, however, will not take place until 8 o'clock this evening, when John Bowers, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will cut the ribbon across the main entrance.

According to Vandorf Gray, executive director of the exposition, this will be the first home show to be held in Chicago in more than six years and is designed to make the public property conscious. The Federal Housing administration will have a booth under the direction of Leigh R. Putman, associate director for Northern Illinois, where information regarding the national housing act and FHA activities can be obtained.

It was claimed that more than a million dollars worth of exhibits will be shown representing building trades and allied industries, as well as many types of products associated with home construction and interior furnings.

Cutten Grain Trade Appeal Not Decided, Attorney Says

Orville J. Taylor, attorney for Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago grain speculator, said yesterday that no decision has been made on the question of appealing the grain futures commission decision barring Cutten from trading on the grain markets for two years. The grain futures act provides that an appeal may be taken to the Circuit Court of Appeals in the district where the alleged violations took place.

Insull Utility Plan Offered Federal Court

Tentative plans for reorganization of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy law were submitted yesterday to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson by Sims, Stransky & Brewer, counsel for three petitioning creditors.

The plans provided that New York and Chicago banks, which hold most of the assets as collateral for loans, receive 60 per cent of the stock in a new company which would have a million shares of no par value. Debenture holders would get 25 per cent and other creditors the balance of 15 per cent.

Objects to Letter.

Samuel A. Etterson, attorney for the debenture holders, objected to circulation of the plan on the ground that Judge Wilkerson has not approved a reorganization petition. Consideration of a reorganization plan is premature, he contended.

Harry A. Bigelow, trustee in bankruptcy for the defunct firm, called the court's attention to "inaccuracies" in the letter to creditors, advising them of the plan. The letter asserted the assets total 30 to 35 million dollars, while Bigelow said assets were less than 13 millions.

The letter also stated the trustee held $3,000,000 in assets of which $1,044,506 consisted of cash and the balance securities. Bigelow told the court approximately $315,000 has been paid in attorneys' fees and administrative expenses.

Sixteen Suits Pending.

Sixteen suits are pending against New York and Chicago banks to recover approximately $15,000,000 alleged to have been improperly pledged as collateral for loans before the receivership in 1932.

Judge Wilkerson, acting on motion of attorneys for the petitioning creditors, continued the hearing of the reorganization petition to May 15 on condition that nothing be done to interfere with the trustee's administration of the estate under regular bankruptcy proceedings.

NEW YORK CITY RE-ENACTS 3 PCT. TAX ON UTILITIES

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The board of estimate branch of the municipal assembly today reënacted the 3 per cent tax on public utility companies, deleting from the bill, however, the clauses which would have included radio broadcasting and radio communications companies in the category of utility companies.

Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, who uses nation-wide hookups to tell the country of his exploits in office, took the initiative in killing all references to radio companies in the bill.

"We haven't taxed advertising in the newspapers yet," said the mayor, "so I don't see why we should tax advertising on the radio. I'm not sure in my mind yet."

The passage of the bill was hastened by the declaration of Controler Taylor that it was necessary to have it enacted before Feb. 25. Collection will begin on Feb. 28.

The utility bill is calculated to raise 15 million dollars for unemployment relief. Most of the money anticipated from the tax already has been spent in the vast work and home relief projects. When it is collected about March 1 it will all be turned over to the bankers who have advanced loans against it.

DOLLAR HOLDS STEADY AGAINST FOREIGN MONEYS

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The dollar continued steady against leading foreign currencies in trading today. Only two gold bloc moneys showed any change from yesterday's close, but the British pound eased ¼ cent to $4.87½.

The French franc was quoted at 6.59½ cents, or slightly above the gold import point, with the dollar worth $1.0058 against francs. The gold value of the dollar against francs was 59.41 cents.

Belgas were unchanged at 23.34 cents, but Swiss francs eased 1 point to 32.36 cents, and guilders 3 points to 67.60 cents. Scandinavian currencies were 1 or 2 points lower. German marks gained 2 points at 40.15 cents and Canadian dollars were unchanged at 99.81¼ cents.

In London the price of gold was increased 2 pence to 142 shillings 8½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.80, based on the opening of sterling at $4.87 11-16.

No further engagements of gold abroad for shipment here were reported to the New York Federal Reserve bank but there was received $1,677,000 gold from Canada.

WESTERN UNION TAKES IN MORE BUT EARNS LESS

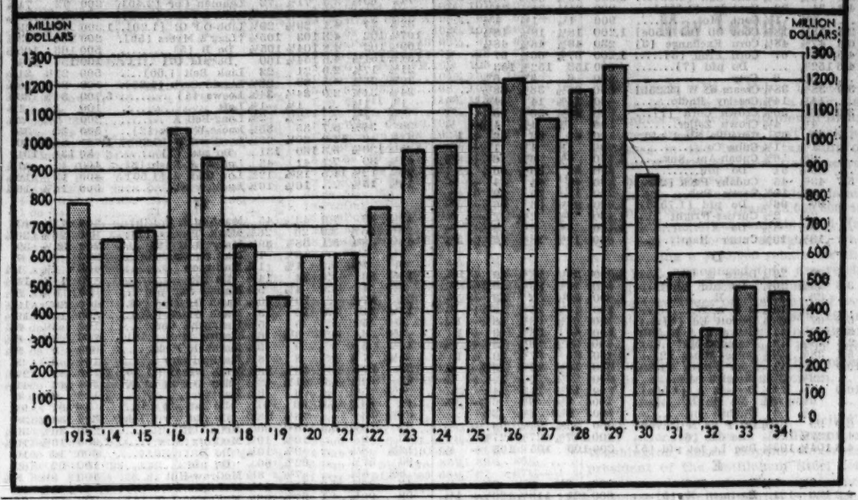
A decrease in earnings during 1934 was reported yesterday by the Western Union Telegraph company despite an increase in gross revenues. Net income for the year ended Dec. 31 amounted to $2,243,084, compared with $4,364,882 in the preceding year. Gross income was $87,230,228, against $82,308,607.

In December net income amounted to $477,118, compared with a net loss of $143,239 in the preceding month and net income of $159,536 in December, 1933. Gross revenues for the month were $7,589,098, compared with $7,343,370 in the corresponding month of 1933.

Armour Co. Declares $1.50 on Prior Preferred Stock

Directors of Armour & Co. of Illinois yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the 6 per cent prior preferred stock, payable April 1 to stock of record March 10. The board also extended the date for exchange of the 7 per cent prior preferred stock for the new prior preferred and common stocks from March 10 to April 1. Armour & Co. of Delaware declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 a share on the 7 per cent guaranteed preferred stock, payable April 1 to stock of record March 10.

Net Railway Operating Income of Class I Railroads for Twenty-two Years Compared



Sound Basis for Recovery Absent: Ayres

Cleveland, O., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—While natural forces making for recovery are active on the surface of our national economy they are inert at its foundations because new enterprises are discouraged by uncertainties of the business outlook, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president and economist of the Cleveland Trust company, states in a business bulletin released today.

"It is encouraging," he says, "that business conditions now are better than they were a year ago, but it is disquieting that despite their improvement they are fundamentally closely similar to those that prevailed early last year."

Despite increases in production and freight loadings, he points out, most of the railroads are not earning enough to meet fixed charges and have anything left over for replacements and improvements. They cannot be good customers of the heavy industries this year, he adds, as they must soon meet large increases in wage payments.

Building at Low Level.

"The volume of building construction has remained at very low levels during four years in spite of the enormous expenditures for public works," Col. Ayres says, "and the amount of new residence building is still almost negligibly small. Still more serious is the fact that there has been no revival of the capital markets, where new corporate issues in 1934 were less than one-twentieth as large as they were in 1930."

"Vigorously increasing automobile output has been the most important element of industrial recovery so far and last year it accounted for all the net increase in the expanding volume of factory production."

Taking up the question of how much influence the gold standard has upon recovery, Col. Ayres says that retaining the gold standard or leaving it seems to have little effect on the progress of recovery, according to studies made of countries that have adopted either policy.

Gold Affects Prices Little.

A chart released with the report shows a comparison of recovery in gold price and nongold price countries during the last three years. There are no consistent differences shown by the two groups, which leads Col. Ayres to draw the inference that "natural forces making for recovery tend to prevail over even such important influences as those of the money systems."

Pointing out the place of gasoline as an American necessity, he shows that production of gasoline held up during the depression far better than that of clothing, shoes, or processed foods and made a new high record in 1934. Moreover, consumption of gasoline did not show a depression reduction until 1932 and 1933 and has already more than recovered this lost ground, he says.

COUNTY REJECTS AQUITANIA BLDG. TAX COMPROMISE

Members of the county board yesterday rejected the offer of $200,000 by the bondholders' committee for the fifteen story Aquitania apartment building at 832 Argyle street in settlement of the $246,000 delinquent tax bill against the property.

The commissioners instructed their attorney, Edward Fleming Jr., to appear before Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis on Monday and ask that title to the building be turned over to the county, as the bondholders have failed to redeem a tax judgment entered against the property two years ago.

The board members explained to representatives of the committee headed by George W. Rossetter that the county is urgently in need of all money due and that any compromise settlement of the unpaid taxes would not be considered. The present tax bill represents $170,000 in back taxes and $76,000 in accrued interest and penalties.

LARGEST WOOL FIRM REPORTED IN DIFFICULTY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Francis Willey & Co., largest wool merchants in the world, with mills in the United States, is reported in financial difficulties. At this time of the year heavy commitments are made by most wool purchasing firms, due to the buying of the current wool crop.

Willey & Co. was established nearly a century ago near Barre, Vt. It has ten thousand employés in England, the United States, and Poland.

GOLD RULING POSSIBLE TODAY OR ON MONDAY; THEN NOT UNTIL MAR. 4

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Supreme court adjourned for the week-end tonight with conjecture centering on Monday as the next most probable date for the announcement of its gold decision.

If it is not handed down at that time, the verdict is not expected until March 4, as the court on Monday will begin a two week recess.

The nine justices will gather as usual tomorrow for the regular Saturday consultation over the cases on which it has been hearing argument. They could at any time during the day announce the decision, but court attachés do not expect the decision to come down on any except a regular opinion day.

The court will be closely watched throughout tomorrow for a statement such as those on the last two Saturdays, which have disclosed that the verdict would not be handed down the following Monday. Should the day end without such an announcement tomorrow, that circumstance would be interpreted immediately as indicating the decision could be expected on Monday.

MILWAUKEE LINE REPORTS LARGER LOSS FOR 1934

An increased loss during 1934 was reported yesterday by the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad. The deficit for the year ended Dec. 31 was $16,247,621, compared with a net loss of $14,412,141 in 1933. Net loss in December amounted to $1,662,838, compared with losses of $1,494,373 and $1,543,702 in the preceding month and a year ago respectively.

The company's report showed gains in both passenger and freight trafic during the year. Revenue passengers carried numbered 3,538,215, an increase of 11.2 per cent, and revenue passenger miles showed a gain of 10.8 per cent at 341,742,000. Freight trafic amounted to 28,098,754 tons, up 8.6 per cent, and ton-miles of revenue freight gained 4.4 per cent at 7,540,899,000.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois reported a net loss of $1,494,200 during 1934, compared with a net loss of $2,020,504 in the preceding year. In December the carrier showed a net profit of $114,069, against a net loss of $181,533 in November and a deficit of $82,462 in December, 1933.

CHICAGO POWER RATE FACTORS ARE EXPLAINED

E. J. Fowler, statistician for Commonwealth Edison company, contended yesterday that electric rates in Chicago are not directly comparable with those of many other large cities, in answer to the questioning by Attorney Harry R. Booth of the Illinois Commerce Commission, at the Edison rate hearing. The hearing is being conducted before Commissioner Charles E. Byrne.

Fowler had previously testified that electric rates in Chicago are virtually as low or lower than those prevailing in other metropolitan centers. Booth reminded Fowler about the lower rates in Washington, D. C.

"The situation in that particular city is somewhat different," Fowler answered. "Chicago faxes are higher; Washington lost fewer factories during the depression because it is not an industrial center and Washington had not prepared for a large expansion as Chicago had to do."

The hearing was continued until Feb. 25.

NEWSPAPERS ARE DESCRIBED AS BIGGEST BARGAIN

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Newspaper publishers attending the Northwest Daily Press association convention here today were told by A. N. Steele, advertising manager of the Standard Oil company, that their product is the world's greatest bargain.

"Only in a newspaper does the consumer get an expensive product for comparatively nothing," he said. "In a newspaper the great mass of the people get a $100,000 product for a few cents."

Newspapers in 1935 will receive the major share of a half billion dollar increase in advertising, Hal W. Blakeslee, contact executive of the C. Wendel Muench Advertising agency, told the association.

Advertisers are searching for means to increase the effectiveness of the advertising dollar and newspapers can help by carefully censoring advertising and accepting the viewpoint that advertising space is merely paid editorial space which should inform and educate the reader, Blakeslee said.

Rail Freight Shrinks, Still Tops Year Ago

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Although freight trafic last week showed a slightly more than seasonal decline of 5,604 cars, or .8 per cent from the preceding week, it continued to hold at the highest levels since 1931 for this period of the year with a total of 592,560 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced today.

The total for the week was 18,662 cars, or 3.1 per cent above the 573,898 cars reported for the corresponding week of 1934 and 87,897 cars, or 17.4 per cent, above the 504,663 cars in 1933.

Heavier movements in coal and miscellaneous freight during the week were largely responsible for the improvement shown over last year. Total loadings for the year to date are 3,361,195 cars, compared with 3,322,380 a year ago and 2,914,930 in 1933.

Comparisons for Groups.

Miscellaneous freight loadings totaled 210,584 cars, a decrease of 134 from the preceding week but 15,698 above 1934 and 67,766 above 1933.

Less than carlot merchandise was 155,535, an increase of 1,169 over the preceding week, a decrease of 4,813 from 1934 and an increase of 1,426 over 1933.

Grain and grain products totaled 25,212 cars, a decrease of 747 from the preceding week and 6,059 below 1934, but 3,679 over 1933. In the western district loadings were 15,820 cars, or 5,084 below last year.

Live stock totaled 12,562 cars, a decrease of 1,578 from the preceding week, 1,165 below 1934 and 3,165 below 1933. In the western district loadings were 9,489, or 1,072 below 1934.

Forest Products Increase.

Forest products totaled 25,414 cars, an increase of 1,053 over the preceding week, 4,018 above 1934, and 13,070 above 1933.

Ore amounted to 3,133 cars, a decrease of 313 from the preceding week, but an increase of 537 over 1934 and 1,036 above 1933.

MORRISON HOTEL REORGANIZATION PLAN IS ARGUED

Further arguments relative to the merits of the reorganization plan of the Moir Hotel company, owner of the Morison hotel, were held before Referee in Bankruptcy Edmund D. Adcock yesterday.

George B. Galennie, one of the two objecting bondholders, said yesterday under questioning that he had purchased his $3,100 of bonds in the early part of December last year at $10.50 per $100 face value. This was two months after the plan was submitted to bondholders and ten days after it was submitted to the court.

The committee has the requisite number of assents to its plan to have it made binding on all bondholders, providing the court pronounces the plan fair. The next hearing on it will be held before Referee Adcock on Feb. 21 at 2 p. m.

BABSON VIEWS U. S. EMERGING INTO PROSPERITY

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Roger Babson, New York economist, said here today the nation's business curve is about to pass into the prosperity zone, and the chief hindrances to recovery are public indifference, labor disputes and politics.

On relief, which he described as a big problem, he said: "We know that all cannot ride in the cart; some must pull."

He urged that young persons be given a chance in jobs, even at some sacrifice by employers. Babson addressed a luncheon sponsored by several commercial groups here.

GRAINS ADVANCE AS COMMERCIAL DEMAND REVIVES

Fears of Deflation Policy Subside.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The reviving commercial demand for grains and gradual abatement of fears that the national administration will be forced back on a deflationary money policy provided the general background yesterday for a further moderate advance in grain prices. Wheat and corn futures on the Chicago Board of Trade rose approximately a cent a bushel and are now selling two to three cents a bushel higher than a week ago.

There appeared to be a moderate expansion in the volume of speculative trading yesterday. The effect of the gold case scare, which all but paralyzed speculative enterprise for three weeks or more, is wearing off. The inflationary character of the pending banking legislation and the increasing boldness of administration officials in discussing inflation plans appear to have dulled the edge of the deflation fears which were felt so strongly only a week ago.

Corn Leads In Activity.

Activity in the corn pit was again the feature of the market yesterday. In the cash corn market sales of about 100,000 bushels were reported, which boosted total transactions so far this week above 800,000 bushels, the largest volume in several months for a comparable period. Buying of May corn futures against the sale of cash corn provided an important source of the buying.

Speculative "spreading" trades between the corn and wheat pits was carried on, brokers reported. Traders bought corn and sold wheat in the hope that the immediate trend in prices in the two grains will enable them to close out their transactions profitably.

Final prices on corn futures were ¾ to ⅞c a bushel higher, while wheat closed ⅞ to 1⅛c above Thursday's quotations.

Prices on May Futures.

Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$0.97⅞	$0.96⅝	$0.95⅝
Corn	.86¾	.85⅛	.83½
Oats	.51⅞	.51⅛	.49⅛
Rye	.66	.65⅝	.63⅛

The government report on live stock on the farms did not produce any noticeable market effect. The number of hogs reported was smaller than had been anticipated and consequently suggests that the demand for corn will be correspondingly lighter. There are more cattle on the farms, however, than earlier estimates had indicated.

The total reduction in animals was about 16 per cent from a year ago. The smaller number of animals is not enough, it is believed, to offset the big shortage in feed supplies.

The July and September wheat futures moved up with the May contract yesterday. Dust storms reported in the driest sections of the southwest indicate that drouth conditions, with which the new crop is contending, have not been relieved.

EXCHANGE WOULD ADD PARTNERS TO GOVERNING GROUP

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The New York Stock exchange proposes to add eight office partners to the governing committee, to be known as governors, Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, announced today.

The proposal was laid before the Securities and Exchange commission in response to the commission's program for changes in stock exchange management policy.

Under the new plan governing members will be drawn from general partners of registered firms. They will be required to sign the constitution of the exchange and their memberships terminate if they cease to be a general partner for a period of thirty days.

Governing members would be subject to removal and to discipline in the same way as other members of the exchange. In respect to claims, they would have only the same rights as nonmember general partners. The constitution of the stock exchange will have to be amended to authorize this new plan.

The eight additional members to be elected this year will hold office as follows: Two for one year, two for two years, two for three years, and two for four years.

PROFIT RESUMED BY GREAT LAKES DREDGE & DOCK

The Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company had net income of $973,760 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1934, according to the annual report issued yesterday. This amounts to $1.69 a share on the 552,120 shares of capital stock outstanding and compares with a net loss of $45,590 in the preceding year.

Current assets as of Dec. 31 amounted to $4,900,353, including cash and government bonds at cost, below market value, of $3,359,961, against current liabilities of $344,969. At the end of the preceding year current assets were $4,686,990; cash and government securities, $3,424,474, and current liabilities, $393,920.

Wilson Asks to List Stock Under Reorganization Plan

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Approval by stockholders of the recapitalization plan of Wilson & Co. was seen today in application by the company to the New York Stock exchange to list 324,783 preferred and 1,566,180 common shares, the amount to be outstanding if the plan goes through. Stockholders will vote on the proposal at their annual meeting in Chicago next Tuesday.

U. S. Is Now Chief Owner of Securities

The United States government is now the largest owner of securities in the world. Securities held Sept. 30, the latest date for which a complete figure is available, total 16 billion 995 million dollars according to a survey of the national industrial conference board.

This is equivalent to 67 per cent of the government's net debt on that date. The survey attributes the huge total to this country's participation in the world war and the creation of quasi-governmental agencies.

The tabulation shows foreign securities held at 12 billion 15 million dollars, the collection of which "will doubtless depend on the attitude of the United States toward revision of debt agreements. Under existing conditions the greater part of foreign obligations are doubtful assets. The extent to which they may eventually be liquidated cannot be closely estimated."

RCF Notes Are Big Item.

"On Sept. 30 the government held notes of the Reconstruction Finance corporation totaling 3 billion 75 millions, and the entire capital stock of the corporation of 500 millions," the survey continued. "Some of these funds were used to purchase capital stock of governmental corporations and other obligations to a total of 613 millions. When this amount is deducted from the gross total of 3 billion 575 millions the corporation net drops to 2 billion 962 millions."

Capital stock and other obligations of other government corporations and credit agencies aggregated 1 billion, 207 millions, the conference board says. This total consists largely of equities in corporations in which profits are secondary to achievement of objectives.

"In appraising the value of these securities the possibility of losses that may result in impairment of capital is more important than the actual or potential earning capacity of the corporations," says the survey. "It is certain losses will effect the value of some of these stocks."

Other Holdings 655 Millions.

Miscellaneous securities held amounted to 655 millions, the largest of which is 214 millions for obligations acquired by the federal emergency administration of public works, the survey continues. Notes received by the farm credit administration on advances made from the revolving fund ranked second with a total of 159 millions. Securities received by the United States shipping board bureau for sales of ships and other materials totaled 140 millions. The only other miscellaneous obligations held were those resulting from loans to farmers for seed, feed, drouth relief, and crop production.

"Capital stock of four war emergency corporations aggregates 177 millions," it is stated. "These are the Emergency Fleet, United States Housing, United States Spruce Production and War Finance corporations. Cash deposits to the treasurer of the United States to the credit of all war emergency corporations amounted to 18 millions. This is, in effect, an offset against unretired stocks of 117 millions."

The board says the extent to which obligations will eventually be liquidated depends on the degree and duration of economic recovery. In some cases, it believes, such as intermediate credit banks, the investment is a continuing one. There is little reason to regard liquidation of the amount involved as a potential source of funds that might be used for debt retirement, the board concludes.

THREE DETROIT BANKERS GO ON TRIAL MARCH 26

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Three of the 34 Detroit bankers indicted last summer will go on trial March 26. The three charged with banking irregularities in having attempted to conceal a $212,000 speculation in Detroit Bank company stock in 1931, are John Ballantyne, Herbert L. Chittenden, and John H. Hart. The alleged erroneous reports were made to the controler of the currency.

CLEVELAND FIRM TO BUILD CHICAGO ENGINE PLANT

Cleveland, O., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A contract for the design and construction of the Electro-Motive corporation's Diesel-electric locomotive plant in Chicago, has been awarded to the Austin company of this city, it was announced today. The Electro-Motive corporation is a subsidiary of General Motors corporation.

The Chicago plant is being built for the construction and assembly of locomotives. Construction of the first unit of the plant will begin at once, and operation by August is expected.

Winton Engine company will build the Diesel motors for the locomotives. Winston is now building motors for a number of locomotives under construction and announced today that it would expand its program within the next few weeks.

NATION'S LIVE STOCK SUPPLY NEAR LOW MARK

Hogs on Farms Least in Fifty Years.

The department of agriculture revealed yesterday that live stock supplies on farms Jan. 1 were among the smallest in its records, and that the rate of decrease for the year was more than twice that of any other year. The combined total of all kinds of animals at 164,062,000 head showed a decrease of 13 per cent, or 30,405,000 head, compared with Jan. 1, 1934.

Because of the severe drouth and operations of the AAA the decrease had been expected. Since the summer of 1933 the AAA has purchased over 18,000,000 cattle, hogs, and sheep. Hogs showed the greatest decrease. The estimated number of hogs on farms was 37,007,000 head, the smallest in fifty years. This was a decrease of 20,170,000 head, or more than 35 per cent, from Jan. 1, 1934, and the largest drop in any year on the records.

Record Set in 1919.

Hogs on farms Jan. 1 of the three preceding years averaged 59,193,000 head. As far back as 1900 farmers had 52,500,000 hogs at the opening of the year, and in 1920 they had 60,159,000. The total on Jan. 1, 1919, at 74,584,000, was the largest on record. The number of hogs in the north central states [corn belt] was 24,011,000 head, or 41 per cent smaller than a year earlier.

All cattle and calves on farms at the opening of the year were estimated at 60,667,000 head, a decrease of 7,523,000, or 11 per cent. The total was the smallest since 1931, but the decrease for the year is much the largest in history. The estimated number of milk cows [cows and hefers 3 years old and over kept for milk] which is included in the total of all cattle was 25,100,000 head, a decrease of 1,085,000 head, or about 4 per cent.

Milk Hefer Figures.

The estimated number of yearling hefers kept for milk cows was 4,286,000 head, or about 11 per cent less than a year earlier. The number of hefer calves being kept for milk cows was about 11 per cent smaller. The total number of milk cows, yearling hefers and hefer calves being kept for milk cows decreased 6 per cent, while the total of all other kinds of cattle and calves declined 17 per cent.

Sheep on farms at the start of the year totaled 49,766,000 head, a decrease of 2,446,000 head, or 5 per cent. The percentage decrease was about the same in stock sheep and in lambs and sheep on feed, but there was a marked decrease in the number of old ewes in flocks in the western states.

Horse Decrease Small.

There were about 11,827,000 horses on farms Jan. 1, a decrease of 135,000. This was the smallest decrease in horses recorded for one year since the steady decrease in raising began about twenty years ago.

The government reported a marked increase in the numbers of colts raised

In the Matter of FEDERAL PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION, a corporation, Debtor, in the United States District Court, for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in Bankruptcy No. 50308.

TO HOLDERS OF UNDEPOSITED BONDS, NOTES AND PREFERRED STOCK OF SAID FEDERAL PUBLIC SERVICE CORPORATION:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that in accordance with an order of the court entered in the above entitled cause on December 21, 1934, and pursuant to a Plan of Reorganization of the Debtor Corporation, confirmed by the court on October 31, 1934, Bonds, Certificates for Preferred Stock, and Voting Trust Certificates for Common Stock of American Utilities Service Corporation, the new company organized in accordance with said Plan, have been deposited by the undersigned Trustee with the following named Depositaries for the purpose of exchange with holders of the Bonds, Notes and Preferred Stock of said Federal Public Service Corporation on the basis provided in said Plan of Reorganization, viz:

Holders of First Lien Gold Bonds, 6% Series of 1927, of Federal Public Service Corporation are entitled to receive for each $1,000 principal amount of bonds, $500 principal amount of Collateral Trust Bonds, 10 shares of Preferred Stock, and 42 shares of Common Stock represented by a Voting Trust Certificate of said American Utilities Service Corporation.

Holders of Two-Year and/or Three-Year 6% Convertible Gold Notes of Federal Public Service Corporation are entitled to receive for each $1,000 principal amount of notes, 80 shares of Common Stock, represented by a Voting Trust Certificate of said American Utilities Service Corporation.

Holders of smaller principal amounts of bonds and notes are entitled to receive securities of said American Utilities Service Corporation in the same proportion.

Holders of the 6½% Cumulative Preferred Stock of Federal Public Service Corporation are entitled to receive for each share of stock held by them, three shares of Common Stock, represented by a Voting Trust Certificate, of said American Utilities Service Corporation.

The manner in which such exchange may be effected, as provided in said order of December 21, 1934, is as follows:

(a) Holders of First Lien Gold Bonds, 6% Series of 1927, of said Federal Public Service Corporation, should surrender the same to the City National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, 208 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinois, as Depositary, which will, upon receipt thereof, deliver, or forward, to such holders, according to their respective interests, Bonds, Certificates of Preferred Stock, and Voting Trust Certificates for Common Stock of said American Utilities Service Corporation in the proportionate amounts above specified.

(b) Holders of Two-Year and/or Three-Year 6% Convertible Gold Notes of said Federal Public Service Corporation should surrender the same to the Continental-Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago, 231 South La Salle Street, Chicago, Illinois, as Depositary, which will, upon receipt thereof, deliver, or forward, to such holders, according to their respective interests, Voting Trust Certificates for Common Stock of said American Utilities Service Corporation in the proportionate amounts above specified.

(c) Holders of the 6½% Cumulative Preferred Stock of said Federal Public Service Corporation should surrender their certificates to the First National Bank of Chicago, 33 South Clark Street, Chicago, Illinois, as Depositary, which will, upon receipt thereof, deliver, or forward, to such holders, according to their respective interests, Voting Trust Certificates for Common Stock of said American Utilities Service Corporation in the proportionate amounts above specified.

Appropriate form letters of transmittal for use in forwarding said securities to the aforesaid Depositaries will be furnished by the undersigned upon request.

The above mentioned Plan of Reorganization having been confirmed by the court and consummated in accordance with Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act, is effective as to all creditors and stockholders of said Federal Public Service Corporation whether their securities were deposited with protective committees or not, and the old securities should therefore be exchanged by the non-depositors as promptly as possible. Pursuant to order of the court, the assets of said Federal Public Service Corporation have been transferred to said American Utilities Service Corporation.

PERRY O. CRAWFORD,
Trustee, Federal Public Service Corporation, Debtor.
135 North Clark Street,
Chicago, Illinois.

Radio Corporation of America
"A" Preferred Dividend

Notice is hereby given that the following dividend has been declared by the board of directors:

On the outstanding shares of the "A" preferred stock (including shares of the "A" preferred stock represented by outstanding unexchanged certificates of original preferred stock—ten of such unexchanged shares being equal to one share of "A" preferred stock) a dividend of one and three-quarters per cent (1¾%) for the first quarter of the year 1935, amounting to 87½ cents per share, payable on April 1st, 1935, to holders of record of said stock at the close of business on the first day of March, 1935.

The stock transfer books will not be closed. Dividend checks will be mailed.

GEORGE S. DE SOUSA, Treasurer.
Dated February 16th, 1935.

STOCKS SHAKE OFF LETHARGY; STAGE UPTURN

Action of Market Best So Far This Month.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—Speculative skies were a little brighter today. The stock market hitched up its energies for no discernible reason in particular and put on its best performance of the month. Leading issues improved their ratings by as much as $1 to $2 a share, and the turnover mounted to around 726,000 shares, the first time it has surmounted the half million mark in days.

Experts ascribed the show of constructive activity to the market's sold out condition after its protracted spell of idleness on the score of the long awaited decision in the gold matter.

Regard Administration Prepared.

Reiterated assurances that Washington is prepared to cope with any situation that might arise under the ruling have gone a long way toward restoring confidence among traders who have been loitering on the anxious seat since the gold cases were taken under advisement.

The most encouraging sign of the day's doings on the exchange was to be found in the strength of market leaders where important industries are best represented. Can manufacturers took first honors on the performance chart, American Can rising some 3 points to its best price in four years, and Continental Can climbing 2 points to within a slight fraction of its peak for the year.

Both issues were reflecting further improvement of earnings this year as a result of favorable conditions within the industry.

Studebaker Active and Lower.

Studebaker was again one of the most active stocks on the list and sold down on a large turnover to an eighth of a dollar a share. There was considerable speculation around the boardrooms as to whether quotations would be allowed in smaller fractions but no word on the question was forthcoming from the exchange authorities. The stock is expected to be removed from trading, anyhow, on Feb. 25.

Utility stocks were about the only group that failed to tie in on the forward moving procession. United Corporation preferred fell nearly four points on fears over the next quarterly dividend, dependent in part on the volume of the company's holdings.

Some of the store stocks looked up a bit on reports indicating improvement in retail trade, due in some measure, it was said, to the milder weather that has prevailed for the last week. Week-end trade news in other directions was colorless.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Raw sugar was less active today, but the tone was steady and prices were unchanged at 2.90c per lb for spots. Sales were reported of 50,000 bags of Puerto Rican and 10,000 bags of Cuban for prompt shipment at 2.90c. Fluctuating within a range of 1 point to 2 points sugar futures held generally steady today in sympathy with the firmness of the spot market with final prices 1 point to 2 points net higher on both contracts. Sales in the old were 19,900 tons and in the new 28,650 tons, with a considerable portion of the business in the way of exchanging between months, or from the old to the new contract.

GOVERNORS' OIL MEETING WON'T CENSURE ICKES

Vote Down Resolution and Drop Price Fixing.

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Oil state governors and their representatives today tabled a resolution censuring Secretary Ickes as they perfected the draft of an interstate oil production compact pointedly leaving out any mention of price fixing or proration.

The secretary of the interior, in a magazine article, made statements interpreted in the resolution as charging some were attending the conference here "with their tongues in their cheeks." The resolution, offered by John Olvey of the Arkansas delegation, expressed "regret that one so highly placed should have seen fit to condemn our purposes even before our meeting."

The motion to table was carried by a vote of 4 to 3, with Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, and New Mexico voting to table and Texas, Arkansas, and Colorado opposed.

Delegates Shout Cautions.

Shouts from delegates unidentified in the hubbub that followed presentation of the resolution called on the delegates "not to antagonize a man with whom we will have to deal." Secretary Ickes is the federal oil administrator. California and Oklahoma did not vote. The resolution closely followed the language of a statement by Gov. E. W. Marland of Oklahoma.

Gov. Marland, chief sponsor of the meeting and chairman, made repeated efforts during the afternoon to revive the issue of proration provisions in the proposed compact, after agreeing at a morning session to "go along if we can't do any better." Gov. James V. Allred of Texas insisted on limitation of the compact to prevention of physical waste.

State Senator G. F. Van Enenaam said Michigan's laws were sufficiently broad to cover Gov. Allred's plan.

Illinois Offers Suggestion.

William Bell, representative of Gov. Horner of Illinois, said he felt the pact should make some provision for protection of small wells representing substantial oil reserves which could not be profitably operated in competition with prices offered on crude from the flush fields.

Texas and Oklahoma were conceded to be the controling factor in any compact agreed upon because of their tremendous production.

Gov. Marland sought repeatedly to obtain an admission from Gov. Allred that production in excess of market demand would result in waste and therefore fall within the limits set by him. Gov. Allred denied that waste would be a necessary result of such overproduction and denounced efforts to balance supply and demand as "purely price fixing measures with which Texas will have nothing to do."

OWENS-ILLINOIS EARNINGS RISE TO $5.41 A SHARE

Owens-Illinois Glass company had a net income of $6,496,359 after all charges for the year ended Dec. 31, 1934, according to the annual statement issued yesterday. This amounts to $5.41 a share on 1,200,000 shares of common stock and compares with net of $6,032,312 or $4.86 a share in the preceding year.

Gross income of $13,184,441 was the highest in the company's history, it was stated, and compared with $12,379,173 in the preceding year. Net manufacturing profit and royalties were $12,528,444, against $11,834,219 in 1933. Earned surplus at the end of the year amounted to $13,019,477, against $10,422,118.

Current assets were $22,031,578, including cash of $4,017,266, against current liabilities of $3,128,533. This compares with current assets of $18,055,214, cash of $2,036,744, and current liabilities of $2,872,312 at the end of 1933.

U. S.-Canadian Newsprint Output Exceeds Year Ago

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Production of newsprint in the United States and Canada amounted to 282,625 tons last month, compared with 272,568 tons in January, 1934, and 319,321 tons in December, 1934. Output for the month also exceeded the production in January, 1932, but was slightly behind the total for January 1931, according to the newsprint Service bureau.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15. — New record high prices were established for a large number of gilt edged bonds today in a market that did not develop a normal volume of trading.

Eight treasury issues, direct obligations and guaranteed bonds, bettered their old highs, as some of the group did in yesterday's more active trading.

Home Owners Loan 2¾s, the series that is being currently issued in exchange for home mortgages, are being absorbed into strong portfolios as rapidly as they are unloaded by former mortgages. They are being more firmly sustained during this period of steady emission than either of the first two series.

Best Corporate Loans Rise.

Not much trading was required to establish new highs for many of the first grade corporate issues, including Santa Fé General 4s, which advanced through 110 for the first time; Brooklyn Union Gas First 5s, Chesapeake & Ohio General 4½s, and Pennsylvania Consolidated 4½s and General 4¼s.

Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania 5s sold at 120, which placed them in an exclusive division of the market. This issue, due in 1960, cannot be refunded by the company until 1957. The refunding 5s, due in 1948, selling around 116, cannot be redeemed until 1944. Both yield well under 4 per cent at current prices. They are outstanding to the amount of $85,000,000.

"MOP" Issue Is Strong.

Missouri Pacific refunding bonds were actively purchased at rising prices. Gains of a point or more were recorded in Abitibi Power 5s, General Public Service 5½s, Rio Grand Western First 4s, Southern Pacific 4½s of 1981, and Western Union 4½s.

Utility bonds of almost all descriptions moved upward. New Orleans Public Service bonds advanced 2 points on heavy demand.

U. S. Smelting, Refining and Mining.

Investors' Guide: Please give me information about United States Smelting and Refining.—M. A. H.

Answer: United States Smelting, Refining and Mining company is an important producer of precious metals. The bulk of its gold is produced in Alaska while most of its silver comes from Mexican mines. Lead and zinc are extracted in Utah. Production of other metals contribute a minor portion of income.

The company derives considerable business from smelting for other companies. This, sharp slashes in operating costs and rich gold bearing properties enabled the company to operate profitably during the depression period when most mining companies were in the red.

Boosting of the price of gold to $35 an ounce benefited the company not only by enabling it to realize more on its output, but in enabling it to bring otherwise unprofitable lands into production. Since most of its silver comes from Mexico, only a small percentage of this product realizes the 64½ cents an ounce price pegged by the United States treasury.

Higher world price for silver, and better lead and zinc prices have, nevertheless, helped earnings along to reach $5,712,000, or $7.96 a share for the first eleven months of 1934, against $4,447,000, or $5.57 a share for the corresponding 1933 period.

Net income for 1933 was $5,170,000, or $6.67 per common share, against net of $1,995,000, or 64 cents per common share, for 1932. For 1931 net income was $2,505,000 before "additional reserves," against $3,700,000 for 1930. The "additional reserves" deducted in 1931 and 1930 were the earnings remaining after dividends. They were applied to amortization of properties.

Cash assets of more than $7,800,000 compared with total current liabilities of $5,553,000 at the close of 1933.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization is represented by 467,954 shares of $50 par 7 per cent preferred, which is not redeemable, and 528,768 shares of $50 par common.

Dividends on the common are not currently being paid at any fixed rate. One payment of $3 a share was made Jan. 15, 1935. In 1934 dividends amounted to $9 a share, against $1.50 in 1933, and $1 a share in 1932 and in 1931. Dividends on the common have been paid uninterruptedly since 1907 with the exception of four years.

Miller & Hart.

Investors' Guide: Your rating on Miller & Hart debenture 6s due 1943 would be much appreciated.—Miss R. J.

Answer: These debenture 6s, due 1943, are more a speculation than an investment.
